The presentation of poetry

1. Lines are broken at each long-line rather than each half-line. This follows traditional practice for the publication of West Germanic poetry, while departing from that of Old Norse poetry.
2. Cæsurae are represented with the interpunct (·).
3. Alliterating sounds are marked with red colour.

About the present corpus

The scope of the present corpus is large, containing most alliterative poetry extant in Old Germanic languages. It may be divided into the following categories:

1. Mythic poetry, i.e., that which directly treats the Germanic mythology; for historical reasons, the poetry in this category is exclusively written in Old Norse. See also Galders, below.
2. Heroic poetry of the Codex Regius. Since the heroic portion of the Codex Regius forms a coherent text, it is edited in full in the format of the manuscript.
3. Other Heroic poetry, i.e., heroic poetry from sources other than the Codex Regius. This category includes heroic poetry in Old English and Old High German.
4. Galders, i.e., alliterative spells and charms, both from runic inscriptions and from manuscripts.
5. Christian poetry. This category includes a few explicitly Christian poems, where the new religion is at the core of the work (thus Christianised heroic poems like Beow and Hild are not included here). This poetry has been included for its value in the study of poetic expression, and because it may still provide valuable cultural evidence, for instance in the form of glosses.
6. Runic poetry, apart from that already edited under Galders above.

Exclusions

The corpora formed by the (non-mythological) Norse Scoldic corpus and the Norse poetry found in old legendary saws (the form-aldar-sögur) are explicitly excluded. They have been excellently edited in the SkP series, such that I, a single editor, could scarcely produce something as thorough. The latter is problematic in another way. Being entirely embedded in saws, the underlying poetry is often impossible to take out of its prose context, and in some cases one may ask whether it ever had a life of its own, or whether it were simply composed on occasion by the author. For these reasons I think it would be more conscientious to simply edit the whole saws, rather than artificially extract the poetry found scattered therein.

Manuscripts

Norse poetry

The so-called Eddic poetry is foremost found in two medieval Icelandic manuscripts.

The first and most important is GKS 2365 4to, here R. It dates to the 1270s and has 45 surviving leaves, containing TODO poems. Of these 10 are mythological; the rest heroic, dealing with legends mostly of the Migration Period. Notably, following fol. 32, there is a gap of missing pages in the heroic section, specifically cutting off Sdr. It is unclear how many leaves and poems are missing. R is not just a compilation of poems, it shows editorial input as well. Several of the mythological poems are separated by short prose sections, which tie them together into a loose frame narrative, though it is clear from their style and composition that they are originally separate works. When it comes to the heroic poems long prose sections occur both within and between them, creating a saw^C-like prosimetrical form, where the prose in many cases holds up the poetry, rather than the reverse. The heroic half of R clearly forms the basis for the later WalsS. For further literature see TODO.

The second ms. is AM 748 I a 4to, here A. It dates to the 1300s and is but a fragment, consisting of just 6 leaves. It contains only mythological poems, and in a different order from R; unlike it there is no trace of a frame narrative. On the first two leaves are contained the final stanzas of Hbl (1r–v), the complete Bdr (1v–2r), and the first verses of Shir, after which a single leaf has been lost. The next four leaves follow each other and contain the second half of Webth, the complete Grmn and Hym, and the beginning of the prose introduction to Wayl. A is the only medieval manuscript attesting Bdr, and its variants of the poems attested in R are clearly not copied from it, but rather derive from a common ancestor. This makes it very valuable for textual criticism. For further literature see TODO.

Several Eddic poems are quoted in Yilv, namely (TODO): Wsp, Webth, Grmn. The text also cites a few fragmentary Eddic stanzas, which are edited under “Eddic fragments from Snorre’s Edda”. For Yilv I give variants from the following four main mss.:

1. The Codex Regius of the Prose Edda S (GKS 2367 4to; 1300–1350)
2. The Codex Trajectinus T (Traj 1374; a c. 1595 paper copy of a ms. closely related to S.)
3. The Codex Wormianus W (AM 242 fol.; 1340–70)
4. The Codex Upsaliensis U (DG 11; 1300–25)

For discussion on their internal stemmatics and origins I refer to Haukur Þorgeirsson (2017). When all employed witness mss. of Yilv agree on a reading, I use in the critical apparatus the siglum G, which is thus equivalent to STWU.

A few other Eddic-style poems are also included. One of them, Righ, partially survives in W, though it is sadly incomplete (see its Introduction). Grot is quoted in full in Scold. Other Eddic poems survive only in younger Icelandic paper mss., namely TODO. While I have not consulted such paper mss. for poems attested in medieval mss., I have had to rely on them for these poems. Of these poems it must be said, that their late attestation not necessarily proves them to be late compositions. This is most clearly shown by Bdr, which is first attested in the fragmentary A, and in longer form in later paper mss. It thus cannot be excluded that some of these poems would have existed in other lost medieval mss., perhaps even on the now-lost pages of R or A.

Old English poetry

The edited Old English poetry primarily derives from a few manuscripts. Particularly important are the Exeter Book and Lacnung.

About the original language edition

My goal with the edition of the texts has been to hold close to the original mss., without excessive emendation. Still, emendation is inevitable, and where it has done it is (apart from any oversight on my part) always marked.

Normalization

In the present edition are found texts in four languages, namely Old Norse, Old English, Old Saxon, and Old High German. All texts have been normalized according to my own orthography, which is based on two principles:

1. Faithfulness to the language at the time when the texts were written, and the distinctions found therein, without neglecting etymology.
2. Striving for a uniform orthography across the various treated idioms, where the same etymological sound is generally written with the same character.

Both of these choices entail disregarding local manuscript traditions and philological tradition, something I see as justified. My goal is to render the texts themselves in a manner that gives as much information to the reader as possible—not to present a facsimile edition for students of paleography. Anyway, such important traits of the original manuscript tradition as the long f, arbitrary punctuation, arbitrary spelling, and lack of line breaks, are seldom reproduced in modern editions of Old Germanic poetry.

Normalization of Old Norse

The orthography is inspired by Finnur Jónsson (1932) in that it strives for a more archaic form than that of the surviving mss., one that instead represents the poetry as it may (in many cases, must) originally have looked. For this reason, it often has more in common with the proposed orthography of the First Grammatical Treatise than with the standard Old Icelandic orthography seen in most editions. The following list describes the differences from the standard Old Icelandic orthography:

1. I distinguish short e (from etymological short e) and short ɛ (from etymological short a + i-umlaut).
2. I distinguish long á and ǫ́, as done by the First Grammatical Treatise.
3. I use ó and é rather than the traditional œ and æ, to represent the vowels descended from Proto-Norse ō and ā after i-umlaut (cf. the short ø, ɛ < o, a + i-umlaut).
4. I distinguish long nasal â, ê, ï, ô, û from long oral á, é, í, ó, ú, as done in the First Grammatical Treatise.

5. I restore the old s—which in modern Scandinavian and even in most Old Norse manuscripts has become r, but which is found consistently in old manuscripts such as AM 237 a fol (c. 1150), and fossilized in forms like þaz (i.e. þat's) in R—in the words es ‘which, that, where, when’, and in inflections of vesa (later vera) such as es ‘is’ (3rd sg. pres. ind.) and vas (3rd sg. pret. ind.). The following forms retain the r, as it is there the result of Verner’s law, and not of this (much younger) sound change: the pl. pres. ind. (erum etc.), the pl. pret. ind. (vórum etc.), and the pl. pret. subj. (vérir etc.)
6. When metrically benefactor, I contract ek ‘I’, eru ‘are’, and es ‘which; is’ to 'k, 'ru and 's, respectively.
7. I use Finnur Jónsson (1932)’s way of distinguishing between the relative particle es and the verb es: the first is appended to the previous word with only an apostrophe (e.g. bann's ‘he who’), while the second is separated by a space (e.g. bann s ‘he is’).

Normalization of Old Swedish and Danish

I employ the same conventions as those described for Old Norse above, including the marking of u-mutated a > ø (that this was indeed found in the Eastern Nordic dialects is most clearly seen by the third-person personal pronoun, which shows u-mutation in such forms as Swedish bonom ‘him’ < bónum, bon ‘she’ < bón). Where diphthongs have been contracted into monophthongs, these are marked with a circumflex accent, giving ô < au, ęy and ê < ei. Where unstressed vowels have been reduced into an e-like sound, this is written with ę.

Normalization of Old English

I write fronted or brightened etymological a and á with æ and ǣ, for instance in dæg ‘day’ and rǣd ‘advice, counsel’. These are contrasted with ę and ǣ, which represent i-mutated a and á.

An assimilated n is marked with an overpoint, as in rule 4 of the Old Norse orthography described above.

Normalization of Old Saxon

Normalization of Old High German

About the English translation

Why another translation of this poetry?

Previous English translations of Old Germanic poetry, especially of the Poetic Edda, mostly fall into two camps: (1) poetic translations, which need to change the exact meaning of the text for the sake of meter, and (2) prose translations, which do not at all follow the style of the original. Both types of translation also tend toward the following inadequacies: obscuring or glossing over difficult technical and cultural terminology; rendering identically repeated phrases and words differently at various places; and simplifying or rewriting kennings and other poetic expressions. Even worse this is often done with little in the way of notes or commentary, to a point where the reader is sometimes left entirely in the dark over the actual meaning of the original text.

What sets this translation apart from previous English translations, then, is that it aims to follow the style and feel of the original as close as possible, without sacrificing the sense of the words themselves. This unfortunately means that literality and consistency at times must come at the cost of fluent idiomatic English, but it has the advantage of giving the reader an image of what the original text actually says, and how it says it. It also reminds the reader that they are in a very foreign land; that they are reading words ancient and long forgotten—not the New York Times.

But perhaps someone will call this a pointless effort; a translation is always a betrayal, and those who are truly interested in the exact meaning and placement of every word in the original text should just study the original text in the original language! To this I say: certainly all sufficiently interested readers should study the original texts in the languages in which they were written, and the present edition in fact allows them to do this, by presenting the English translation side-by-side with the originals. Still, this is a hard thing to ask of all readers, many of whom will not be linguists or philologists, but rather students and scholars of history, comparative mythology and religion, anthropology, and literature; along with people with a general non-academic historical or religious interest; and those who are, for whatever reason, interested in exploring an interesting and—in some ways—very foreign literature.

One of the most idiosyncratic parts of the present edition will be its handling of proper nouns. I have opted to render all cultural and religious terms, names of places, heroes, gods, and other entities by their English cognates (thus Thunder for Old Norse Þórr) and where such do not exist, their philologically expected English (English) forms (e.g. wallow for Old Norse vǫlva). One reason for this is ideological. I believe that these myths and poems are a common Germanic or Northern European heritage, and should be treated as such. The English once knew gods such as Woden and Thunder, and called them by names naturally evolved in their language. So too did the Germans and Scandinavians, of course, and I would hope that any translators into those languages would follow this spirit and render the names in their natural forms there as well.¹ Another is philological. Forms like Odin and Thor are, while now commonly accepted, debased. They do not even represent the Old Norse pronunciation as accurate as would be possible (for instance, Odin would be better anglicized as Othin; the dental fricative still survives in English!), and many are difficult for English speakers to pronounce. I shudder when hearing a word like ǫsir pronounced /aɪ'sɪr:/

¹For instance in German perhaps Wuten, Donner, Froh, in Swedish Oden, Tor, Frö.

Mythic Poetry

The Spae of the Wallow

(Völuspó)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.865)–early C11th (0.121)

Meter: Firnwörðslaw

The Spae of the Wallow is the most comprehensive mythological text surviving from Heathen times.

The poem is attested in full in two independent recensions. The first is R, where it is the first poem, found on folios 1r–3r. The second is H, where it is found at 20r–21r in the middle of a large collection of saws and Catholics works. Many verses are also cited in Ylfr, large parts of which are directly based on the poem. Other verses are not attested directly, but are instead paraphrased. The paraphrases may still have critical value (so e.g. st. 19, where sal in the paraphrase corroborates H). For its constituent manuscripts see the General Introduction.

As seen from the title, the poem is a spae^C (spó ‘prophecy’) in the form of a monologue spoken by a wallow^C (völva ‘seeress, sibyl, prophetess’), summoned by Woden in order to relate mythological knowledge. The motif of Woden journeying to ask beings (whether ettins or wallows) is also seen in other sources. Closest is Bdr, wherein Woden summons a wallow out of her grave in Hell^L in order to understand why the god Balder^P is having ominous nightmares. There is also Webth, wherein Woden challenges the wise ettin Webthrithner^P to a wisdom contest and defeats him. These journeys are also alluded to in Hbl 43–46.

In its being a mythic catalogue it also resembles the latter part of Hgh, Grmn, Sdr and Alw, though it differs from them in a key way: it gives a (mostly?) complete chronological overview of the whole mythic timeline, from the creation to the end and rebirth of the world. That is not to say that the events are clearly described; they are related in a highly allusive fashion—certainly presupposing that the audience already be familiar with them. There may also be gaps and later inserts that make the poem more difficult.

The poem begins with a bid for silence (1), and the wallow recalling her earliest memories (2). She then recounts the ordering of the world by the gods (3–6) and the golden age of peace and plenty (7–8), which is, however, interrupted by the intrusion of three unidentified ettin-maidens (8, and see note there). After this follow two verses about the shaping of the dwarfs (9–10), and then several originally separate dwarf-tallies (11–15), which are without doubt later inserts. Returning to the main narrative thread is described the creation and endowment of the first man and woman (16–17), Ugdrassle's Ash (18), and the three norns^G living under it (19).

This is where the two full recensions of the poem diverge. Because of its older age and larger count of verses I have here followed the order of R: the wallow recalls how a woman named Goldwey was sacrificed and reborn three times (20), and how she, under the name Heath, practiced sorcery and witchcraft (21). She then recalls the first war in the world, between the Eese and Wanes (22–23), and alludes to the slaying of the smith, who according to Yilv 42 was promised Frow^P and the sun and moon in exchange for building the wall of Osyard (24–25). This is followed by a cryptic verse describing Homedall's hidden silence or hearing (26).

In H the structure is quite different. After the description of the norns (19), the Eese go to decide what action to take regarding the promising of Frow to the ettin (my 24–25), and Homedall's hearing is described (26). Then follows the two verses about the old hag in Ironwood who raises the wolves that will swallow the sun and moon (40–41). After this come verses 20–23 in the same order as R (see above).

To illustrate the differences between mss., and which verses are attested in which, I have prepared the following table showing the order of stanzas by manuscript, compared to the present edition. As several stanzas in G are quoted on their own, with little relation to the order of the original poem, they are simply marked with plus signs. When stanzas are quoted in sequence, they are preceded by an alphabetically incrementing letter denoting which sequence they belong to. When a stanza found in a ms. differs majorly from the pres. ed. (e.g. st. 10 where G omits the first two half-lines), it is marked with a star. The stanzas beginning with Þá gingu regin öll 'Then went the Reins all' are represented by the half-line immediately following.

“For hearing I ask all holy kindreds, greater and lesser, sons of Homedall¹ [MEN]! Wilt thou, O Walfather (= Weden), that I well count forth the ancient tidings of men, those which I foremost recall?²

1 hęlgar | om. R

2 męiri ok minni ‘greater and lesser’ | It is unclear what is being modified by these adjectives. It may either be ‘greater and lesser holy kindreds’, in which case it may be equivalent to the phrase Eese and Elves^F (both earthly and heavenly supernatural beings; see Encyclopedia for occurrences.) or ‘the greater and lesser sons of Homedall [MEN]’, in which case it refers to all social classes. It seems rather out of character for such a high ranking person in Norse society as the poet must have been to invoke an ancestral relationship between human social classes, considering how biologically such distinctions were otherwise regarded (cf. my introduction to the Rígh), but on the other hand this may be part of the likely liminal nature of the performance. In any case, the wallow is clearly asking all intelligent beings that may be present for silence, and the expression is a merism of the type ‘gods and men’; see West (2007)[99-100].

¹Cf. Rígh, wherein Rígh, identified by the prose as Homedall, sires three castes of men (namely earls, churls and thralls).

²Cf. Webth 34, 35 with very similar phrasing. The whole introductory formula is positively Indo-European, see West (2007)[63,92-93,312].

I recall Ettins^G, born of yore, they who formerly had nourished me. Nine Homes^C I recall; nine Inwithies^G; the renowned Metwood^P beneath the soil.³

3 iðiðjur | so all. R has previously been as read íviðið, but this was disproven by an x-ray scan undertaken by Stefan Karlsson (1979).

³Certainly Ugdrassle^P, “beneath the soil” likely referring to it still being a seed.

⁴According to Yilv 4–5 the world first consisted of two extremities: Nivelham in the north, from which the freezing venom-rivers called the Ilevaves^L ran until they froze to ice; and Muspellsham in the south, from which sparking lava flowed. The ice and lava met in the Gap of Ginnings^L (Ginnungagap; see Encyclopedia), “which was as calm as windless air”, and there combined to form the first being, Yimer^P, who was the ancestor of the ettins. For the creation see also Weibh 20–21, Grmn 41–42.

[R 1r/8, H 20r/5]

before the sons of Byre^P lifted the flatlands, they who shaped the renowned Middenyard^L.
 Sun shone from the south on the stones of the hall;
 then was the ground grown with green leek.

1 Burs synir ‘the sons of Byre’ | In Yilv 6 identified as Weden, Will and Wigh. They “lifted” the earth (apparently both land and water, as in st. 3 there is no sea) out of the primordial chasm.

4 grónum lauki ‘green leek’ | The leek had great cultural significance in the North. A fine example is Guth II 2, where Siward’s superiority to the Yivickings is compared to a stag among wild beasts, gold among silver and a green leek in grass. The leek was also valued for its magical use, as seen already on C5th–6th bracteates where it appears as a charm word in the form ᚠᚠᚠᚠᚠ laukar, in one inscription paired with ᚠᚠᚠ lína ‘linen’. Later attestations of magic use include Sdr TODO, where the leek is to be used along with runes to prevent mead from being poisoned, and the WalsTb, where the eponymous worshipped horse-penis is lini góddr • en laukum studdr ‘endowed with linen and supported by leeks’. The leek has a particular association with women; women-kennings frequently have the leek as a determinant (TODO: Meissner reference?), and Anon Sveinfl 1 (Skp I TODO.) sarcastically states that a battle was not sem manni • męr lauk eða ęl bęri ‘as if a maiden brought a man leek or ale’.

Sun cast from the south—the companion of Moon^P—her right hand over heaven’s rim;⁵

2 of himin-jǫður ‘over heaven’s rim’ | Composite reading; of himin ęiodyrę ‘over the heaven-horse-deer(?)’ R is both nonsensical and unmetrical and must be rejected; of iǫður ‘over the rim’ H is unmetrical, lacking alliteration and being too short.

1 sinni Mána ‘the companion of Moon’ | At times translated as ‘its moon’. This cannot be correct, as máni ‘moon’ is masculine, while sinni, dative singular of sinn ‘its (reflexive)’ is feminine.

⁵The sun heaved herself up over the horizon and rose for the first time.

5b Sól þat né vissi, · hvar hön sali átti;

[R 1r/12, H 20r/7, G]

Sun knew not where halls she owned;
 stars knew not where steads they owned;
 Moon knew not what sort of might he owned.

4 stjörnur ... óttu | In G this line follows 5, so that the order is sun, moon, stars.

5 Máni ... átti ‘Moon ... owned’ | The moon was believed to have supernatural powers; see note to High TODO (Mána skal heiptum kveða).

6 Þá gingu rēgin ǫll · á røk-stóla,

[R 1r/13, H 20r/9]

Then went the Reins all onto the rake-seats:
 the yin-holy Gods, and from each other took counsel of this.
 To night and the moon-phases names did they give;
 morning they called, and middle day;
 afternoon and evening, the years for to tally.

1–2 Þá ... gēttusk ‘Then ... of this.’ | A formulaic expression for the convening of the Thing^C of the Gods (for which see Encyclopedia: All Gods^G), identically repeated below in sts. 9/1–2, 22/1–2, and 24/1–2. Cf. also the three lines shared between Bdr 1/1–3 and Thrim 14/1–3, which follow the structure of the present stanza(s) very closely: Senn vǫru ǣsir · allir á þingi // ok ósynjur · allar á máli, // ok umb þat rēðu · ríkir tívar: ‘Soon were the Eese^G all at the Thing^C, // and the Ossens^G all at speech, // and of this counseled the mighty Tews^G’. In all five occurrences other than the present stanza (three from Wsp, the present poem, one from Bdr, one from Thrim), the demonstrative pronoun þat ‘this’ clearly refers to the matter at hand, expressed with the verb in the subjunctive case (e.g. in Thrim 14/3–4: ok umb þat rēðu · ríkir tívar: // hvé þeir Hlórriða · hamar of sótti? ‘and of this counseled the mighty Tews^G: How they Lorde’s (= Thunder’s) hammer would find?’). Following this pattern we would surely expect to find two lines after umb þat gēttusk ‘took counsel of this’ and before nōtt ‘night’ in the present stanza, and it seems most likely to presume that they have simply been lost in transmission.

1 røk-stóla ‘rake-seats’ | Their seats of judgment at the assembly.

3–5 Nōtt ... tēlja ‘To night ... tally’ | Cf. Webth 23, where it is said that the sun and moon turn round in heaven ǫldum at ár-tali ‘for the year-tally of mankind’, and 25, where it is said that the Reins created the moon-phases for the same purpose.

[R 1r/16, H 20r/10]

The Eese found each other on Idewolds^L, they who harrow^C and hove^C high-timbered;

 tongs they shaped and tools they made.

2 þęir's ... hę-timbruðu 'they who ... timbered' | afls kostuðu · alls freistuðu '[their] strength they tried; everything they tempted' H

2 þęir's ... hę-timbruðu 'they who ... timbered' | Two formulæ. hęrg ok hof 'harrow and hove' is a merism referring to ritual structures and is also found (in reverse order) in Webth 38 and HHarw TODO, as well as in Norwegian Christian laws that mandate 'the burning of hoves and the breaking of harrows' (brenna hof ok brjóta hęrga). hę-timbra 'high-timber, timber high' is a rare poetic compound, and only occurs once elsewhere in the entire corpus, namely in Grmn 16 where it describes a harrow ruled by Nearth. — It is rather interesting that the Gods themselves build ritual structures.

- 8 Tęflðu i tųni, · tętitir vęru,

[R 1r/18, H 20r/12]

They played Tavel^C in the yards; merry were they:
 for them was nothing golden wanting⁶—until three did come, maidens of Thurses^G, very unnatural out of Ettinham^L.⁷

4 ám-átkar 'unnatural' | This word (nom. sg. ám-átigr) has a clear supernatural connotation, and only occurs in four other places in R: Grmn 11, Shir 10, HHarw 17 and HHarw 14. In the first three it modifies jętunn 'ettin', while in the fourth it describes a man with clearly supernatural attributes.

⁶Indeed, even the gaming bricks were made out of gold; cf. st. 59.

⁷These three maidens are never mentioned again (unless they are taken to be the norms in st. 19, but they would then be introduced twice). It's possible that an additional verse would have come after this one, giving further information about them, but if it did, it was already lost in the version employed by the author of Yřlv who transparently paraphrases (ch. 14):

Ok því nęst smíðuðu þęir málrm ok stein ok trę ok svá gnóg-liga þann málrm, er gull heitir, at ęll bús-gogn ok ęll reiði-gogn hęfðu þęir af gulli, ok er sú ęld kęlluð gull-aldr, áör en spilltist af til-kvámu kvinnanna; þęr kómu ór Jętun-beimum.

'And just after this they smithed metal and stone and wood, and so abundantly [did they smith] that metal which is called gold, that all their house-tools and riding-tools were golden, and that age is called the golden age, before it was spoiled by the arrival of the women; they came out of Ettinham.'

after which he describes the creation of the dwarfs (see next stanza).

[R 1r/20, H 20r/14, G]

Then went the Reins all onto the rake-seats:
 the yin-holy Gods, and from each other took counsel of this:
 Who would shape the retinue of Dwarfs^G, out of the bloody surf and out of the blue-black legs?

3 Hvęrr skyldi dverga ‘Who would ... of dwarfs’ | so RWU; at skyldi dverga ‘That they would ... of dwarfs’ ST; buerir skyldu dvergar ‘Which dwarfs would [shape the retinues]’ H 3 drótt ‘the retinue’ | so G; drotin ‘the lord’ or ‘the retinue’ (with late clitic definite) R; dróttir ‘the retinues’ H 3 of skępja ‘shape’ | spekja ‘soothe’ U 4 brimi blóðgu ‘bloody surf’ | so HSWU; Brimis blóði ‘the blood of Brimmer’ RT 4 blǫum ‘blue-black’ | metr. emend. from blám R; Bláins ‘Blown’s’ HW; Bláms STU is prob. a corrupt form of Bláins

4 ór brimi ... leggjum ‘out of the bloody ... legs’ | I think that the poem simply telling of “the bloody surf” and “the blue-black legs” fits better with its general allusive style, but the resulting composite reading may be somewhat controversial.

According to Yilv 14 the dwarfs first originated as maggots in the corpse of Yimer, whose bones are described in Grmn TODO and Webth TODO as being used to make rocks. Dwarfs dwell in the rocks and earth; cf. for instance IngT 2, where the Swedish king Swayther (Sveigðir) disappears into a rock in pursuit of a dwarf. More difficult to explain is the creation of dwarfs out of Yimer’s blood (which according to Grmn TODO and Webth TODO is the sea), since dwarfs are never said to dwell in water. — If one chooses the reading Bláinn ‘Blown’ (named in the thules^C as a dwarf) instead of blǫum ‘blue-black’, then following Gurevich (Skp 2017, p. 693) one may see a kenning “the legs of Blown <dwarf> [STONE]”. Blown has otherwise been read as a poetic name for Yimer, but that is never attested elsewhere.

- 10 Þar vas Móðsognir · mętstr of orðinn
 2 dverga allra, · en Durinn annarr;
 þęir man-líkun · mǫrg of gęrðu,
 4 dvergar i jǫrðu, · sęm Durinn sagði.

[R 1r/21, H 20r/15, G]

There was Moodsowner made the worthiest of all dwarfs, but Dorn [was] second.
 They man-likenesses many did make:
 dwarfs in the earth, as Dorn said.

1 Þar vas Móðsognir | so H; Þar fmoðsognir vitnirf ‘there Mootsowner wolf(?)’ R. The prose of Yilv 14 agrees with H that the correct form of the name is Móðsognir, not Mótsognir. 3 þęir ... gęrðu ‘They ... did make’ | so RHU; þar man-líkun · mǫrg of gęrðusk ‘There man-likenesses many were made’ STW 4 i ‘in’ | so GH; ór ‘out of’ R 4 sęm Durinn sagði ‘as Dorn said’ | so RHSW; sem fđur mennf sagði ‘as door-men(?) said’ T; sem fþeim dyrinn kendif ‘as the beasts(?) taught them’ U

1–2 þar ... annarr ‘There ... second’ | om. G, but the author must have had the full verse, since he paraphrases these lines in the following way: Móðsognir var ęðstr ok annarr Durinn. ‘Moodsowner was the highest in rank, and Dorn the second.’ before citing

3–4 þęir ... sagði ‘They ... said.’ | There are two conflicting interpretations of the creation of the dwarfs. Either they arose on their own; this is supported by the prose of Yǫlv (see note to previous st.) and by the form of the stanza quoted there (but it may have been changed to correspond to the author’s vision). On the other hand, both R and H have the dwarfs Moodsowner and Dorn shaping “man-likenesses” out of soil. The present edition follows the second version.

Sts. 11–15 contain two originally separate lists of dwarfs. That they are separate is seen by the repetition of names (Oakenshield, Great-grandfather), and their having their own conclusions.

Sts. 11–13, having no repeated names, seem to belong together. If they do, st. 12, which contains the formulaic conclusion to the list, should probably switch places with 13.

Sts. 14–15 form the second group, having an introduction and a conclusion which both mention the dwarf Loffer.

3 þeir | þeim H

⁹Cf. Yilv 14: “But these came from Swornshigh (Svarinsbaugr) to the Earwongs on the Erwolds, and thence Lofer is come; these are their names: Sherper (Skirpir), Werper (Virpir), Showfind, Great-grandfather, Elf and Ing (Ingi), Oakenshield, Fale (Falr), Frost, Finn, Ginner.”

¹⁰Two archaic formulæ. The first literally ‘that will ever [be] up above’, cf. HarS TODO: “We two are cursed, brother, thy bane am I become! That will ever be remembered (þat mun é uppi, but both mss. þat mun enn uppi), evil is the doom of the norns!” The second is found in a runic inscription, U 323 (980–1015): “Ever will lie—while the age lives (meþ + altr + lifir með aldr lifir)—the hard-hammered bridge, broad, after a good man.” An especially close parallel is found in Þstf Stuttodr (st. 5, Kari Ellen Gade ed. in SkP II): Ey mun uppi · Eñdils, meðan stendr // sól-borgar salr, · svgr-gōðis fgr. ‘Always will be remembered—while the hall of the sun’s stronghold [SKY/HEAVEN > EARTH] stands—the journey of the fattener of Andle’s bird [RAVEN/EAGLE > WARRIOR].’

[R 1v/1, H 20r/26]

Until three came out of that host:
 strong and lovely Eese along the settlement;
 they found on land the little availing
 Ash and Emble, orlay^C-less.¹²

1 þrír | gramm. emend.; þrjár RH 1 ór því liði | þussa brúðir ‘brides of thurses’ H is probably corrupt due to the influence of st. 8; the adjectives in l. 2 are in the masculine. 2 qflgir ok ástkir ‘strong and lovely’ | ástkir ok qflgir (norm.) ‘lovely and strong’ H

1 Unds ‘Until’ | We seem to be missing a preceding sentence here which would have completed the semantics; it was probably contained in a now-lost stanza. What this st. would have contained is of course impossible to know, but it may have given a reason for why the gods needed to create men.

2 at húsi ‘along the settlement’ | An adverbial, lit. ‘along the house’; the gods were not walking in the wilderness.

¹²This verse is paraphrased in Yilv 9: Þá er þeir gengu með sévar-ströndu Bors synir, fundu þeir tré tvau ok tóku upp trén ok sköpuðu af menn. Gaf inn fyrsti qnd ok líf, annarr vit ok bréring, þriði á-sjónu, mál ok beyrn ok sjón, gáfu þeim klæði ok ngfn. Hét karl-maðrinn Ask, en konan Embla, ok ólst þaðan af mann-kindin, sú er byggðin var gefinn undir Mið-garði. ‘When the sons of Byre (cf. st. 4) walked along the sea-shore they found two trees and they took up the trees and shaped men from them. The first one gave breath (qnd) and life, the second wit and movement, the third sight, speech, appearance and sight; they gave them clothes and names. The male was called Ash, and the woman Emble, and from them mankind was begotten, to whom were given the dwelling within Middenyard.’

The ON cognate of tree, tré, can also mean ‘pieces of wood’, and it is traditionally seen as referring to pieces of driftwood. Yet as pointed out by Hultgård (2006) the comparative evidence suggests that the two were in fact living, growing trees (they would thus be part of the foliage described in st. 4) and there is nothing in the sources that speaks against this.

While Ash is easily identified with the same-named wood species (Fraxinus excelsior), the etymology of Emble is much more difficult. The shaping of men from trees is used by poets in various kennings for men and women, especially in scoldic poetry (for a short discussion see SkP I, p. lxxv ff.). While this is rarer in the Eddic corpus it does occur, e.g. in Sdr 4: brynþings apaldr ‘apple-tree of the byrnie-Thing^C [BATTLE > WARRIOR].’

¹³i.e. 'white mud is (or has been) poured upon it.' Possibly relevant is the Indian ritual pouring of beverages onto the phallic lingam (though the good Nikhil S. Dwibhashyam denies that this goes back to the Vedic period, and so it may be unrelated). For the whole passage cf. st. 26.

Thence come maidens, much knowing:
 three out of that hall which stands under the fir [Ugdrassle's Ash]:
 Weird they called one, the other Werthing —carved they on boards—Schild the third.
 Laws they laid, lives they chose:
 for the children of mortals, the orlay^C of youths.¹⁴

2 sal ‘hall’ | so H, G (paraphrase); sé ‘lake’ R 2 und ‘under’ | á ‘on’ H 6 seggja ‘of youths’ | at segga ‘to say’ H

2 þolli ‘fir’ | Here simply meaning ‘tree’ and used only for the alliteration. Perhaps the same applies for askr ‘ash’ in the phrase askr Ygg-drasils ‘Ugdrassle’s Ash’, with its species not being as fixed to the ancients as it has now become?

¹⁴i.e. ‘they have carved on boards, they have laid laws, they have chosen lives’. It is well known that in Old Norse as in other old Germanic languages the simple past can have both perfective and imperfective sense. — This st. is paraphrased in Ylfr 15: Þar stendr salr einn fagr undir askinum við brunninn, ok ór þeim sal koma þrjár meyjar, þær er svá beita: Urðr, Verðandi, Skuld. Þessar meyjar skapa mönnum aldr; þær kólum vér nornir. ‘There is a single fair hall beneath the ash-tree by the well, and out of that hall come three maidens, who are called thus: Weird, Werthing, Shild. These maidens shape the ages of men (formulaic! TODO.); we call them norns.’

¹⁵While reading folk-víg as ‘ethnic conflict’ (between the Eese and Wanes) is appealing, I more cautiously read the first element folk as carrying its earlier, more common sense of ‘troop, group of warriors’.

¹⁶Very cryptic. TODO: double check Snorri. Goldwey was apparently sacrificed, cremated and reborn three times (in short succession?) by the Eese.

 that was yet a troop-conflict [WAR] earlier in the Home^L.
 Broken was the board-wall²⁰ of the fortress of the Eese;
 the Waness did by a conflict-spae^C tread the fields.²¹

2 fyrr 'earlier' | so H; fyrst 'first' R. The R reading cannot be correct as this st. is describing a different war, and thus not the first. It has probably arisen due to the similarity with st. 20/1.

¹⁹The object, a spear, is understood. This seems to reference a ritual, well-attested in the literature, wherein a war-chief would dedicate an opposing army as a human sacrifice to Weden by throwing a spear over them, typically with the incantation Óðinn á yðr alla 'Weden owns you all!'; he would then own the battle-slain in that they joined him as Onecharriers^G in Walhall^L. Weden is also described as "owning" dead men in Hbl 24 (namely slain nobles, contrasted with Thunder^P who is insultingly said to "own the kin of thralls") and in runic inscription N B380 (edited below under Galders), a sort of greeting wherein the receiver is wished to be owned by Weden (and "received" by Thunder). For further literature see PCRN HS II:24, p. 560, II:25, p. 617, and especially III:42, p. 1166ff.

She saw Walkirries^G, widely come,
 ready to ride to Godthede^L:
 Shild held a shield, but Shagle another,
 Guth, Hild, Gandle and Goreshagle—now are tallied the Nannies of Harn (= Weden), ready to ride the ground, walkirries.

3–6 Skuld ... val-kyrjur Shild | Judging especially by the out-of-place phrase nú eru talðar ‘now are tallied’, these four lines seem to be a later insert from a thule^C counting the walkirries.

5 Nōnnur Hērjans ‘Nannies of Harn (= Weden) [WALKIRRIES]’ | Nanna ‘Nanny’^P (the name itself is a nursing word) was the wife of Balder^P, but the word is here certainly being used to refer generically to ‘maidens, women’. A similar kenning is found in the thule listing female divinities (Þul Ásynja in SkP III), where the walkirries are called Óðins meyjar ‘Weden’s maidens’.

Told allusively in Wsp 31–33 is the myth about the Balder’s death at the hands of his blind brother Hath, and the revenge killing of Hath by his half-brother Wonnell, who was specifically begotten for that purpose. The other important sources for this myth are Bdr 8–11, the detailed description in Yilv 49, and Saxo Grammaticus (III.4.1–8).

The account and language of Bdr 8–11 is strikingly similar to the present sts. (and Bdr 11/2–4 is near-identical to Wsp 32/4–33/2), and they give only one detail not found in the present sts., namely that Wonnell, the slayer of Hath, was born from a woman named Rind “in the western halls”.

Yilv 49 contains a much longer and more detailed narrative. It may be shortly summarised as follows: After Balder has terrible nightmares about dying, his mother Frie makes all sorts of things (fire, water, venom, metals, stones, trees, diseases, beasts, etc.) swear oaths not to harm him. Since Balder is now practically unharmable, the Eese make sport out of shooting and striking him. Lock is annoyed by this game, and in disguise as a woman, he finds out from Frie that a single thing did not swear the oath: the mistletoe, since it was thought too young. Lock grabs a mistletoe and gives it to the blind god Hath, telling him where to shoot. Hath does so, and Balder dies.

Yilv 49 continues with the rest of the narrative, namely the failed attempt by the Eese at “crying Balder out of hell” (for which see Eddic Fragments in the present volume) and Balder’s funeral (which is treated poetically in Wolf Ugson’s fragmentary House-drape, ÚlfrU Húsdrip in SkP III.) For the revenge taken by the Eese on Lock, treated in Yilv 50, see st. 34 below.

A very notable omission in Yilv 49–50 is the slaying of Hath by his half-brother Wonnell. This brother-slaying may have been left out for moral reasons, but was certainly known to the author, as seen by Yilv 30, which reads in full: Áli eða Váli heitir einn, sonr Óðins ok Rindar. Hann er djarfi

í orrostum ok mjök happ-skeytr. ‘Onnel or Wonnell one is called, the son of Weden and Rind. He is brave in battles and a very lucky shot’, and by Scold 19, where we find the following relevant kennings for Wonnell (with case changed from the acc. to the nom. for clarity): sonr Óðins ok Rindar ‘son of Weden and Rind’ and hefni-áss Baldrs, dólgr Haðar ok bani hans ‘avenging os^C of Balder; the enemy of Hath and his bane’.

The revenge narrative is also dealt with by Saxo (III.4.1–8) in his typical euhemerized form (for Saxo’s Latin forms of relevant names see respective Encyclopedia entries): Weden learned from the Finnish wizard Horsethief that Rind, daughter of the Russian king, Weden (who could not murder his own son) seduced the woman Rind (in the by Cormac Awmundson’s TODO: seið Yggr til rindar), who gave birth to Wonnell.

[R 2r/2]

I saw Balder’s—the bloody victim’s, Weden’s child’s—orlay^C sealed;³⁰

a slender and very fair mistletoe.

1 tífur ‘victim’s’ | This word is rather difficult (and possibly corrupt). It may be connected with týr ‘tew, god’, but I see two problems with this. First, the dat. sg. of týr is tívi and the intrusive r is hard to explain. Second, although it must have at some point been used in the singular in the generic sense ‘god’, and this survives in compounds like Sig-týr ‘Victory-tew (= Weden)’ and in the plural tívar ‘tews; gods’, in the ON corpus the simplex form týr exclusively refers to the god Tew^C. I follow CV, who connect it with OE tiber, tifer ‘victim, hostage’, but this also has problems: As seen by blóðgum the present word is certainly masculine, but tiber is neuter. Assuming a nom. sg. tífurr with the same declension as jöfurr, we would expect tífri* in the dat. sg., not tífur (which would however be the expected acc. sg.).

³⁰Or ‘hidden’. The verb fela ‘hide, conceal’ is used in poetry to describe burial in mounds, as in IngT 24 (“[...] And afterwards the victory-havers hid (fǫlu) the ruler on Borrey.”) or the C10th Karlevi stone (“Hidden (fulkin fólgin) in this mound lies he whom the greatest deeds followed; [...]”)

The follow sts. are paraphrased in Yilv ch. 52:

Þá mēlti Gangleri: „Hvat verðr þá eptir, er brenndr er himinn ok jörð ok heimr allr, ok dauð goðin öll ok allir Einherjar ok alt mann-folk, ok hafið ér áðr sagt, at hverr maðr skal lifa í nokkvörum heimi um allar aldir?“

Þá svarar Þriði: „Margar eru þá vistir góðar ok margar illar; batst er þá at vera á Gimléi á himni, ok all-gótt er til góðs drykkjar þeim, er þat þykkir gaman, í þeim sal, er Brimir heitir; hann stendr ok á himni. Sá er ok góðr salr, er stendr á Niða-fjollum, gorr af rauðu gulli; sá heitir Sindri. Í þessum solum skulu byggja góðir menn ok sið-látir.

Á Ná-ströndum er mikill salr ok illr ok borfa norðr dyrr; hann er ok ofinn allr orma-bryggjum sem vanda-hús, en orma höfuð öll vitu inn í húsit ok blása eitri, svá at eptir salnum renna eittr-ár, ok vaða þér ár eið-rofar ok morð-vargar, svá sem hér segir:“

‘Then spoke Gangler: “What will then be afterwards, when heaven and earth and all the world is burned, and dead are the gods and all Oneharriers and all man-kind—and ye have said earlier, that each man will live in some world for all ages?”

Then answers Third: “Many good dwellings are there then, and many bad: it is then best to be on Gimlee in heaven, and it is all-good with good drink, for those who find that pleasurable, in the hall which is called Brimmer; it also stands on heaven. That one is also a good hall which stands on the Nithfells, made of red gold; it is called Sinder. In these halls good and well-mannered men will dwell.

On Neestrand is a great and bad hall, and the doors face north. It is all woven with the spines of serpents like a wicker-house, but the heads of the serpents all face into the house and blow venom, so that along the hall run venom-rivers, and in those rivers wade oath-breakers and murder-wargs, as is said here:”

after which are quoted sts. 37 and 38/1–2, followed by the prose: En í Hver-gelmi er verst ‘But in Wharyelmer is is worst’ and 38/4.

³³In this st. is clearly described watery punishment in the Heathen afterlife, also seen in Rein 3–4 and possibly in Grmn 21. The crimes are what one might expect from the Germanic worldview: perjury, shameful murder, and adultery with a married woman. In Anglo-Saxon and Nordic laws the committer of such crimes gained the title of nothing^C, that is, one afflicted with nithe^C (severe shame). It is not surprising then that such nithings would be tortured by a creature named Nithehewer ‘Nithe-striker’. The practice of burying in bogs and flood-marks (or generally outside of settlements) is well attested in sources about Germanic culture from Taciti Germania onwards—I consider it likely that the heavy streams in this stanza and others represent such graves. This is further elaborated on in GermanicGems2<empty citation>.

In the east³⁴ dwells the old woman, in Ironwood^L, and nourishes there the kindreds of Fenrer^P [WOLVES];
from them all comes one most particular:
a seizer of the Moon in a troll’s hame^C.³⁵

1 býr ‘dwells’ | so HG; sat ‘sat/stayed’ R 1 aldna ‘old’ | arma ‘wretched’ U 1 Éarn-viði ‘Ironwood’ | metr. emend.; Járnviði RHSWU; Járn-viðjum ‘Ironwoods’ T 2 fœðir ‘nourishes’ | so HG; fœddi ‘nourished’ R 3 af | ór TS 4 tjúgari ‘seizer’ | þtuigan† T; tregari ‘griever’ U. As the young agentive suffix -ari is found nowhere else in the poem it is possible that this word is corrupt. If it is, it must have occurred early in the transmission, as reflexes of tjúgari* are found in all surviving mss.

³⁴The cardinal direction associated with Ettinham, which is presumably where Ironwood is located.

³⁵The old hag raises the cubs of the wolf Fenrer, of which a particularly fierce one will swallow the moon. According to Grmn 40 the sun is chased by a wolf called Skoll, while another wolf, Hate Rothswitner’s son, runs in front of her. This is elaborated upon in Yilv 12, where it is said that Skoll swallows the moon, while Hate swallows the sun. High then explains that “A lone troll-woman (gygr) lives to the east of Middenyard in that forest called Ironwood”, and “feeds the sons of many ettins, all in the likenesses of wolves, and thereof these wolves (i.e. Skoll and Hate) come. And it is also said that from that lineage a single one becomes the mightiest, and he is called Moongarm^P. He fills himself with the life of all those men who die and he swallows the moon and stains heaven and all the air with blood. Thereof the sun loses its rays and the winds are violent and moan hither and thither, and thus it says in the Spae of the Wallow: [...]” after which this and the following st. are quoted. This seems very much like a composite from several sources—probably Wsp 40–41 and Grmn 40—but becomes contradictory when it states that two wolves swallow the moon. Assuming that this is only a confusion on the part of the author of Yilv, this st. and the next must be describing Skoll, but it is of course not impossible that there was confusion about the exact details of these events among the Heathen poets. In favour of that seems to speak Weibth 46–47, where the sun is said to be swallowed by Fenrer (but see note there).

4 angan | angantyr R

⁴²That the first sorrow was the death of Balder (see sts. 31–33) is unanimously understood. Line is described in Yilv 35 as a minor goddess sett til gæzlu yfir þeim monnum, er Frigg vill forða við háska nokkurum ‘placed to watch over those men which Frie wishes to protect against any particular danger’. In spite of this, almost all translators and commentators have understood Line as here referring to Frie, or questioned whether her existence as a separate goddess is not a misunderstanding on the part of the author of Yilv. Hopkins (2017) argues excellently that this need not be the case; as a subordinate goddess of Frie, Line's two sorrows would be her failing to protect Balder and Weden (the son and husband of her mistress, respectively) from harm.

Now Garm barks much before the Gnip-halls;
the rope will tear and the Wolf [will] run.
She knows sundry wisdom, I foresee even more about the mighty Rakes of the Reins, of the victory-Tews [GODS].

The following stanzas are paraphrased in Ylfr ch. 53:

*Þá mælti Gangleri: „Hvært lifa nokkur goðin þá, eða er þá nokkur jörð eða himinn?“
Hárr segir: „Upp skýtr jörðunni þá ór senum, ok er þá grón ok fæg. Vaxa þá akrar ó-sánir. Viðarr ok Váli lifa, svá at eigi hefir sérinn ok Surta-logi grandat þeim, ok byggja ok hafa þar Mjöllni. Því nést koma þar Baldr ok Høðr frá Heljar, setjast þá allir samt, ok talast við, ok minnast á rúnar sínar, ok róða of tíðendi þau, er fyrrum höfðu verit, of Mið-garðs-orm ok um Fenris-úlf. Þá finna þeir í grasinu gull-töflur þær, er éirnir höfðu átt. Svá er sagt:“

“Then spoke Gangler: “Do any of the gods survive then, or is there any earth or heaven?” High says: “Then shoots the earth up from the seas, and is then green and fair. Then acres grow unsown. Wider and Wonnell live, as the sea and Surt’s flame has not wounded them, and they settle Idewolds, where Oyard once was, and there come the sons of Thunder, Mood and Main, and have there Millner. Thereafter come Balder and Hath from Hell, then all reconcile with each other and speak with each other and think back on their runes, and speak about the tidings which had once been: about the Middenyardswyrm and about the Fenrerswolf. Then they find in the grass those golden Tavel bricks which the Eese had owned. So it is said:”

after which is quoted Webb TODO.

The Dreams of Balder

(Baldrs draumar)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C9th (0.110)–C10th (0.890)

Meter: Firnwörðslaw

In ancient manuscripts only preserved in A, but the poem also survives in later manuscripts with a few extra stanzas (see below). It follows the structure of a riddle contest.

The poem begins in medias res; Balder^P has been having nightmares, and so the gods meet at the Thing to figure out why (1). Woden^P rides to Hell^L, where he has an encounter with a bloody dog (2). It barks for a long time at him, but he passes it and continues to “the high house of Hell^P” (3), from which he rides west, to the grave of a certain wallow^C, whom he revives using magic (4). She asks which man has forced her out of the grave (5), and Woden introduces himself as Waytame, before asking for whom the benches of Hell are covered with gold (6). The wallow responds that barrels of mead stand brewed for Balder and that the gods are very anxious (7). Woden asks her who will slay Balder (8), and she responds that it is Hath, carrying a “high fame-beam” (9). Woden then asks her who will avenge Balder’s death by slaying Hath (10). The wallow responds that Rind^P will give birth to Woden’s son Wonnell^P, who will slay Hath when only one night old (11). Woden then asks about some mysterious maidens (12; see Note), which betrays his identity. The wallow tells him that she now knows his true identity, to which Woden responds that he does as well: she is not a wallow, but rather the “mother of three thurses” (13). The wallow tells him to ride home and “be famous”; he must still die at the Rakes of the Reins^L (14).

⁵⁰The similarity in wording to the treatment of this myth in Wsp is striking; apart from the tense, ll. 2–4 here are near-identical to 32/4–33/2 there (for discussion on the narrative see introduction to Wsp 31–34). The irregularity of the stanza length might suggest that a line has been inserted in analogy with the aforementioned poem.

[Óðinn kvað:]

[Weden quoth:] “Shut not up, O wallow; thee I wish to ask!
 Until all is known I wish to know further:
 Which are the maidens that weep heartily,
 and onto heaven cast the front sheets?⁵¹”

⁵¹According to Yilv 49 Hell promised to give Balder back to the Eese if “all things in the world, living and dead, cry for him”. The Eese relayed this message, and “the men and the animals and the earth and the stones and trees and all metals” cried for Balder. It may be that these maidens were included among the grievors (perhaps they were the walkirries, and this is what reveals Weden's identity?), but their identity is otherwise unknown.

[A 2r/8]

[The wallow quoth:] “Thou art not Waytame as I thought, rather art thou Weden, the ancient Geat!”— [Weden quoth:] “Thou art no wallow^C nor wise woman, rather art thou the mother of three Thurses^{C!}”

- [Völva kvað:] 14 „Hæim rið Óðinn · ok hróðigr ves, 2 svá komi-t manna · meirr aptr á vit, es lauss Loki · líðr ór þondum
 4 ok ragna røk · rjúfendr koma.“

[A 2r/9]

[The wallow quoth:] “Ride home, O Weden, and be renowned!
 So may no other man come again to visit [me],
 when loose Lock slips out of his bonds, and [at] the Rakes of the Reins^P the rippers come!”

1 ok hróðigr ves ‘and be renowned’ | A sarcastic, taunting statement, the sense being: “Your fame, Weden, will not save you!”

4 rjúfendr ‘rippers’ | Presumably Surt and Lock with his children, as described in Wsp 40 ff. The verb rjúfa ‘CV: to break, rip up, break a hole in’ is used in the same context in the formulaic þá's rjúfask regin ‘when the Reins^G are ripped’ (Webb 52), unds (of) rjúfask regin ‘until the Reins are ripped’ (Grmn 4, Lock TODO and Sdr TODO). One might also compare the similar sounding (but not or only very distantly related) verb rifna ‘be riven, rent apart’ used in reference to the destruction of the world in Runic inscription Sö 154: Jprð sal rifna · ok upp-biminn ‘Earth shall be riven, and Up-heaven’, and Arn Hryn (in SkP II pp. 185–6, ll. 3/7–8, see also note there): meiri verði þinn an þeira · þrifnuðr allr, unds himinn rifnar. ‘greater than theirs may thy whole wealth be, until heaven is riven.’

The Speeches of the High One

(Hávamól)

Dating: See individual sections

Meter: Leed-meter, Galderlaw, Firnwordslaw

The Speeches of the High One is the second poem of R, which is the only medieval witness manuscript. Several sts. are however cited or alluded to in other places, such as Eyv Hák (TODO: formatting) 21 and FbrS TODO.

The poem before us does not very much seem like a single composition by one poet, but instead much more like a collection of scattered traditional poetry associated with the god Woden. It seems to contain at least two poems of practical life advice, two mythological narratives, scattered gnomic poetry about runes, and a list of galders. These various strands are united by their presumed speaker, namely Woden in His function as God of Wisdom.

Following previous authors, I identify the following strands, excepting various lone sts. that are probably later inserts. In the present edition each of the following is given a separate, short introduction:

1. 1–79 The Guest-strand; practical life advice, beginning with a guest arriving at a homestead
2. 81–90 Various scattered sts. of advice
3. 91–102 Woden's failed seduction of Billing's daughter
4. 103–110 Woden's obtaining of the Mead of Poetry
5. 111–137 The Speeches of Loddfathomer; Woden's advice to Loddfathomer
6. 138–146 The Rune-tally; various sts. relating to runes and their magical use
7. 146–165 The Leed-tally; Woden's listing of 18 galders

Two questions shortly arise: who was the redactor (i.e., the person who set these strands together, and gave the new work the title Háva mól), and what was his motive? While a detailed and sufficient answer will probably never be found, a careful reading of the final stanza, 165, gives us some clues. By its prayer-like blessing, which brings up the Heathen dichotomy between the Gods and Ettins (the friends and enemies of Mankind, respectively) and calls the contents of the poem (which include unambiguous Heathen ritual instructions) “very useful” (all-þorrf); and by its reference to the process of oral transmission, the whole poem in something resembling the current form must (it seems) have been put together no later than the early 11th century, in a pre-scribal, pre-monastic, Heathen context. (Iceland converted around year 1000, but people surely clung to the old traditions for some time longer.)

As seen by the emphasis on the usefulness of the poetry, the reason for this redaction was not strictly antiquarian, but foremost utilitarian; the redactor gathered an amount of traditional poetry he found useful (whether for its life-advice or mythology) into a single poem, which could then be learned by heart by anyone. In this he certainly achieved his goal. The Higb is by far the greatest surviving collection of pre-Christian Norse advice poetry, and has functioned like a Noah’s Ark—or Hoardmimer’s Wood—for that genre. Thus, those scattered stanzas which were not included by the redactor—and many must have existed—are now forever lost.

The Guest-strand (sts. 1–79)

The Guest-Strand (Old Norse: Gæsta-þátr) is one of the most interesting surviving works of Norse poetry. Sadly, its structure has been obscured by the insertion of unrelated sts. and by poor translations. My hope is to shed some light on the original coherence of the strand, while respecting the text as it appears in the manuscript. As I do not think it can do each stanza justice, and since there is not exactly a clear progression of themes, I will not here attempt a stanza-by-stanza summary of this strand. Rather, I will give some important observations and then let the reader read for himself.

The Strand is a piece of advice poetry, and takes its outset in a wanderer’s arriving as a guest at a Norse farmstead. It first (roughly sts. 1–4) discusses the mutual responsibilities between guest and host, and then moves on to broader human interactions, with a particular focus on alcohol, war, friendship and human wisdom. While there is some coherence and nice transitions are frequently employed in order to shift from one theme to another (e.g. between sts. 4 and 5, or 10 and 11), the poem is not clearly divided into sections, nor is there (after the very first stanzas) a linear progression from one theme to another.

At all turns the poem advises caution and shrewdness. A man should always carry his “manwit” (ON man-vit, a word somewhat analogous with the English “common sense”) with him; he should think before he speaks

The poem moves seamlessly between various parts of life. To do so the poet often employs transitions where a st. repeats the structure of the previous one, but with a new subject. This is particularly evident in sts. 4–5 and 10–11.

3 á bröndum 'on the fires' | Possibly referring a Norwegian folk custom, wherein a guest would sit down on the wood-pile outside of the door, waiting until being let in; see further TODO SOME ARTICLE on this custom. The speaker is announcing to the hosts (or "givers") that a guest, frozen, wet and tired, is currently sitting on the wood-pile, and ought to be let in.

4 síns of fręista frama 'tempt his furtherance' | i.e. try his luck; see how far he gets. The line is formulaic; cf. Weib 11, 13, 15, 17.

- 4 Vats es þörf · þęim's til verðar kómr, 2 þęrru ok þjóð-laðar,

góðs of óðis, • —ef sér geta mētti—
 4 orðs ok ǣndr-þøgu.

Of water there is need for the one who comes for a meal;
 of a towel and a hearty welcome;
 of a good reception—if he might get one—
 of speech, and silence in return.

1–4 ALL | There is a good train of thought throughout the st.: the guest must first wash and dry himself, and then be welcomed to sit and eat at the table. After the host has provided these amenities the responsibility shifts onto the guest, who must now speak.

The word ǣndr-þaga ‘silence in return’ leads a nice transition to the rest of the Strand, where proper social conduct (encompassed by the first word of the next stanza below, “wit”) will be discussed more broadly. One may note that the verb þegja ‘shut up, be silent’ (of which þaga*, which only appears in the present compound, is a derivative, formed in the same way as saga ‘saw, history, story’ to segja ‘say, speak’) and its derivative þegn ‘silence’ are frequently used by Scoldic poets to mark the very beginning of their works (e.g. Arn Magnr 1^{II}: þegi sēim-brotar ‘may gold-breakers [GENEROUS MEN] be silent’, Egill Berdr 1^V: hyggi ... til þagnar þinn lýðr ‘may thy retinue focus on silence’, Glúmr Gráf 1^I: biðjum vér þagnar ‘we ask for silence’).

 4 ok með snotrum sitr.

Of wit there is need for the one who widely roams;
 everything is easy at home.
 Into a laughing-stock turns he who nothing knows,
 and among the clever sits.

3 at auga-bragði ‘Into a laughing-stock’ | Idomatic. auga-bragð literally means ‘twinkling of an eye, moment’; the sense here is thus something like ‘a quick glance of derision’.

 4 sjaldan verðr víti vørum.
 því-at ó-brigðra vin • fēðr maðr aldri-gi,
 6 an man-vit mikít.

Of his thinking should man not be boastful,
 but rather guarding of his senses
 when sharp and silent he comes to a homestead; sudden harm seldom strikes the wary,
 for an unfickler friend man never gets than much manwit^C.

5 maðr ‘man’ | In R abbreviated with the rune ᚱ m “man”, the first of 45 such instances in the present poem. While Anglo-Saxon Latin-script mss. use several runes ideographically (e.g. ᚱ o for OE ōðel ‘homeland, patrimony’), there are (to my knowledge) no Scandinavian examples with runes other than ᚱ. The tradition of ideographic runes standing for their names is ancient and goes back to the time before Latin writing, as proven by the inscriptions from Stentofen (DR 357) and Ingelstad (Ög 43), which use the runes ᚳ j for ár ‘year, good harvest’ and ᚱ d for dagr ‘day’, respectively.

7 Hinn vari gęstr, • es til verðar kęmr,
2 þunnu hljóði þęgir;
ęrum hlýðir, • en augum skoðar,
4 svá nýsisk fróðra hęrr fyrir.

The wary guest—when for a meal he comes—shuts up and listens closely.
With ears he listens and with eyes he watches;
so looks each learned man ahead.

2 þunnu hljóði þęgir ‘shuts up and listens closely’ | lit. ‘shuts up with thin (i.e. attentive) listening’.

4 nýsisk ... fyrir ‘looks ... ahead’ | Verb underlying the noun for-njósn as found in Sdr 24.

8 Hinn es sęll, • es sér of getr
2 lof ok líkn-stafi;
ó-dęlla ’s við þat, • es ęiga skal
4 annars brjóstum í.

This one is blessed, who for himself does get praise and staves of liking.
It’s uneasy regarding that which one shall own in another man’s chest.

2 lof ok líkn-stafi ‘praise and staves of liking’ | líkn ‘liking’ is a very interesting word. It is defined by ONP as: ‘mercy, compassion, relief, comfort, help’. In the present poem its precise meaning seems to be something like ‘the state of being liked by your surroundings to the point where people are willing to help you out’. Cf. its two other occurrences in the present poem: sts. 120 and especially 123 (where it is likewise paired with lof ‘praise’).

9 Sá es sęll, • es sjalfr of á 2 lof ok vit meðan lifir;
því-at ill rōð • hęfr maðr opt þęgit
4 annars brjóstum ór.

That one is blessed, who himself does have praise and wits while he lives; for ill counsels has man oft taken out of another man’s chest.

A better burden bears man not on the road
than much manwit.
In an unknown place it seems better than wealth;
such is the destitute man's shelter.

A better burden bears man not on the road
than much manwit.
Worse way-provision he drags not along on the plain than a too great drink of ale.

It's not so good, as good they say,
ale for the sons of men;
for the less he knows, as the more he drinks,
man of his own senses.

Forgetfulness-heron is he called, who hovers over ale-feasts;
he robs man of his senses.
By that bird's feathers I was fettered in the yards of Guthlathe^P.

1 Ó·minnis-hegri ‘Forgetfulness-heron’ | Lit. “unmemory-heron”; a rather interesting personification of drunkenness as a hovering bird.

14 Qlr ek varð, · varð ofr-qlvi,
 2 at hins fróða Fjalars;
 því es qlðr batst, · at aptr of heimtir
 4 hværr sitt gæð gumi.

Drunk I became—I became the drunkest by far—at the learned Fealer’s [home].—
 That ale-feast is best, where every man gets back to his senses.

15 Þagalt ok hugalt · skyli þjóðans barn
 2 ok víg-djarft vesa;
 glaðr ok reifr · skyli gumna hværr,
 4 unds sinn bíðr bana.

Silent and thoughtful should the king’s child
 —and battle-bold—be.
 Glad and cheerful should every man be,
 until he suffer his bane.

16 Ó·snjallr maðr · hyggsk munu ey lifa,
 2 ef við víg varask;
 en elli gefr hönnum · engi frið,
 4 þótt hönnum gæirar gefi.

The unvalorous man thinks he will always live
 if he of war be wary;
 but old age gives him no peace,
 which yet spears would give him.⁵²

⁵²The unvalorous man might have been spared by the spears, but death will still find him through miserable old age. Since death is unavoidable it is better to live bravely, even if one risks dying in battle, than to live cowardly and die of sickness. This connects well to the ancient view of the ‘straw-death’ (TODO).

17 Kópir af-glapi, · es til kynnis kómr,
 2 þylsk hann umb eða þrumir;
 allt es sænn, · ef sylg of getr,

4 uppi 's þá gæð guma.

Gapes the oaf when to visit he comes;
he mumbles about or loiters.
All at once—if a sip he gets—exposed is the mind of the man.

18 Sá einn vëit, · es víða ratar
2 ok hëfr fþlð of farit, hverju gëði · stýrir gumna hverr,
4 sá es vitandi 's vits.

He alone knows, who widely roams,
and has journeyed much,
which sort of mind every man wields,
who is knowing of his wits.

2 hëfr fþlð of farit 'has journeyed much' | Cf. Webb 3, 44, et.c., where Weden repeats: Fþlð ek fór, · fþlð freistaða's, // fþlð ek reynda rëgin 'Much I journeyed, much I tried, much I tested the Reins'^G.

19 Haldi-t maðr á keri, · drekki þó at hófi mjöð,
2 mëli þarft eða þëgi;
ó·kynnis þess · váar þik ęngi maðr,
4 at gangir snimma at sofa.

Man ought not to hold onto the cask, but still drink mead in moderation;
he ought to speak the needful or shut up.
For that uncouthness will no man blame thee,
that thou go early to sleep.

1 Haldi-t maðr á keri 'Man ought not to hold onto the cask' | Perhaps referring to a toast wherein a drinking vessel would be passed around in a circle and each member would drink. Such toasts were drunk for a long time in Northern Europe—indeed this is the origin of the Scandinavian toasting-word, skål 'prosit, cheers!', lit. 'bowl!'. "Holding onto" the vessel (and not letting the next person drink) was surely seen as very rude; as late as 1519 a man in Jämtland was killed in an argument resulting from his refusal to pass on the bowl (see Sjöberg (1907)). The sense is thus: "Do not refuse a toast when offered (but do not drink too much, either!)"

2 mëli þarft eða þëgi 'he ought to speak the needful or shut up' | Formulaic, line occurs identically in Webb 10/2.

20 Gróðugr halr, · nema gëðs viti,
2 etr sér aldr-trega;
opt fër hlógis, · es með horskum kómr,
4 manni hëimskum magi.

The gluttonous man—unless he know his sense—eats himself a life-sorrow.
Oft the belly, when among the sharp he comes,
brings the foolish man ridicule.

21 Hjarðir þat vitu, • nér hęim skulu,
2 ok ganga þa af grasi;
en ó·sviðr maðr • kann ęva-gi
4 síns of mál maga.

Herds know when home they shall [go],
and then part from the grass;
but an unwise man never knows his own belly's measure.

22 Ve-sall maðr • ok illa skapi
2 hlér at hví-vetna;
hitt-ki hann vęit, • es vita þyrpti,
4 at hann es-a vamma vanr.

The wretched man and badly turned out laughs at anything.
This he knows not, which he might need to know:
that he is not free of blemishes.

4 hann es-a vamma vanr 'he is not free of blemishes' | Formulaic, cf. Lock 30: es-a þér vamma vant 'thou art not free of blemishes'.

23 Ó·sviðr maðr • vakir umb allar nętr
2 ok hyggr at hví-vetna;
þa es móðr, • es at morni kómr;
4 alt es víl sęm vas.

The unwise man is awake for all nights
and thinks of anything.
Then he is weary when the morning comes:
all the trouble is as it was.

24 Ó·snotr maðr • hyggr sér alla vesa
2 við-hléjęndr vini;
hitt-ki hann fíðr, • þótt of hann fār lesi,

4 ef með snotrum sitr.

The unclever man thinks all those who laugh with him his friends.
This he finds not, that they yet make sport in him,
if among the clever he sits.

25 ð·snotr maðr · hyggr sér alla vesa
2 við-hléjendr vini;
 þá þat fiðr · es at þingi kómr,
4 at á for-mélendr fáa.

The unclever man thinks all those
who laugh with him his friends.
Then he finds, when to the Thing^C he comes,
that he has spokesmen few.

4 á for-mélendr fáa 'has spokesmen few' | Repeated in st. 62. He has few who are ready to take his side and speak up for him (in legal proceedings); true friends are proven in hard times, not in drunken chatter. The Thing was the old Germanic legal assembly, where smaller disputes might easily turn into deadly feuds.

26 ð·snotr maðr · þykkisk allt vita,
2 ef á sér í vø veru;
 hitt-ki hann vëit, · hvat skal við kveða,
4 ef hans frëista firar.

The unclever man seems to know everything
if he takes shelter in a nook.
This he knows not, what he shall answer
if men test him.

2 vø 'nook' | From earlier *vrø; cf. Swedish vrå 'corner, nook', rare English wroo 'id.' The present stanza is to my knowledge the only Norse attestation of the form vø, which features a rare Western sound change from vr- to v-. The more common change vr- to r- yields rø, which is the normal Norse form. — Tangentially this word is brought up in FGT (1950) as an example of a word with nasal ø, and contrasted with oral ø in rø 'sailyard'.

27 ð·snotr maðr, · es með aldir kómr,
2 þat 's batst at hann þegi;
 engi þat vëit, · at hann ekki kann,
4 nema hann mēli til mart.
 vëit-a maðr, · hinn's vët-ki vëit,
6 þótt hann mēli til mart.

The unclever man when among people he comes,
 it's best that he shut up.
 No one knows that he nothing knows,
 unless he speak too much.
 The man knows not, who nothing knows,
 that he speak too much.

28 Fróðr sá þykkisk, · es fregna kann,
 2 ok segja hit sama,
 ey-vitu leyna · megu ýta synir
 4 því es gengr of guma.

Learned seems he who can ask and answer the same [way].
 In no way may the sons of men hide that which eludes a man.

1–2 fregna ... segja 'ask ... answer' | Perhaps specifically in the context of a riddling contest of wisdom.

29 Órna mēlir, · sá's éva þegir,
 2 stað-lausu stafi;
 hrað-mélt tunga, · nema haldendr eigi,
 4 opt sér ógótt of gēlr.

He who never shuts up speaks plenty many utterings of absurdity.
 A quick-spoken tongue—unless it be held in place—
 oft sings evil [into being] for itself.

3–4 hrað-mélt ... of gēlr 'A quick-spoken ... for itself' | Formulaic. Cf. Lock 31.

3 nema haldendr eigi 'unless it be held in place' | lit. 'unless holders own it' or 'unless it own holders'. The 'holders' are perhaps the teeth which hold the tongue in place.

30 At auga-bragði · skal-a maðr annan hafa,
 2 þótt til kynnis komi;
 margr fróðr þykkisk, · ef freginn es-at 4 ok nái þurr-fjallr þruma.

For a laughing-stock shall man not have another when he comes to visit.
 Many a one seems learned if he is not asked,
 and gets to loiter about dry-skinned.

4 þurr-fjallr ‘dry-skinned’ | i.e. ‘untested’, equivalent to the English idiom get one’s feet wet. The word fell -fjall ‘skin, pelt’ is rare in Old Norse literature and only occurs in cpds, e.g. Wagl 11: ber-fjall ‘bear-pelt’. It survives in modern Swedish fjäll ‘scale (on fish and reptiles)’

31 Fróðr þykkisk · sá’s flótta tēkr
 2 gēstr at gēst hēðinn;
 vēit-a gōrla · sá’s of verði glissir,
 4 þótt með grōmum glami.

Learned seems he who takes to flight,
 the guest, from a scoffing guest.
 He knows not clearly, who grins over the food,
 that he be flirting with fiends.

2 gēstr ‘guest’ | The situation hinted at in this and the following stanza is that two guests—unknown to each other—have come to the same homestead. The sense is that when mocked by a stranger it is best not to engage, since the dealing may quickly turn violent. Cf. sts. 122, 123, and 125.

32 Gumnar margir · erusk gagn-hollir,
 2 en at virði vrekask;
 aldar róg · þat mun é vesa;
 4 órir gēstr við gēst.

Many men are well true to each other,
 but over food drive each other away.
 The strife of mankind will that ever be;
 guest raves against guest.

33 Ár-liga verðar · skyli maðr opt fāa,
 2 nema til kynnis komi;
 sitr ok snópir, · léttr sēm solginn sé,
 4 ok kann fregna at fōu.

An early meal should man oft get,
 unless he come to visit:
 he sits and sulks, sounds as if starved,
 and can ask about little.

34 Af·hvarf mikit · es til ills vinar,
 2 þótt á brautu búi,
 en til góðs vinar · liggja gagn-vegir,
 4 þótt hann sé firr farinn.

A great detour it's to a bad friend,
although he on the highway live;
but to a good friend lie the finest ways,
although he far gone be.

35 Ganga skal, · skal-a gęstr vesa
2 ęy í ęinum stað;
 ljúfr verðr lęiðr, · ef lęngi sitr
4 annars fletjum á.

One shall go; he shall not be a guest forever in one place.
The loved becomes loathed if for long he sits on another man's benches.

1 skal | emend.; om. R

36 Bú es bętra, · þótt lítit sé,
2 halr es hęima hęrr;

4 þat 's þó bętra an bón.

A dwelling is better, though small it be;
each is a hero at home.
Though two goats he own, and a cord-roofed hall,
that is yet better than begging.

37 Bú es bętra, · þótt lítit sé,
2 halr es hęima hęrr;

4 sér í mál hvęrt matar.

A dwelling is better, though small it be;
each is a hero at home.
Bloody is the heart in the one who shall beg for his every meal of food.

man comes in need of a spear.

1 velli á 'on the plain' | Formulaic, see note to st. 12.

2 feti ganga framarr 'take one step further' | Formulaic. Cf. Lock 1: svá't ġinu-ġi fēti gangir framarr 'so that thou not take one step further'.

I found not a generous man or one so good of meat^C, that a gift were not accepted;
or one with his fee^C so not [...],
that the repayments were loathed, if he accepted [them].⁵³

1 matar góðan 'good of meat' | A Viking Age expression; see Encyclopedia.

3 [...] | It is doubtless that a word has been lost here; the meter and sense require it. Finnur Jónsson (1932) suggests glöggvan 'miserly, stingy', giving a litotes 'so unstingy', i.e., 'so generous'.

⁵³No man is so generous that he would refuse a gift presented to him, nor loathe receiving a favour as thanks for his generosity.

Of his own fee^C which he has earned should man not suffer need.
One oft saves for the loathed what one meant for the loved;
much goes worse than expected.

41 Vópnum ok vöðum · skulu vinir glęðjask;

With weapons and garments shall friends gladden each other;
that is best seen on oneself.

Givers-back and givers-again are friends for the longest if it comes to last long.

1 Vǫpnum ok vǫðum ‘With weapons and garments’ | i.e. weapons and armour (the “garments” are probably no silks); friends are supposed to help each other and strengthen their “violence capital”. This alliterative word-pair is formulaic and in other occurrences exclusively refers to implements of war; cf. e.g. Beow 39, where Shield’s pyre-ship is loaded with hilde-wǣpnum and beaðo-wædum ‘war-weapons and battle-garments’.

2 þat ’s á sjölfum sýnst ‘that is best seen on oneself’ | i.e. in one’s own experience.

4 þat ‘it’ | The friendship.

42 Vin sínum · skal maðr vinr vesa,
 2 ok gjalda gjøf við gjøf;
 hlátr við hlátri · skyli hǫlðar taka,
 4 en lausung við lygi.

With his friend shall man be a friend,
and pay gift against gift;
laughter against laughter should men employ,
but duplicity against lie.

43 Vin sínum · skal maðr vinr vesa,
 2 þeim ok þess vin;
 en ð·vinar síns · skyli engi maðr 4 vinar vinr vesa.

With his friend shall man be a friend,
with him and his friend;
but his enemy’s, should no man,
friend’s friend be.

44 Veitst, ef vin átt, · þann’s vël trúir
 2 ok vilt af hönnum gótt geta,
 gæði skalt við þann · ok gjøfum skipta,
 4 fara at finna opt.

Know, if thou have a friend, one on which thou well trust,
and wilt receive good from him:
thoughts and gifts shalt thou trade with him;
journey to find him oft.⁵⁴

⁵⁴Several lines of the present st. are shared with st. 119.

- 45 Ef þú átt annan, · þann's illa trúir,
 2 vilt af hönnum þó gótt geta, fagrt skalt mæla við þann, · en flátt hyggja
 4 ok gjalda lausung við lygi.

If thou have another, one on which thou badly trust,
 and wilt yet receive good from him:
 fairly shalt thou speak with him, but falsely think,
 and pay duplicity against lie.

3 fagrt ... mæla ... flátt hyggja 'fairly ... speak ... falsely think' | Formulaic, cf. sts. 90, 91.

- 46 Þat 's ęnn umb þann, · es þú illa trúir 2 ok þér es grunr at gęði, hléja skalt við þeim · ok of hug mæla;
 4 glík skulu gjöld gjofum.

It's yet regarding him which thou trustest badly,
 and whose intentions toward thee are suspect:
 thou shalt laugh with him and speak with care;
 repayments shall be equal to gifts.⁵⁵

⁵⁵Equivalent to the last line of the previous st. ("pay duplicity against lie").

- 47 Ungr vas'k forðum, · fór'k ęinn saman,
 2 þá varð'k villr vega;
 auðigr þóttumk, · es annan fann'k,
 4 maðr es manns gaman.

Young was I once; I travelled alone;
 then I became lost of ways.
 Wealthy I thought myself when another one I found;
 man is man's pleasure.

- 48 Mildir fróknir · męnn batst lifa,
 2 sjaldan sýt ala;
 en ó·snjallr maðr · uggir hvat-vetna,
 4 sýtir ę glöggr við gjofum.

Generous, brave men live best—seldom they nourish sorrow,
 but the unvalorous man is frightened by anything,
 the stingy always grieves over gifts.

3 ò·snjallr, glöggrr ‘unvalorous, stingy’ | Contrasting respectively with frókn, mildr ‘brave, generous’ in the first half of the stanza; very fine parallelism.

4 sýtir ... gjöfum ‘the stingy man ... gifts’ | Cf. st. 39. After receiving a gift, one was culturally obliged to give something back.

49 Váðir mínar · gaf’k velli at 2 tvæim tré-mönnum;
rekkar þat þóttusk, · es rípt höfðu;
4 nēiss es nōkkviðr halr.

My garments I gave, on the plain,
to two tree-men.
Champions they seemed when cloaks they had;
shameful is the naked hero.⁵⁶

⁵⁶One of the harder sts. in the poem. The probable sense is that “the clothes make the man” (or warrior): under expensive gear a thin tree-man might be lurking, and likewise even a mighty man (the choice of the word halr ‘hero, warrior’ (cf. sts. 36, 37) rather than the more neutral maðr ‘man, person’ is surely intentional) can never defend himself against a heavily armoured opponent. Without his arms, he becomes as vulnerable as the “tree-man” on the plain.

50 Hrørnar þoll, · sú’s stendr þorpi á,

Wilters the pine that stands on the yard;

So is the man who loves no man;
why shall he live for long?

51 Eldi heitari · brinnr með illum vinum
2 friðr fimm daga,
en þa sloknar, · es hinn sétti kómr,
4 ok versnar allr vin-skapr.

Hotter than fire burns love among bad friends,
for five days^C;
but then goes out when the sixth one comes,
and all the friendship worsens.

2 fimm daga ‘for five days’ | i.e. “for a week”, which was originally five days long. See also st. 74 and the Encyclopedia: five days^C.

- 52 Mikit ęitt · skal-a manni gefa;
 2 opt kaupir sér í lítlu lof,

 4 fekk ek mér fé-laga.

Much at once shall one not give a man;
 oft one buys oneself praise for little.
 With half a loaf and an awry cask
 I got myself a partner.

- 53 Lítilla sanda, · lítilla séva, 2 lítil eru gęð guma;
 því-at allir męnn · urðu-t jafn-spakir;
 4 hqlf es qlđ hvar.

Of small sands, of small seas:
 small are the senses of man.
 For all have not become evenly knowing;
 half is every man.

1 Lítilla sanda, · lítilla séva 'Of small sands, of small seas' | Probably a partitive genitive, the sense being that man's "horizons" are small; the universe will always be far greater than him.

3–4 því-at ... qlđ hvar. 'For ... every man.' | On the meaning of the second half of this stanza I find the view of Guðmundur Finnbogason (1929) most convincing; namely that every man has both strengths and weaknesses in terms of wisdom. As nobody can excel at everything, nobody is complete; every person is "half" (and it should be added that ON halfir has a more general sense of incompleteness than its English cognate). This interpretation fits particularly closely with sts. 71 and 132. — This stanza introduces several stanzas dealing with wisdom and foolishness.

- 54 Meðal-snotr · skyli manna hvęrr,
 2 ęva til snotr séi;
 þęim es fyrða · fęgrst at lifa,
 4 es vęl mart vitu.

Middle-clever should each man be;
 never too clever.
 For those men it's fairest to live,
 who know well enough.

- 55 Meðal-snotr · skyli manna hvęrr,
 2 ęva til snotr séi;
 snotrs manns hjarta · verður sjaldan glatt,
 4 ef sá 's al-snotr es á.

Middle-clever should each man be;
 never too clever.
 The clever man's heart is seldom glad,
 if its owner is all-clever.

56 Meðal-snotr · skyli manna hværr,
 2 ęva til snotr séi;
 ör·lög sín · viti ęngi maðr fyrir;
 4 þeim es sorga-lausastr sefi.

Middle-clever should each man be;
 never too clever.
 His own orlay^C ought no man to know ahead;
 his is the most sorrowless mind.

4 þeim es sorga-lausastr sefi. 'his is the most sorrowless mind.' | i.e. he who is ignorant of his fate. It is surely fitting that Woden should say this, having knowledge of the inevitable destruction of the world and himself (see Rakes of the Reins^C).

57 Brandr af brandi · brinnr unds brunninn es,
 2 funi kvęykisk af funa;
 maðr af manni · verðr at máli kuðr;
 4 en til dólscr af dul.

Fire by fire burns until it is burned [out];
 flame is quickened by flame.
 Man by man becomes known through speech,
 but the too hickish from his folly.

4 dólscr 'hickish' | Derived from an ablaut variant of dalr 'valley, dale' + -iskr '-ish', the sense being 'provincial, not having left his (home) valley'. Cf. the Icelandic tribal names like vatns-dólr and lang-dólr 'inhabitants of Vatns-dalr (Waterdale), Lang-dalr (Longdale)'.

58 Ár skal rísa, · sá's annars vill
 2 fé eða fjor hafa;
 sjaldan liggjandi ulfr · lęr of getr,
 4 né sofandi maðr sigr.

Early shall he rise who another man's fee^C or life will have.
 Seldom gets the lying wolf the thigh,
 nor the sleeping man victory.

⁴ þótt hann hafi-t góðan ‘although he has not a good one.’ | Finnur Jónsson (1932) considers this a late insert, and I agree. It seems that the inserter was not aware of the rules of the Leed-meter meter and interpreted the preceding c-verse (né hęsts in hęldr) as an a-verse of Firnwordslaw.

The two following sts. are written in opposite order in R, but a symbol at the start of each indicates that they should switch places.

62 Snapir ok gnápir, • es til sęvar kęmr, ² ęrn á aldinn mar;
 svá es maðr, • es með męrgum kęmr
⁴ ok á for-męlęndr fāa.

Snaps and stoops—when to the sea he comes—the eagle on the aged ocean.
 So is the man who among the many comes,
 and has spokesmen few.

⁴ á for-męlęndr fāa ‘has spokesmen few’ | Shared with st. 25.

63 Fregna ok sęgja • skal fróðra hęęrr,
² sá’s vill hęitinn horskr;
 ęinn vita • né annarr skal,
⁴ þjóð vęit ef þrír ’ru.

Ask and answer shall each learned man who wishes to be called sharp.
One shall know, another shall not;
 thirty know if there are three.

⁴ þjóð ‘thirty’ | lit. ‘people, nation’, the sense being “everbody”. For the translation “thirty” cf. Scold 82, a list of poetic expressions for various numerals: þjóð eru þrír tigr ‘a nation is thirty’ etc.

64 Ríki sitt • skyli ráð-snotra
² hęęrr í hófi hafa;
 þá þat finnr, • es með fróknum kęmr,
⁴ at ęngi es ęinna hvatastr.

His own power should each counsel-clever man use in moderation.

This he then finds when among the bold he comes—that none is the briskest of all.⁵⁷

3–4 þá ... çinna hvatastr ‘then ...briskest of all’ | Almost identical to Rein TODO/3–4, which however has flçirum ‘more men’ instead of fróknum ‘the bold’.

⁵⁷i.e., every man has his match.

65 Orða þçira, • es maðr qðrum sçgir,
2 opt hann gjöld of getr.

For those words which man says to another he oft gets recompense.

66 Mikils til snimma • kom’k í marga staði,
2 en til síð í suma;
q̅l vas drukkit, • sumt vas ò·lagat;
4 sjaldan hittir lçjðr í lið.

Much too early I came to many places,
and too late to some:
The ale was drunk up, some was unbrewed—seldom finds the loathed his place.⁵⁸

1 Mikils til ‘Much too’ | written as one word mikilsti R

⁵⁸i.e., “there are no wrong times, only wrong people”.

67 Hér ok hvar • myndi mér hçim of boðit,
2 ef þyrpta’k at mólun-gi mat,
eða tvau lçr hçngi • at hins tryggva vinar,
4 þar’s ek hafða çitt etit.

Here and there would I to a home be invited,
if at meal-time I needed no food;
or if two hams should hang at the trusty friend’s [home], where I had eaten one.⁵⁹

⁵⁹Not everyone is hospitable, especially with regards to food, which was scarce and closely watched among the Norse subsistence farmers. The poet notes that even a “trusty friend” (possibly sarcastic) would invite him over more often if he brought more food than he ate.

68 Ełdr es batstr • með ýta sonum

- 2 ok sólar sýn,
 heilyndi sitt, • ef maðr hafa náir,
 4 án við lqst at lifa.

Fire is best among the sons of men,
 and the sight of the sun;
 one's good health, if he manage to keep it—
 [and] living free from vice.

- 69 Es-at maðr alls ve-sall, • þótt sé illa heill, 2 sumr es af sonum sēll,
 sumr af frændum, • sumr af fé órnu,
 4 sumr af verkum vęl.

Man is not all unblessed, though he of poor health be:
 someone is blessed with sons;
 someone with kinsmen, someone with ample fee^C, someone with works done well.

1 ve-sall 'unblessed' | Or 'woe-blessed'. I have elsewhere translated this word as 'wretched', but have presently rendered it this way to show the etymological relationship. The second element in this compound is sēll, which lacks i-umlaut due to a shortening of the vowel before the umlaut became phonemic. The ancestral Proto-Norse forms would be sālir* and wajē-sālir*. Cf. ᚱᚢᚱᚰᚱᚱ wajē-marir 'infamous' on the Tjurkö bracteate, where the second element is the ancestor of ON męrr 'renowned, famous'; the expected descendant ve-marr* is not attested.

1 ve-sall 'unblessed' | I have chosen to translate sēll as 'blessed', but it is not a past participle and could also be rendered as 'lucky' or 'blissful'. It carries with it a certain sense of innateness that is very foreign to modern Western culture. Thus a king whose land experiences bountiful harvests (ár) is said to be ár-sēll 'blessed with harvests', while one whose kingdom is at peace (friðr) is said to be frið-sēll 'blessed with peace'. In this worldview the state of the realm is not—like we would think of them—due to uncontrollable environmental or political factors, but rather spring from the king himself (TODO: Reference PCRN chapter).

2 sonum ... frændum 'sons ... kinsmen' | Cf. st. 72 below, which stresses the importance of sons and kinsmen.

- 70 Bętra 's lifðum, • an séi ó·lifðum, 2 ęy getr kvikr kú;
 ęld sá'k upp brinna • auðgum manni fyr,
 4 en úti vas dauðr fyr durum.

It's better for the living than it may be for the unliving:
 always gets the quick a cow.
 A fire I saw burning high for a wealthy man,
 but outside he was dead before the doors.⁶⁰

1 an séi ó·lifðum 'than with the unliving' | emend.; ȝ ȝel lifðom R.

1 an séi ð·lifðom ‘than with the unliving’ | The reading of R, which would be normalized as ok sēl-lifðom ‘and for the blessed living’, is metrically defect since sēl- is strongly stressed and should carry alliteration. For the original form of the line we may instead cf. Fthm 30: Hvøtum ’s bētra · an sé ð·hvøtum ‘It’s better for the brisk than it may be for the unbrisk’. The corruption has probably happened in the following way: en* (younger form of an ‘than’) in the prototype was misinterpreted as en ‘and, but’ and copied as ɳ (the tironian et), while sēi ólyfðom* (probably with the words cramped together) became sēl lifðom.

2 ęy getr kvikr kú ‘always gets the quick a cow’ | i.e., “new opportunities always present themselves for the living”. A reference to the cattle-based economy (see also st. 76), the cow being used as a metonym: (cf. churchly English ‘the quick and the dead’, i.e. ‘the living and the dead’).

⁶⁰The fire is presumably the man’s funeral pyre, on which a considerable amount of his wealth has been spent; according to ibn Fadlan (TODO) two thirds of a dead chieftain’s estate was spent on his funeral. One notes the contrastive en ‘but’ and may understand it as follows: “I saw a lavish funeral held for a man, but he was still dead.” This interpretation is supported by the Hjgb 71 below, which expresses the same sentiment.

71 Haltr riðr hrossi, · hjqrð rekr handar vanr,
 2 daufr vegr ok dugir;
 blindr es bętri, · an bręnndr séi;
 4 nýtr mann-gi nás.

A halt man rides a horse; a handless drives a herd;
 a deaf fights and avails.
 Blind is better than be burned;
 no man has use for a corpse.

72 Sonr es bętri, · þótt sé sið of alinn
 2 ęptir ginginn guma;
 sjaldan bautar-stęinar · standa brautu nęr,
 4 nema ręisi niðr at nið.

A son is better, though he late be born after a passed-on man.
 Seldom beat-stones near the highway stand,
 save by kinsman for kinsman raised.

1 Sonr es bętri ‘A son is better’ | i.e. it is better for a man to have a son and heir than not, even if the father should die some time before he is born. The son can further his father’s lineage and memory (as exemplified by the raising of a “beat-stone”), and as the poet says, it is rare for a non-relative to do so.

3 bautar-stęinar ‘beat-stones’ | Large standing stones raised in memory of someone. Numerous such stones with runic inscriptions are known from migration period Norway, often near grave fields. Some hold only single personal names or short phrases, like the stone from Sunde in Sunnfjord, western Norway (signum KJ 90): ÞIMNXXETIY widugastir ‘Woodguest’, or the one from Bø in Rogaland, southwestern Norway (signum KJ 78): HTTBWFE HTTBH hnabdas hlaiwa ‘Naved’s grave’. Others hold longer inscriptions, like the one from Kjøllevik in Rogaland (signum KJ 75): HTMTTKFY MKNXXETTFWFT HTTBIMWXMFXNMHTT hadulaikaz ekhagustadaz hlaiwidomaguminino ‘Hathlac [lies here]. I, Haystald, buried my lad.’

- 73 Tveir 'ru eins herjar, • tunga es höfuðs bani;
 2 mér 's í heðin hvern • handar vëni.

Two are of one host: the tongue is the head's bane;
 in every cloak I expect a hand.

1–2 ALL | The whole st. fits poorly in context, and the metre and style are very out of place; it is probably a later insert.

1 Tveir 'ru eins herjar 'Two are of one host' | i.e. "the tongue and head belong to the same body (but the former often leads to the latter's demise)." — herjar is an inflected form of herra 'host, army', but its function is ambiguous; it can either be (1) the gen. sg., as adopted here, or (2) the nom. pl. 'harriers, raiders' (cf. ein-herjar 'Oneharriers^G') which would translate as "two are the destroyers of one", i.e. "the tongue and head often lead to the demise of the body".

1 tunga es höfuðs bani 'the tongue is the head's bane' | Formulaic or proverbial. Cf. the Old Swedish "Heathen Law", which describes how a duel should be conducted following an insult to a man's honour (my norm. and trans. following Löffler (1879)): Fallr þann orð haur givit—glópr orða verstr, tunga hovuð-bani—liggi i ú-gildum akri 'If he falls who has given the [insulting] word—an insult is the worst of words, the tongue the head-bane—may he lie in an unhallowed field.'

2 handar 'a hand' | i.e. a hand holding a dagger.

- 74 Nött verður fëginn, • sá's nesti trúir, 2 skammar 'ru skips ráar,
 hverf es haust-gríma;
 4 fjöld of viðrir • á fimm dögum,
 en meir á mánaði.

At night he rejoices, who trusts in his provisions;
 short are a ship's sailyards;
 shift is a stormy fall night.
 The weather changes much in five days^C;
 even more in a month.

2 skammar 'ru skips ráar 'short are a ship's sailyards' | TODO: Write about the varying interpretations (Finnur, Cleasby, Skp) of this line.

4 fimm dögum 'five days' | i.e. "in a week" (which was originally five days long), paralleling "month" in the next line. See note to st. 51 and Encyclopedia.

- 75 Vëit-a hinn, • es vëtki vëit,
 2 margr verður af aurum api;

 4 skyli-t þann vítká váar.

The one knows not, who nothing knows:
 many a man turns an ape^C from wealth.
 A man is wealthy, another not wealthy;
 one oughtn't to curse him for his woe.

2 af aurum ‘from wealth’ | emend. from meaningless †aflaðrom† R

2 margr verðr af aurum api ‘many a man turns an ape from wealth’ | Cf. Sun 34/4: margan hefr auðr apat ‘wealth has aped many a man’, which also lends support to the emendation.

Fee^C dies, kinsmen die, oneself dies the same [way];
 but a word-glory never dies,
 for whomever gets himself a good one.

1 fé ... frændr ‘Fee ... kinsmen’ | The import of this merism may be less clear to the modern reader. In the Germanic Iron Age farming society a man’s wealth was reckoned by how many heads of cattle (and the Norman loan-word cattle is itself the same word as capital) he owned (cf. st. 70 above, where “a cow” is used to express “an opportunity”), and his social power by the number of able male relatives ready to side with him in conflict (cf. st. 72 above and TODO: reference?). The meaning is thus: all your power will pass away, and so too must you, but if you leave a good reputation behind it can live on. For Indo-European poetic analogues, see West (2007, pp. 99 ff.).

It is likely that the original Guest-Strand ended here. The three following stanzas, especially the third, are poorly placed and seem like later inserts.

That is then proven, which thou learnest from the runes, those born of the Reins, those which the yin-Reins^G made,
 and the Fimble-Thyle (= Weden) painted.—
 Then he has it best, if he shuts up.⁶¹

1 rúnum ... regin-kunnum 'runes ... born of the Reins' | This expression also appears on the C4th–6th Noleby stone (in the acc. sg. rúnó ragina-kundó 'a rune born of the Reins'), which proves that the Eddic rune-magic is (at least in part) founded in oral tradition going back to the Heathen age. See also Encyclopedia rune^C.

2–3 þeim's ... Fimbul-þulr 'those which ... Fimble-Thyle' | Formulaic. Cf. st. 142 where these two lines occur almost identically, but in reverse order.

⁶¹This stanza, which deals with runic magic and shares expressions with sts. in the Rune-Tally section (beginning with st. 138 below), hardly fits in its current place. The last line with its shift in person is likely to be a later insert.

Scattered stanzas of practical advice.

These sts. are rather different, both in terms of meter and style.

In R the following two sts. come in the opposite order, but it seems probable from its Speech-meter meter and the dative case of the words that 89 should follow 87. On the other hand st. 88, with its Leed-meter meter and self-enclosed form seems a separate composition, and was probably inserted after 87 due to its first line (akri ár-sónum), which is also in the dative.

So is those women's love who falsely think like one rode an unshod horse on slippery ice—or in mad wind tacked a rudderless [ship], or a halt man should catch a reindeer on a thawing fell.

5 í þá-fjalli 'on a thawing fell' | i.e. in springtime, when the melting ice on the ground is most slippery.

Weden's failed seduction of Billing's daughter

The following sts. are united by their meter, Leed-meter (unlike most of the preceding sts., see introduction to them above), style and content. The strand begins with general maxims about love and relations between the sexes, before moving on to the narrative about Billing's daughter.

- 91 Bært nú mēli'k, · því-at bēði veyt'k, 2 brigðr es karla hugr konum, þà fęgrst mēlum, · es flást hyggjum;
 4 þat tēlir horska hugi.

Plainly I now speak, for I know both:
 fickle is men's thought towards women.
 We then speak fairest when we think falsest;
 that entraps sharp minds.

1 bēði 'both' | i.e. both sides, both sexes. The (male) poet declares that he will not attack the fair sex unfairly; he is also aware of men's faults.

3 fęgrst mēlum ... flást hyggjum 'speak fairest ... think falsest' | Formulaic. Cf. st. 45.

4 þat tēlir horska hugi 'that entraps sharp minds' | i.e., love (or sexual infatuation, the poet does not distinguish between them) can turn even wise men into foolish deceivers. Cf. Mbkv 20/1–2, which is probably partly based on this stanza: Ást-blindir 'ru seggir svá · sumir, at þykkja mjök fás gá; þannig verðr um man-söng mēlt: · marga hefr þat hyggna tēlt. 'Some men are so love-blind, that they seem to heed very little; // so it is said about love-song: many wise men has it entrapped.'

 he who will get a woman's love;
 praise the body of the bright girl;
 he gets, who woos.

1 Fagrt skal mēla 'Fairly shall speak' | Formulaic. Cf. st. 45.

4 sá fęr, es fríar 'he gets, who woos' | i.e., "he who courts her gets her".

- 93 Ástar firna · skyli ęngi maðr oft they seize the sharp when they seize not the foolish, the lust-fair hues.

4 lost-fagrir litir 'lust-fair hues' | i.e. a woman with countenance so beautiful that men cannot help but greatly lust after her.

- 94 Eý-vitar firna, · es maðr annan skal,

Billing's maiden I found on the beds,

 An earl's pleasure seemed me naught to be,

1 męy 'maiden' | i.e. unmarried (virgin) daughter.

[Billings mēr:] 98 „Auk nér aptni · skalt Óðinn koma, 2 ef vilt þér mēla man,
 allt eru ó·sköp, · nema ęin vitim
 4 slíkan lōst saman.“

[Billing's maiden:] “And by evening shalt thou, Woden, come,

99 Aptr ek hvarf · ok unna þóttumk

 4 gęð hęnnar allt ok gaman.

Back I turned—and thought myself in love—away from my wise will;
this I thought: that I would have her senses all, and pleasure.

2 vísun vilja frá ‘away from my wise will’ | i.e., “against my better judgment”; the wise choice would have been to walk away.

100 Svá kom'k nęst, · at hin nýta vas

So I came next, as the useful war-troop was all awake;
 with burning lights and with carried sticks;
 so a sad path was marked out for me.

1 nýta ‘useful’ | Sarcastic. Billing's daughter had apparently summoned a lynch mob.

3 bornum víði ‘carried sticks’ | lit. ‘carried wood’; the mob was armed with clubs.

4 víl-stígr ‘sad path’ | Ambiguous, referring either to the beating he would have received at the hands of the mob, or to his walk of shame away from the hall. The latter is perhaps more likely.

1 Auk nęr morni ‘And by morning’ | Mirroring the beginning of st. 97 above.

3 gręy ęitt ‘a lone bitch’ | The insult is clearly understood: Weden is being asked to make love to the dog, “this is all you get!”

3 góðu ‘good’ | Possibly not sarcastic, but rather referring to her chastity.

1 góð męr ‘good maiden’ | A formulaic expression; the “goodness” here refers to faithfulness and chastity. Cf. Shir 12, TODO.

Weden’s obtaining of the Mead of Poetry (104–110)

The intricate myth of how Weden came to own the Mead of Poetry is told more fully in Scold 5–6. That narrative goes as follows, with minor details left out: After the war between the Eese and Wanes, the two tribes of gods reconcile through spitting into a vat. Not wanting to discard this token of their truce, they instead create a man out of the spit, calling him Quasher^P; he is so wise that he can answer any question posed to him, and so travels around the world in order to share his wisdom with humans. Quasher eventually comes to the dwelling of two dwarfs, Fealer and Galer. They kill him and drain his blood into three vessels: two vats named Soon and Bothem, and a kettle named Woderearer^P. Through mixing the blood with honey they make a mead, with the power to turn anyone who drinks from it “a scold or man of learning (skald eða fróða-maðr)”. The dwarfs then lie to the Eese about the murder, telling them that Quasher drowned in his own wisdom. Some time later, the dwarfs murder an ettin named Gilling^P and his wife. Gilling’s son, Sutting^P, learns of this and prepares to drown the dwarfs. In exchange for their lives and as recompense for his father’s slaying, the dwarfs offer Sutting the “dear mead” (mjoðinn dýra; cf. here sts. 105 and 140). Sutting accepts the ransom and takes the mead home with him. He makes his daughter Guthlathe^P guard it. Some time later, Weden is out journeying, and finds nine thralls mowing hay. He sharpens their scythes with a special whetstone, and the mowing improves greatly. He then throws it in the air and the thralls shortly kill each other over it. By evening Weden comes to the owner of the thralls, Bigh, Sutting's brother. Bigh laments the death of his workmen, and so Weden, who calls himself Baleworker^P, offers to do the work of the thralls over the summer, in exchange for one drink of Sutting's mead. Bigh tells him that Sutting alone owns the mead, but that he will accompany Baleworker to Sutting to ask for the drink. The two arrive at Sutting, who as expected refuses to give any part of the mead away. Baleworker then tells Bigh that he will get to it anyway; he takes out the drill Rate^P, and tells Bigh to drill through the mountain, into the room where the mead is stored. Bigh first attempts to trick him by only drilling halfway, but eventually creates a narrow passage. Baleworker turns himself into a snake and crawls through it; as he does, Bigh tries to strike him the drill, but misses. After coming through, Baleworker sees Guthlathe watching over the mead. He goes on to sleep with her for three nights, after which she promises him three sips of the mead. With each sip he swallows the contents of one of the three vessels, so that all of the mead ends up in his belly. Having taken the mead, he dons his eagle-hame and flies away from the mountain. Sutting sees him, takes his own eagle-hame, and gives chase. The Eese see Weden in flight, and set out several large vat on the ground, into which Weden, still flying, spits out the mead. At this point Sutting has almost caught up with him, and so Weden "sends back" (senda aptr, usually interpreted being sent out from the anus) some of the mead, presumably into his face. This portion becomes the lot of foolish poets (skald-fjöfla blutr), while the rest of the mead is given to the Eese and to skilled poets (þeim mǫnnum, er yrkja kunnu 'those men who can compose [poetry]').

The core of this many-twisted myth is old. A close parallel is found in RV hymns 4.26–27. In these two hymns the soma plant (who in the Vedic mythology is not just the plant and its resulting drink, but also a god, perhaps somewhat like Quasher) is first held within "a hundred iron forts" (4.27.1c: śatām pūrah āyasīḥ) by the archer Kṛṣṇānu, before being stolen by a sweeping falcon. The falcon brings Soma to Manu, the ancestor of the Aryans and first sacrificer.

The resemblance to the last part of the Scold account should be obvious, but, notably, the detail of the falcon is not found in any of the sts. below. This shows that the narrative of Scold cannot be exclusively based on the sts. here below, but instead also relies on other, now-lost sources. This is also supported by the present sts. leaving out the narratives about Quasher, the two dwarfs, and Baye, along with some subtler narrative differences.

The order of the present sts. follows that of R, their main witness manuscript. The strand begins with some social advice (103), after which the narrative follows (104–110). It is narrated in the first person by Weden himself. The sts. do not tell the myth in chronological order and leave much up to the listener; they are surely composed for an audience that already knows the story. The following narrative details are given:

104. Weden visits Sutting's home, but does not receive a good reception.

105. Guthlate falls in love with Weden, and gives him a drink of the Mead.

106. Weden has to bore through the mountains with the drill Rate.

107. Weden has “bought [the Mead] well”; possibly a euphemistic reference to sleeping with Guthlathe for it.
108. Guthlathe indeed does sleep with Weden, though not expressly in exchange for the Mead.
109. The following day (bins bindra dags, see note to this word in the edited text below), a group of Rime-Thurses come to Weden’s hall, to ask him whether a Baleworker is among the Gods, or if he has been slain by Sutting.
110. Switching to the third person (which may indicate that this is his answer to the Rime-Thurses), Weden says that he “thinks” that Weden has sworn an oath, but that his words cannot be trusted. After the “simble” (i.e. drinking feast, banquet; probably referring to the drink of the Mead), Weden betrayed Sutting and made Guthlathe weep.

The underlying narrative seems to generally agree with that of Scold, but unlike its more transactional affair, we here find a stronger emphasis on Weden’s cruel betrayal of Guthlathe. A notable detail not found in Scold is Weden’s oath in st. 109. The content of the oath was most likely that Weden would marry Guthlathe, something supported by the language used (see note to st. 108: bins bindra dags). The recipient of the oath, which Weden clearly broke, was either Sutting or Guthlathe. That Weden swore it to Sutting, and thus asked him for Guthlathe’s hand in marriage, may be suggested by the description of Sutting as svikvinn ‘betrayed’ in st. 109. This view, however, has an internal narrative problem: in st. 103 Weden describes his interaction with Sutting as poor, and in st. 105 Weden is said to have had to bore through the mountains, but this may just have been to reach Sutting, rather than Guthlathe as in Scold. The recipient of the oath being Guthlathe would agree better with the Scold narrative, and Sutting’s betrayer would instead be her.

1–4 Vēl ... jaðar | Taken on its own this st. would be somewhat difficult, but in context the import is clear: Weden says that He has made good use of the Mead of Poetry by bringing it to earth, making poetry (and surely likewise other intellectual disciplines) available to men.

3 Óð-rórir ‘Woderear’ | One of the vessels in with the Mead of Poetry was held (see introduction to the present section above), here standing in for all the Mead.

4 jaðar ‘rim’ | metr. emend.; jaðar R has a long root-syllable, and does not fit grammatically.

 to ask for the High One’s counsel, in the High One’s hall.
 About Baleworker (= Weden) they asked, if he were come among the bonds [GODS], or if Sutting had slain him.

1 Hins hindra dags ‘The following day’ | This is the only occurrence of the comparative hindra ‘following, next’ in the Norse (i.e. ‘belonging to Norway and its colonies’) literature. The superlative hindstr ‘last, final’ does occur more often (e.g. indsta sinni ‘the last time’, with loss of the b-; see CV: bindri), and the possible derivative bindar-dags ‘day after tomorrow, two days after’ is found twice, both times in the GolL, chh. 37 and 266. If we, however, search in the broader Scandinavian sphere, we find in the Swedish provincial laws an exact equivalent of the present phrase, namely OSwe. bindra-dagher, a law-word referring specifically to the ‘day after the wedding’, used both on its own and in the expression bindra-dags gief ‘morning gift’. If this is indeed the sense in the present stanza, two interpretations are possible: it either (i) refers sarcastically to Weden’s sleeping with Guthlathe (as would be done on the wedding night), or (ii) means that Weden actually married, or promised to marry, Guthlathe. The latter interpretation may find support in st. 109, see notes there.

110 Baug-ęið Óðinn • hygg at unnit hafi,

 4 ok grótta Gunn-lǫðu.

A high-oath^C I ween that Weden has sworn—how shall one trust his truces?

Away from the simble^C he left Sutting, betrayed, and Guthlathe, brought to tears.

1–4 Baug-ęið ... Gunn-lęðu ‘A high-oath ... brought to tears’TM | The exact narrative referred to in the stanza is hard to pin down, but I find the following most likely: Weden swore an oath on a high, its contents being that he would marry Guthlathe. Sutting then hosted a simble (banquet, drinking feast) for the new couple (cf. bins bindra dags in st. 108), and Weden slept with her, but after. svikvinn ‘betrayed’ and gróttu ‘brought to tears’ are (respectively masc. and fem.) acc. sg. past participles of the transitive verbs svikva ‘to betray’ and gróta ‘to make weep, bring to tears’. I read lét as meaning ‘left, abandoned, forsook’.

The Speeches of Loddfathomer

Loddfáfnis mól. Advice addressed to Loddfathomer, an otherwise unknown figure. In R stanza 111 begins with a large initial M in the margin, although smaller than those which introduce new chapters and poems.

in the High One’s hall,

I heard them say so:⁶³

⁶³The speaker, describing himself as a thyle (þulr ‘sage, chanter of memorized poetry’), says that he will relate what he has heard said in Walhall. Considering the location, it seems almost certain that the giver of this advice was its owner, Weden^P. The receiver of the advice, Loddfathomer^P (see Encyclopedia for etymologies), is otherwise unknown.

1 Ofar-la 'Sorely' | Contraction of ofar-liga 'CV: high up, in the upper part', presumably meaning that the words were particularly grievous or insulting, i.e., they "got to him". Whether he was murdered or committed suicide is not clear.

3 flá-rðð tunga 'a false-counseling tongue' | Cf. Lock 31/1: flō 's þér tunga 'false is thy tongue'.

1–2 því-at ... geta 'For ... praise' | Cf. st. 117/6–7.

4 líkn-fastan 'steadfast in liking' | The first element líkn 'liking' is somewhat difficult; see sts. 8 (with note) and 120. For the present cpd La Farge and Tucker (1992) give a tentative 'assured of favour', while CV gives 'fast in goodwill, beloved'.

4 þrimr orðum 'With three words' | i.e. 'not even with three words'. If one understands orð to mean 'speech', it may be interpreted as that if one says something (the first speech) to which another man responds insultingly (the second speech), one should not respond a third time and turn it into a fight.

⁶⁶i.e. "if somebody puts a curse on you, do not ignore it, but respond decisively". This st. has often been interpreted as a command to call out evil, even when committed towards somebody else, and while there is nothing in it that speaks clearly against that interpretation, it does not agree with the general spirit of the High, which is one of caution and shrewdness.

La Farge and Tucker (1992) instead explain the word as a borrowing from Old Irish geilt ‘insane, mad’. Pettit (1986) follows this, and argues that the whole theme of the st. probably be of Celtic origin, giving several examples from Celtic literature of warriors going mad upon looking up into the sky during battle. In this case the men (halir, which word seems to have an association with warriors; cf. 36–37, 49) would be to quote Pettit some sort of “supernatural sky warriors”, in my opinion most likely the Onecharriers^G.

⁴ gaman-rúnum ‘pleasure-runes’ | While easily interpreted as ‘sexual intercourse’, the word is used in st. 120 with a decidedly non-sexual meaning. Its base meaning is probably ‘good, light-hearted conversation’.

 bearded rye against hernia; in feuds shall one invoke Moon;
 heather against bite-sicknesses, and runes^C against a bale^C; ⁷⁰ fold [EARTH] shall one employ against flood.

7 heiptum skal Mána kvęðja 'in feuds shall one hail Moon' | Cf. Wsp 5 which mentions the "Moon's might"; for which He is presumably here invoked. For kvęðja, here "hail", cf. Lock P3.

The Rune-Tally

This group of stanzas is introduced by a large initial in R, marking the beginning of a new section. In younger paper manuscripts they have the header Rúna-tals þáttur 'Strand of the Rune-Tally', and generally give an archaic, mystic impression; at times one gets a feeling that they were drawn from the lips of an Odinic priest.

Apart from these stanzas there are a few other instances of similar Runic magic. Closest at hand is st. 80 above, which would fit seamlessly into the present section. Outside of High there is Sdr 4–16, also preserved in R.

138 Vei't'k at ek hekk · vindga meiði à

 4 sjalfr sjölfum mér,

 6 hvers af rótum rinnr.

I know that I hung on the windy beam,
 for nine nights all;
 wounded by spear and given to Weden—myself to myself—
 on that beam, which no man knows, of whose roots it runs.

139 Við hlëifi mik sóldu-t · né við horni-gi;
 2 nýsta ek niðr, · nam'k upp rúnar, ópandi nam, · fell'k apr þaðan.

With loaf they relieved me not, nor with any horn.
 I peered down, I took up the runes, screaming I took; I fell back thence.

1 hlëifi ... horni-gi 'loaf ... horn' | i.e. "I was given neither food nor drink".

140 Fimbul-ljóð níu · nam'k af hinum frégja syni
 2 Bólþorns, Bestlu fǫður, ok ek drykk of gat · hins dýra mjaðar
 4 ausinn Óð-róri.

Nine fimble-leeds^C I learned from the famous son of Balethorn^P, Bestle^P's father—and a drink I got, of that dear mead poured [from] Woderear^P.⁷¹

⁷¹This st. fits poorly here and seems like an insert. It mentions ljóð 'leeds; (magical) songs, incantations' rather than runes, and has nothing to do with Weden's hanging on the tree. Bestle was Weden's mother and Balethorn his maternal grandfather. The famous son of Balethorn would then be his maternal uncle. The custom of sending sons away to be fostered by their maternal uncles or grandfathers (which seems to be what is going on here) was quite common in Germanic society, cf. TODO.

141 Þá nam'k frévas̥k · ok fróðr vesa
 2 ok vaxa ok vęl hafask;

 4 verk mér af verki verks.

Then I began to flourish, and be learned,
 and grow and have it well.
 My word from a word a word sought out;
 my work from a work a work.⁷²

1 nam'k frévas̥k 'I took to thrive' | A notorious mistranslation (TODO: source) has rendered these words as 'I took semen', seeing in them a reference to Woden taking the seed from hanged men in order to replenish his own powers, something never attested elsewhere. This notion, surely based on the word frę 'seed', has no philological grounding. frévas̥k is wo. doubt a reflexive verb, and regardless frę is used of plant seeds, not ejaculate.

⁷²Each good speech and deed quickly led to another.

6 ragna 'of the Reins' | 'ręgna' R

1 Rúnar ... ok ráðna stafi | Formulaic. Cf. the long-line on the medieval runestone N 13 (excerpt): rúnar ek ríst · ok ráðna stafi 'runes I carve, and interpreted staves'.

⁴ ek 'I' | The identity of the speaker is unclear; one would expect it to be Weden, but He is already named in line 1.

144 Vēitst, hvé rísta skal? · Vēitst, hvé ráða skal?
 2 Vēitst, hvé fáa skal? · Vēitst, hvé frēista skal?

Knowest thou how one shall carve? Knowest thou how one shall read?
 Knowest thou how one shall paint? Knowest thou how one shall try?
 Knowest thou how one shall bid? Knowest thou how one shall blood^C?
 Knowest thou one shall send? Knowest thou how one shall soo^C?^{73,74}

⁷³A neat semantic structure would be found if the former four verbs referred to runes^C: carving, interpreting, painting (with blood?), and divining; and the latter four referred to sacrifice: asking for boons, worshipping, sending (the sacrifice or the prayer; making sure the gods receive it), and slaying the victim. This may be supported by the following stanza, which repeats the last four verbs here in what looks like a sacrificial context. See further relevant Encyclopedia entries.

⁷⁴The meter of this st. is unusual, but bears some resemblance to Vg 216 (the Högstena galder). TODO: Elaborate.

145 Bętra 's ó·beðit · an sé of·blótít,

It's better unbid than overblooded^C;
 a gift always sees repayment.
 It's better unsent than oversooed^C;
 [...].⁷⁵

⁴ [...] | It is very likely that a line has been lost here.

⁷⁵An identical progression of four verbs suggests a close relation with the previous st. — The sense seems to be that it is better not to sacrifice at all than to sacrifice in excess, since even a small gift (to the gods) will be rewarded. A ritual cycle of gifts and rewards between men and the gods is also seen in other Indo-European pagan literatures. Compare the Sanskrit Debī me, dádaṃi te 'Give to me, I give to thee' and Latin dō ut dēs 'I give that thou might give'.

⁷⁶TODO: A very cryptic st.

The Leed-Tally (147–165)

This section of High, the so-called the Leed-Tally (Ljóðatal), is not separated from the preceding section (which is marked out with a large initial), but is usually taken as separate since it is a unified whole not much concerned with runes. The speaker (certainly Weden) recounts eighteen spells, aristocratic and Odinic in character; they deal with such things as healing (spell 2, 12), battle (3, 4, 5, 8, 11, 13), countering sorcery (6, 10), stilling the elements (7, 9), and seduction (16, 17).

In particular the fourth spell bears a strong likeness to the first Merseburg charm.

147 Ljóð þau kann'k, · es kann-at þjóðans kona

I know the third, if I come in great need of hindrance against my feud-lads [ENEMIES];
 I dull the edges of my opponents;
 for them bite not weapons nor staffs.

⁴ vǣlir ‘staffs’ | plural of vǣlir, a magic staff used by witches and warlocks. The word vǣlva ‘wallow^C’ (seeress, prophetess) derives from this word. The reading vǣlir ‘wiles, tricks, deceits’ must be excluded for metrical reasons since a Leed-meter c-verse cannot end in a trochée.

I know the sixth, if athane wounds me on the roots of a raw/sappy tree:
that man who sings hatred against me,

1–2 ef ... viðar ‘if ... tree’ | i.e., “if someone carves a runic curse direct against me into the roots of a sapling”. Cf. Sbir 32 where a brár viðr ‘raw/sappy tree’ also occurs in the context of a curse; carving a curse into such wood was apparently thought to strengthen its effect.

2 rás ‘raw/sappy’ | The expected form is brár* (cf. Sbir 32), but alliteration with rótum makes it impossible.

153 Þat kann’k sjaunda, • ef sé’k hóvan loga
2 sal of sess-mögum,

4 þann kann’k galdr at gala.

I know the seventh, if I see a high hall blazing over seat-lads [WARRIORS]:
it burns not so broadly that I may not save it⁷⁹—that galder I can gale.

⁷⁹i.e. “if I see a hall burning with men trapped inside, no matter how large the flame is I can save both the hall and the men.”

154 Þat kann’k átta, • es qllum es useful to learn:

wherever hatred grows among a prince’s sons,
it I may shortly mend.

3 hatr ‘hatred’ | i.e. with regard to the father’s inheritance.

155 Þat kann’k níunda, • ef mik nauðr of stęndr

4 sinna hęim-hama
sinna hęim-huga.

I know the tenth, if I see town-riders^G playing aloft:
I accomplish it so that they go astray
from their home-hames^C;
from their home-minds.⁸⁰

3 þęr villar fara 'they (fem.) go astray' | emend.; þęir villir fara 'they (masc.) go astray' R

⁸⁰The rīður '(female) riders' were witches who would leave their original human shapes or skins (hamir) in order to fly around in the air tormenting and poisoning villagers. Their original bodies would then be lying in a coma-like state, in something resembling that which is today called astral projection. Yet, it was not the case that their whole mental faculties would disconnect from their bodies, but rather they would leave behind something of their humanity, which was thought to be inextricably linked to their human bodies. Weden was through his second sight able to see these riders, and could then use his superior magical skill to confuse them so that they would not be able to return to their human "home"-shapes or minds, but were instead forced to stray as tormented disintegrated ghosts; a cruel fate. — Weden likewise brags about tricking riders in Hbl 20.

that warrior sinks not down before swords.

1–2 ef skal’k þegn ungan verpa vatni á ‘if on a young thane I shall throw water’ | A reference to the Heathen name-giving ceremony in which the infant would be sprinkled with water; cf. the attestations in Rígh 7, 21, 34.

few unwise men can do so.

3 skil ‘discernments’ | Cf. Hym 38, where the corresponding verb skilja ‘to discern, understand’ is used in the context of god-lore.

Power he galed for the Eese and fame for the Elves;

I know the eighteenth, which I never teach a maiden nor man's woman—everything is better when one alone can do it;
 that follows the end of the leeds—save for her alone who with her arm guards me, or who is my sister.

5 mik armi verr 'with her arm guards me' | A similar expression is also used Wayl 2. — The one who wraps Weden in her arm may be His wife, Frie. He has no known sister.

166 Nú eru Háva mól kveðin · Háva hollu í;

Now are the High One's speeches sung in the High One's hall;
 of great use for the sons of men;
 of harm for the sons of ettins.
 Hail he who sang; hail he who knows;
 may he benefit who learned;
 hail those who heeded!

3 jǫtna 'ettins' | corrected in margin from ýta 'men' R

4–6 kvað, kann, nam, hlýddu 'sang, knows, learned, heeded' | The implied subject is the speeches, i.e. 'hail he who sang them, hail he who knows them,' et.c.

The Speeches of Webthrithner

(Vafþrúðnismól)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C9th (0.105)–C10th (0.894)

Meter: Leed-meter

A wisdom contest poem, known by the author of Ylva.

Far from being a loose collection of pieces of mythic information, the poem is tightly structured.

Weden first asks his wife, Frie, for counsel, as he is curious about the ancient wisdom which the ettin Webthrithner might possess (1). Frie expresses worry, as she considers Webthrithner wiser than all other ettins (2), but Weden says that he has travelled far and wide, and wishes to know what Webthrithner's hall is like (3). Frie wishes Weden good luck against the ettin (4) and he departs, to challenge Webthrithner's orð-spēki 'word-wisdom' (5). He arrives at hall of Webthrithner (6), who promptly declares that Weden will not come out of the hall unless he be wiser than him (7). Weden introduces himself as Gainred, saying that he has travelled far in need of Webthrithner's hospitality (8). Webthrithner invites Weden to sit down (9), but he instead utters a gnomic stanza (10) not unlike those of the first section of Highb.

Webthrithner then begins to ask questions relating to the mythology, each answered by Weden in turn. The questions concern which horses pull the day (11–12) and night (13–14), the river which divides the gods and ettins (15–16) and the plain where Surt and the gods will fight (17–18).

Webthrithner calls the god learned, invites him to sit on the bench, and declares that the loser of the contest must give his head (19). The roles are now reversed, and Weden asks the ettin about the origins of earth and heaven (20–21), of sun and moon (22–23), of day, night, and the phases of the moon (24–25), and of winter and summer (26–27); then about the earliest being, namely the ettin Earyelmer^P (28–29), his origins (30–31) and how he reproduced asexually (32–33). Weden continues by asking what Webthrithner himself first remembers (34–35), about the origin of the wind (36–37), the god Nearth^P (38–39), Walhall and the Oneharriers (40–41), and where Webthrithner learned these esoteric pieces of wisdom (42–43).

After this the structure and tone of the questions change; each one begins with the same first half as that of st. 3, and they concern the end-times. Weden asks which humans will survive after the Fimble-winter (44–45), how the sun will rise after Fenrer has destroyed it (46–47), about some obscure maidens (48–49; see discussion there), which Eese will survive after the flame of Surt goes out (50–51) and how Weden will die (52–53). Finally, he asks what Weden spoke in the ear of Balder before he was burned on the pyre (54). Webthrithner at last understands the identity of his challenger, since only Weden himself could know the answer to that question. He laconically accepts his imminent death and the futility of his word-wisdom (55); the poem ends with his admission that Weden will always be the wisest (56).

Weden: “Say the one, if thy wisdom suffices,

1 óði | The first word on fol. 3r. of A; from this point we have the poem in both manuscripts.

Vafþrúðnir: 21 „Ór Ymis holdi • vas jorð of sköpuð, [R 8r/10, A 3r/2]
2 en ór bęinum björg,

Webthrithner: “Out of Yimer^P’s flesh was the earth shaped,
but out of his bones the mountains;
heaven out of the skull of the rime-cold ettin, but out of his blood the sea.⁸³”

4 svęita ‘blood’ | In poetry sęiti, although cognate with ModEngl. ‘sweat’, almost always means ‘blood’. This is also the case with the OE swāt, as seen e.g. in Beow 1286a: sweord swāte fāb ‘sword stained with sweat’, 2689b–2690: hę ge-blódegod wearð // sâwul-driore; • swât jðum wéoll. ‘he was bloodied in soul-gore; the sweat gushed in waves’.

⁸³The present st. very closely resembles Grmn 41; lines 1 and 4 here are identical to lines 1–2 there, and lines 2 and 3a here are very similar to line 3a and 4 there. Although the stanzas are clearly related, they are still distinct enough that the one cannot be a direct scribal copy of the other. I think that the relation is most likely to be oral, and that the two stanzas were both composed in the same, most likely West Norwegian, community of poets, or perhaps even by the same individual.

“Mundlefare^P is he called; he is the father of Moon, and so of Sun likewise.

Webthrithner:

4 ǫldum at ár-tali ‘for the year-tally of mankind’ | Cf. Wsp 6, where the Reins gave names to night, the moon-phases, morning, midday, afternoon, and evening, órum at tēlja ‘the years for to tally’.

⁸⁴i.e. ‘which being arose first of all?’ Cf. the question on the C9th Malt Stone (DR NOR1988;5): hvarisi : alistiaęsa, perhaps Hvar es inn ęlisti ása? ‘Who is the eldest of the Eese?’

Vafþrúðnir: 29 „Ør-ófi vetra · áðr vęri jorð of sköpuð, “Say the sixth, as they call thee wise,

Weden quoth:

Vafþrúðnir: 31 „Ór Éli-vǫgum · stukku ǣitr-dropar, 2 svá óx unds ór varð jǫtunn;
þar órar ǣttir · kómu allar saman;
4 því's þat ǣ alt til atalt.“

[R 8r/25, A 3r/15, G]

“From the Ilewaves^L splashed venom-drops;
so it grew until it formed an ettin.
Our lineages came there all together, thus it is ever all too fierce.”

Webthrithner:

1–4 ALL | Over æons the splashing venom-drops combined until they formed a sentient being: this was Earyelmer, who is probably to be identified with Yimer^P. This stanza is cited in support of the lengthy and embellished creation narrative found in Yilv, but there is reason to believe that our poet was thinking of something simpler.

The Ilewaves are surely a reflex of the chaotic primeval Waters found in many West Eurasian mythologies, including Genesis 1:1–3 and RV 10.129. Of these two foundational religious sources the latter is closer to the present stanza, and probably holds the more archaic conception. Where we find in the Jewish narrative a proper creation; at the very beginning of time God's spirit is on the Waters and He makes the light shine over them, we find in these two Indo-European texts a spontaneous emergence of a single primeval entity long before the Gods are born—here from the violent splashing of venom, in RV 10.129.3 from “the power of heat” (tāpasah mabinā). This entity in turn asexually begets sexual beings—here through rubbing his limbs together, in RV 10.129.4 simply giving rise to “desire” (kāma) which serves as the “primal seed of thought” (mānasaḥ rêtaḥ prathamām)—and it is from these that the world is populated.

3–4 órar ... atalt ‘Our ... fierce’ | so G; om. RA.

4 þat ‘it’ | i.e. the ettin race.

Óðinn kvað: 32 „Sæg þat sjaunda, · alls þik svinnan kveða,

[R 8r/26, A 3r/16]

“Say the seventh, as they call thee wise,
and thou, Webthrithner, mightst know:
How that one begot bairns, the stubborn ettin,
when he knew not a troll-woman's pleasure?”

Weden quoth:

3 baldni ‘stubborn’ | so A; aldni ‘the aged, old’ R breaks alliteration

Vafþrúðnir kvað: 33 „Und hendi vaxa · kvóðu hrím-þursi [R 8r/27, A 3r/17] 2 mey ok mog saman;
 fótr við fóti · gat hins fróða jötuns
 4 sex-höfðaðan son.“

Webthritner quoth: “Withinn the hand of the rime-thurse^G, they said, did grow a maiden and lad together.
 Foot against a foot begot for the learned ettin
 a six-headed son.”

1–3 Und hendi ... fótr við fóti ‘Within the hand ... foot against foot’ | The image is masturbatory. This myth is not attested in

Óðinn kvað: 34 „Seg þat óttunda, · alls þik fróðan kveða, [R 8r/29, A 3r/18]
 2 ok þú Vaf-þrúðnir vitir, hvat fyrst of mant · eða fremst of veltst,
 4 þú est al-sviðr jötunn.“

Weden quoth: “Say the eighth, as they call thee learned, and thou, Webthritner, mightst know:
 What dost thou first recall, or foremost know?
 Thou art all-wise, ettin!”

Vafþrúðnir kvað: 35 „Ör-ófi vetra · áðr véri jörð of sköpuð, [R 8r/30, A 3r/19, G]
 2 þá vas Ber-gelmir borinn;
 þat fyrst of man’k, · es hinn fróði jötunn
 4 á vas lúðr of lagiðr.“

Webthritner quoth: “Uncountable winters before the earth would be created, then was Bareyelmér born.
 That I first remember, when the learned ettin on the tree-trunk was laid.⁸⁵”

⁸⁵The reference here is obscure. According to the prose of Ylvi, after the sons of Byre^P (that is, Weden^P, Will^P and Wigh^P) slew Yimer, so much blood flew from his wounds that all the race of Ettins were drowned, save for Bareyelmér and his family, who survived by getting up on his lúðr. In regular prose, lúðr usually means ‘trumpet’, but it can also refer to a hollow tree-trunk. Considering the transitive nature of Bareyelmér being laid (of lagiðr) on it, it could rather be interpreted as describing a boat burial, in which case the first thing Webthritner remembers would be Bareyelmér’s funeral.

Óðinn kvað: 36 „Seg þat níunda, · alls þik svinnan kveða, [R 8r/32, A 3r/21]
 2 ok þú Vaf-þrúðnir vitir, hvaðan vindr of kómur · svát færr vág yfir,
 4 é mennt hann sjalfan of séa.“

“Say the ninth, as they call thee wise,
and thou, Webthrithner, mightst know:
Whence the wind does come which fares over the wave;
men always see his very self?”

Weden quoth:

⁴ ǣ mēnn hann sǣlfan of sēa ‘men always see his very self’ | Most likely a negative clitic -t has been lost from the verb sēa ‘see’, which would have given the proper reading: “men never see his very self”.

Vafþrúðnir:

37 „Hrē-svęlgr hęitir, • es sitr á himins ęnda,
2 jǫtunn í arnar ham;
af hans vęngjum • kveða vind koma
4 alla męnn yfir.“

[R 8r/34, A 3r/22]

“Rawswallower^P is he called who sits at heaven’s end;
an ettin in an eagle’s hame^C.
From his wings they say that the wind comes over all men.”

Webthrithner:

[Óðinn kvað:]

38 „Sęg þat tíunda, • alls þú tíva rǫk
2 ǫll Vafþrúðnir vitir, hvaðan Njǫrðr of kom • með ása sonum;
4 hofum ok hǫrgum • ręðr hund-mǫrgum ok varð-at ǫsum alinn.“

[R 8v/1, A 3r/24]

“Say the tenth, since thou of the Rakes of the Tews^P all, O Webthrithner, mightst know:
Whence Nearth^P did come among the sons of the Eese^G?
Hoves^C and harrows^C he rules hound-many,
and he was not to the Eese begotten.”

[Weden quoth:]

⁴ hofum ok hǫrgum ‘hoves and harrows’ | A formulaic merism, see note to Wsp 7 for other occurrences. This stanza seems to be referring to the large count of cultic places named after Nearth in Norway (TODO: source this); cf. here Grmn 16, where it is said that Nearth ręðr hǫ-timbruðum hǫrgi ‘rules a high-timbered harrow’. Also of interest is Lock 51, where a goddess speaks about her véum ok vǫngum ‘wighs and wongs’, other cultic names. All of these examples suggest something about the Heathen view of shrines.

[Vafþrúðnir kvað:]

39 „Í Vana-ęęimi • skópu hann vís ręgin
2 ok sęldu at ęislingu ęoðum, í aldar rǫk • hann mun aptr koma
4 hęim með vísun vǫnum.“

[R 8v/3, A 3r/26]

“In Waneham^L the wise Reins^{G86} shaped him, and sold him as a hostage to/for the gods.

[Webthrithner quoth:]

In the rakes of the eld^{C87} he will come back home among the wise Wanes^G.”

⁸⁶While reggin ‘Reins’ is usually just a synonym of goð ‘gods’, it seems here to refer specifically to the Wanes, in contrast with the Eese^G.

⁸⁷i.e. the Rakes of the Reins^P.

The two following stanzas are damaged in both R and A; R has only 40, but splits it in two, while A has 40/1 (abbreviated in the ms.: S. þ. e. XI) and then jumps to the answer. The present two stanzas are reconstructed. TODO: explain better.

3 val þęir kjósa ‘the slain they choose’ | It is from this verbal phrase that the agent noun val-kyrja ‘walkirrie^G’ is derived; yet those are all women (as the very gender of the word shows), while the Oneharriers are male.

⁹⁵The phrase stíga á ‘step onto, mount’ is also used to refer to one stepping aboard a ship or mounting a horse (see CV: stíga for citations). Its use for a person being borne onto the pyre seems formulaic and has been compared with Beow 1118b: gūð-rinc á-stáb ‘the war-champion mounted [his pyre]’, although the interpretation of that line is controversial. Fulk et al. (2008) [186] follow Grundtvig in emending gūð-rinc to gūð-réc ‘war-smoke’ and relate it to Beow 3144b (wudu-réc á-stáb ‘wood-smoke rose up’, also in a description of a cremation. According to them Grmn 54 “almost certainly refers not to Baldr but to Óðinn, probably imagined to mount the pyre in order to set fire to it.”

[Webthrithner quoth:] “No man ever knows what thou in days of yore saidst into the ear of the son.
With a fey^C mouth have I spoken my ancient staves^C, and about the Rakes of the Reins.
Now with Weden have I shared my word-wisdom;
thou art ever wisest of men!”

1 mann-gi | manni dat. sg. RA is impossible; a subject is needed.

3 fēigum ‘fey’ | A word with strong fatalistic connections. Webthriþner realises that he was bound to die from the moment he proposed the wager (v. 19), as no being can outwit Weden.

4 orð-spęki ‘word-wisdom’ | The same word-wisdom Weden in st. 5 set out to try.

5 vera ‘of men’ | verr means ‘husband, man’ and is here used for reasons of alliteration; it does not imply that Weden is not a God.

The Speeches of Grimner

(Grímnismól)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.976)

Meter: Leed-meter, Firnwordslaw (2/3–4, 28/3–5, 45/3–5, 48/4, 49/1–2, 53), Galderlaw (46)

The Speeches of Grimner are preserved whole in both R and A.

The poem itself is surrounded by two long introductory prose narratives containing some very old motifs, which are here brought up in the notes. It's hard to say for how long these texts have accompanied the poem (TODO: I may write about this in the Introduction, since this question is important for several other poems), but since they are found in both R and A and contain these motifs it would seem that they are fairly old. Together with sts. 1–3 they form a frame narrative that gives additional meaning to the gnomic sts. enclosed within.

The gnomic sts. themselves, the meat of the poem, are mythological and often quite obscure. In this they align closely with other Eddic gnomic poems such as High, Webth, Sdr, and Alw.

Weden begins by listing the halls of the gods (4–17). This section has been discussed in detail by de Vries (1952) TODO! who considers it corrupt. Specifically, he sees the second half of v. 4 as a later insert, since it does not elaborate on the “holy land” mentioned in the first half. Jackson (1995) has argued convincingly against this, showing how the first half serves as a generalized introduction to the list; the holy land is the dwelling-places of the gods.

After this list come several sts relating to Weden and his hall, Walhall (18–23). Mentioned are the preparation of food in Walhall (18), Weden's wolves (19) and ravens (20), the river through which the dead have to wade (21) and the gate through which they have to pass (22), the count of doors in Walhall (23), the count of doors in Thunder's hall Bilshirner (24), and two animals which stand on the hall and gnaw on the branches of the tree Leered (25–26). From the latter animal's—the stag Oakthirner's—horns droplets fall into Wharyelmer, which is the origin of all rivers (26).

This introduces a list of mythic rivers (27–28), ending with the waters through which Thunder must wade on his way to Ugdrassle (29). This leads to a list of the horses ridden by the other gods on their way to Ugdrassle (31) which is followed by a description of the roots of Ugdrassle (31), then its animals (32–36) the Walkirries (37), and beings associated with the sun and moon (38–40), the things created from Yimer's body (41– 42) with a digression on the significance of the blood^P for men in the present (43, see note there!), the creation of the ship Shidebladner (44) and finally a list of the noblest of several categories of things and groups (45).

After these lists Weden utters an unclear st. invoking the gods (46), before listing many of his names and the circumstances in which they were used (47–50). He then turns to Garfrith, disappointed by the inhospitality and poor conduct of his former protégé, and predicts his imminent death (51–53). He finally reveals himself by his true name, daring Garfrith to face him (53). After this he repeats several of his names (54), and the poem ends.

In the final prose section we are told that Garfrith, after learning that he was torturing Weden, hurried up to take the god away from the fires, but tripped and fell on his sword and died. After this his son Ayner ruled for a long time.

From the sons of king Reeding (Frá sonum Hraudungs konungs)

- P1a Hraudungr konungr átti tvá sonu. Hét annarr Agnarr, enn annarr Geirrøðr. [R 8v/31, A 3v/23]
 2 Agnarr var tíu vetra enn Geirrøðr átta vetra. Þeir reru tveir á báti með dorgar sínar at smá-fiski. Vindr rak þá í haf út. Í nátt-myrkri brutu þeir 4 við land ok gingu upp; fundu kot-bónda einn. Þar vóru þeir um vetrinn.
 Kerling fostaði Agnar, enn karl Geirrøð. At vári fekk karl þeim skip. Enn 6 er þau kerling leiddu þá til strandar, þá mælti karl ein-méli við Geirrøð.
 Þeir fengu byr ok kvómu til stöðva fðður síns. Geirrøðr var fram í skipi.
 8 Hann hljóp upp á land enn hratt út skipinu, ok mælti: „Far þú þar er smyl hafi þik.“ Skipit rak út. Enn Geirrøðr gekk út til bójar; hánun var vel 10 fagnat; þá var faðir hans andaðr. Var þá Geirrøðr til konungs tekinn, ok varð maðr ágétr.

King Reeding had two sons. One was called Ayner, and the other Garfrith. Ayner was ten winters old, but Garfrith eight winters. The two were rowing in a boat with their trolling-lines for small fishing. The wind drove them out into the sea. In the dark of night they crashed onto land and walked ashore; they found a lone cottage farmer. There they stayed over the winter. The wife fostered Ayner, but the husband Garfrith.⁹⁶ In the spring the husband gave them ships, but when he and his wife led them to the shore, the husband spoke privately with Garfrith.⁹⁷ They caught good wind, and came to their father's harbour. Garfrith was in the front of the ship. He leapt onto land and pushed out the ship, and spoke: "Go thou whither the fiends may have thee!" The ship drove out. But Garfrith walked towards the farm; he was welcomed well; by then was his father ended. Garfrith was then taken as king, and became an excellent man.

⁹⁶The wife was Frie, and the husband Weden; this is clarified by the following prose. The motif of Weden preferring the youngest brother is also found in Rígh.

⁹⁷Surely instructing him to push his brother out to sea.

- P1b Óðinn ok Frigg sátu í Hliðskjölfu ok sá um heima alla. Óðinn mælti: „Sér [R 9r/10, A 4r/3]

 4 níðingr sá at hann kvelr gesti sína ef hánun þykkja of-margir koma.“ Óðinn segir at þat er in mesta lygi. Þau veðja um þetta mál. Frigg sendi eskis-mey 6 sína, Fullu, til Geirrøðar. Hon bað konung varask at eigi fyr-gerði hánun fjöl-kunnigr maðr sá er þar var kominn í land, ok sagði þat mark á at engi 8 hundr var svá ólmr at á hann myndi hlaupa. En þat var inn mesti héc-gómi at Geirrøðr væri eigi mat-góðr ok þó lét hann hand-taka þann mann er 10 eigi vildu hundar á ráða. Sá var í feldi blám ok nefndisk Grímnir ok sagði ekki fleira frá sér þótt hann væri at spurðr. Konungr lét hann pína til sagna 12 ok setja milli elda tveggja ok sat hann þar átta nêtr. Geirrøðr konungr átti son tíu vetra gamlan ok hét Agnarr eptir bróður hans. Agnarr gekk 14 at Grímnir ok gaf hánun horn fullt at drekka, sagði at konungr gerði illa er hann lét pína hann sak-lausan. Grímnir drakk af. Þá var eldrinn svá 16 kominn at feldrinn brann af Grímnir. Hann kvað:

Weden and Frie sat in Lithshelf^L and looked over all the Homes.⁹⁸ Weden spoke: “Seest thou Ayner, thy foster son, as he begets children with a troll-woman in her cave?”⁹⁹ But Garfrith, my foster son, is a king and now sits at land.” Frie says: “He is such a meat-nithing that he tortures his guests if he judges too many are coming.” Weden says that this is the greatest lie; they make a wager about this matter. Frie sent her handmaid Full to Garfrith’s hall. She bade the king be wary, lest he be destroyed by that many-cunning^C man who was come to the land, and said that his sign was that no hound was so fierce that he would leap at him. But it was the greatest vainglorious lie that Garfrith should not be good of meat^C, and yet he has that man bound, whom the hounds would not touch. He was in a blue cloak and called himself Grimner, and did not tell any more about himself, although he was asked. The king had him tortured, that he would speak, and set him between two fires, and he sat there for eight nights. King Garfrith had a son, ten winters old, and he was named Ayner after his brother. Ayner walked up to Grimner, and gave him a full horn to drink; he said that the king did badly, as he had him tortured without cause. Grimner drank from it. Then the fire was so grown, that the cloak burned on Grimner. He quoth:

⁹⁸Very similar to the Longbeard Origin Myth (TODO: reference and elaborate).

⁹⁹This may relate to Frie’s role as love-goddess. Ayner is in any case a degenerate^C man, what one would call a ‘coomer’.

14 Folk-vangr es (hinn níundi), • en þar Freyja réðr
 2 sessa kostum í sal;
 halfan val • hon kýss hverjan dag,
 4 en halfan Óðinn á.

[R 9v/17, A 4v/6]

Folkwong is the ninth, and there Frow decides the choice of seats in the hall;
 half the slain she chooses each day,
 but half does Woden own.¹⁰⁶

¹⁰⁶This st. is cited and closely paraphrased in Yilv 24. — The roots of kjósa val ‘choose the slain’ are the same as those in walkirrie^C (val-kyrja ‘chooser of the slain’), and as Frow is a prominent goddess this would surely make her the chief walkirrie. This is paralleled by Sarle, where Frow assumes the name Gandle^C (Göndul, a name attested in several lists of walkirries; see Wsp 30 and Notes) and incites the legendary never-ending Conflict of the Headnings (Hjaðningavíg). In spite of this parallel, there are good reasons to believe that the chief walkirrie was Frie^C, Woden’s wife. First, one of the functions of the walkirries is to bear ale to the Oneharriers (Grmn 37). This mirrors royal Germanic banquets attested in heroic poetry, where the host’s wife or daughter would pour ale to his retainers and guests (the so-called ‘lady with a mead cup’ ritual; see Enright (1996) and Riseley (2014)). As Woden’s wife, we would expect Frie to have this role. Second, at Balder’s funeral as attested in Yilv (TODO. chapter number), Woden rides with Frie and the Walkirries, while Frow rides alone with her cats. If she were chief walkirrie, it is rather strange that she should not ride with them. Third, there are two separate myths where Frie and Woden contend over the fates of armies and men. These are the prose introduction to the present poem and the Longbeard origin myth (for which see Introduction to the present poem).

2 jǫrmun-grund ‘ermin-ground’ | i.e. ‘the immense ground’ (for the rare prefix ermin-^C see Encyclopedia), denoting the earth as a vast flat expanse of land. This compound also occurs in a kenning in the st. on the late C10th Karlevi stone (Öl 1) referring to the unbounded sea as Endils jǫrmungrund ‘Ardle’s ermin-ground’ (Ardle being a known “sea-king”), and in Beow 859 as eormen-grund carrying the same sense.

Thound^P roars, thrives Thedwitner’s fish [= Middenyardswyrm?] in the flood;
the river-stream seems far too great for the noisy slain host to wade.¹¹⁰

1–2 Þjóðvitnis fiskr ‘Thedwitner’s fish’ | Þjóðvitnir is easily analyzed as þjóð- ‘great, main’ + vitnir ‘wolf’. The great wolf is naturally the Fenrerswolf^P, and its “fish” should then be the Middenyardswyrm. That it could indeed be called a fish is proven by Hym 24, where the word does not even carry alliteration.

¹¹⁰Thound may be the river surrounding Walhall, which the dead have to pass over to reach the hall. This stanza may also be referring to the punishment of men in waters; see note to Wsp TODO for discussion on that.

¹²³According to Yilv 11 the gods took two horses to pull the sun's chariot—Yorewaker and Allswith—and “under the shoulders of the horses the gods placed two wind-bellows to cool them, but in some sources (į sumum frǫðum, presumably this st.) they are called iron-cooling (įsarn-kol).”

Swollen is [one] called, he stands before the sun,
 [as] a shield [before] the shining god [SUN].
 Crag and surf I know shall burn,
 if he falls away.¹²⁴

¹²⁴The sun-disc was apparently thought to be a translucent shield, which protected the earth from the full power of the Sun behind it. Without it the whole world ("crag and surf", LAND and SEA; the totality of the earth) would burn up. In Sdr 14a/1 there is mention of the "shield that stands before the shining god [SUN]", which may or may not derive from the present stanza.

Skoll^P is called the wolf, which follows the pure-faced god [= Sun] to the protection of the woods;
 but second is Hate^P—he is Rothwiter^P's son—that one shall [run] in front of the bright bride of heaven [= Sun].¹²⁵

¹²⁵According to Yilv 12, which is probably based on this st., Skoll chases the sun, but Hate chases the moon (which is why he runs in front of the sun). See note to Wsp 40 for discussion on these wolves.

2 sveita 'blood' | For the sense, see note to this word in Webth 21.

4 ór hausi himinn 'out of his skull the heaven' | This suggests that the heavens were understood as a dome, something common among many ancients. This also fits well with the floating clouds being Yimer's brains, as said in the following st.

42 En ór hans bróum · gøřou blíð reġin
 2 Mið-garð manna sonum,

The holdness^C of Woulder^P and of All Gods^C has each who first touches the fire, for the Homes^C become open for the sons of the Eese, when men lift off the cauldrons.¹²⁷

1 Ullar 'Woulder' | The exact reason for why Woulder is invoked here is unclear, but it suggests that he has a role in the setting of the ritual fire, something possibly attested by the archeological finds at Lilla Ullevi, Sweden. See Encyclopedia: Woulder^C and af Edholm (2009) for more.

1 hylli 'holdness' | i.e. 'favour, loyalty, grace'. This word and the corresponding adjective hollr 'hold; favourable, loyal, gracious' and verb hylla 'to make hold' are often used when speaking about divine grace, not just in Christian texts, but also (as here) w.r.t. to the Heathen gods. See Encyclopedia: holdness^C for other examples.

1 allra goða 'All Gods' | Cf. Sdr 2–3, Lock 11, which both hail the Gods as a collective (the former as part of a genuine prayer, the latter subversively). For the unity of the Gods, see Encyclopedia: All Gods^C.

¹²⁷This st. is one of the most difficult in the poem, and many interpretations have been made (for a summary see Nordberg (2005)). Many commenters (e.g. Finnur Jónsson (1932) and Sijmons and Gering (p. 208, TODO)) interpret this st. as relating to the poem's frame narrative. In this view Weden, still bound between the two fires, cryptically asks for a cauldron to be lifted off so that the Gods can see him through the smoke vent and rescue him. This, however, scarcely makes sense given the current stanza's placement in the gnomic wisdom section of the poem, unless this whole section is taken to be a later insert (as suggested by Finnur), something for which there is no real support. The invocation of Woulder is also left unexplained, and there is no mention of a cauldron elsewhere in the poem. I agree with Nordberg's superior solution, namely that the present st. refers to the cooking and eating of a "sacred stew" cooked in large cauldrons during the blood^C, as described in the kings' saws. More specifically, Weden is speaking of the divine grace (hylli 'holdness', see Note to l. 1) gained by the ritualist who sets the fire on which the cauldron is placed, since this act enables the Gods to become present among those partaking in the ritual when the cauldron is lifted off and the communal meal can begin. This interpretation is especially interesting when one considers the preceding sts. 41 and 42, which deal with the ordering of the world through the dismembering of Yimer, the primordial sacrificial victim. It is well attested comparatively that the ritual sacrifice in the present was seen as a reenactment and continuation of the primordial ritual sacrifice by the Gods in the mythic past, which was necessary for the creation and ordering of the world.; see Lincoln (1986)—especially the first two chapters—for its Indo-European analogues. Grmn 41–43 would then seem to attest this view in the Germanic tradition.

¹³⁰Linguistically, Garfrith is not bereft of the support of the Oneharriers but rather of the Oneharriers themselves, but presumably the sense is the same. By breaking the code of conduct to which he owes his success he lost Weden's favour, and thus been excluded from the community of oath-bound Odinic warriors (the Oneharriers). Cf. here

The Leed of Hoarbeard

(Hárbarðsljóð)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): early C11th (0.578)–late C11th (0.377)

Meter: Unclear (TODO)

In my opinion the poem can be seen as an allegory on class relations, namely between the self-owning Norwegian and later Icelandic farmers, and the warlike Norwegian earls.

Of all Eddic poems this one is probably the strangest in terms of form. Verse length varies greatly, and many of the lines (see especially the final verse) are of an obscene length reminiscent of late continental Germanic poems like the Heliand; some simply have no metrical qualities at all. The young clitic definite is (uniquely) employed frequently throughout the poem. These criteria would seem to point towards a late origin for the poem (though not later than the late C13th, when R was written).

Against this late origin speaks the presence of rare words (e.g. ǫgurr v. 13) and a thorough understanding of the personalities of the two gods which would seem unlikely to stem from several centuries after the conversion of Iceland. The model devised by Sapp gives the poem a 57.8% likelihood of being from the early C11th, and a 37.7% likelihood of being from the late 11th. These scores are most similar to those obtained by Grip, a poem that on the surface seems much more archaic.

What could we then be dealing with? It may of course be that the poem is heavily corrupt, but there is no good evidence for this (apart from the above-mentioned irregularities). Most lines are readily understandable and fit well both within their respective context and the poem as a whole. I think a better solution to this problem is to assume that the poem has been acted out as a sort of carnivalesque theatre, with two masked actors, each playing one of the gods. This would explain the variations in meter and line length, and the prose; some lines were simply shouted out, and the lack of alliteration in them would then have a powerful, discordant effect.

This is shown also by uses of the word ‘here’ in sts. 9 and 14. TODO: mention concept of “double scene” by Lars Lönnroth?

P1 Þórr fór ór austr-vegi ok kom at sundi einu. Qðrum megum sundsins var [R 12r/30]
 2 ferju-karlinn með skipit. Þórr kallaði:

Thunder journeyed from the Eastern Way and came to a sound. At the other side of the sound was the ferryman with the ship. Thunder called out:

1 „Hvęrr ’s sá sęinn sęina • es stęndr fyr sundit handan?“ [R 12r/32]
 “Who is that swain of swains, standing here across the sound?”

Hann svaraði: 2 „Hvęrr ’s sá karl karla • es kallarr of váginn?“ [R 12v/1]
 He answered:
 “Who is that churl of churls, calling out over the wave?”

3 „Fęr þú mik of sundit, • fōði’k þik á morgun; [R 12v/2]
 2 męis hęfi’k á baki, • verðr-a matrinn bętri.
 Át’k í hvíld • áðr ek hęiman fór,
 4 síldr ok hafra; • saðr em’k ęnn þęss.“

[Thunder quoth:]

“Ferry me over the sound, I feed thee in the morning!
 A basket have I on my back; the food does not get better.¹³²
 I ate for a while before I journeyed from home, herring and oatmeal/he-goats; I am still full from that.”

4 hafra ‘oatmeal/he-goats’ | The easiest reading here is the acc. pl. of hafr ‘he-goat’. Thunder also eats his goats in Yilv 44, where he butchers and cooks them in the evening and brings them back to life by blessing them with his hammer at dawn. Finnur Jónsson (1932) and Pettit (1986) prefer this reading; see also note to next stanza.—Many other scholars have here read an accusative plural of hafri ‘oat’, i.e. ‘porridge, oatmeal’. Stiles (forthcoming TODO) connects this with Indra’s (who is the Vedic equivalent of Thunder) “partner and yokemate” (RV 6.56.2) Pūṣan’s eating porridge (e.g. 6.56.1, 57.2). Another similarity Stiles notes between Thunder and Pūṣan is that both have chariots driven by goats (e.g. 6.57.3: “Goats are the draft-animals for the one”, 58.2: “Having goats as his horses”). Whether the Vedic tradition has split an original god into two or whether Thunder has absorbed elements of another god is hard to say.

4 „Ár-ligum verkum hrósar þú, vęðinum; • vęitst-at-tu fyr gęrla, [R 12v/5]
 2 dępr ’ru þín hęim-kynni, • dauð hygğ’k at þín móðir sé.“

“Of early works boastest thou; of eating!¹³³ Thou knowest not clearly [what lies] before [thee]:
 dismal is the state of thy home—I think that thy mother is dead!”

¹³³TODO. This is pretty difficult. From the previous stanza verðinum seems to be referring to eating.

- 5 „Þat segir þú nú · es hverjum þikkir [R 12v/6]
2 mest at vita— · at mín móðir dauð sé.“

“Thou now sayest that which to every man seems most important to know—that my mother is dead!”

- 6 „Þeygi ’s sem þú · þrjú bú eigir góð; [R 12v/8] 2 bær-bæinn þú stendr · ok hefir brautinga gervi, · þat-ki at þú hafir brékr þínar.“

“But it is hardly as if thou own three good homesteads; bare-legged thou standest, and hast the gear of a tramp; it is not even as if thou own thy breeches!”

- 7 „Stýr-ðu hingat ęikjunni, · ek mun þér stöðna kenna [R 12v/9]
2 eða hværr á skipit · es þú heldr við landit?“

“Steer hither the boat! I will show thee to the harbour—or who owns the ship which thou holdest by the shore?”

- 8 „Hildólfr sá hęitir · es mik halda bað, [R 12v/11]
2 rekr inn ráð-svinni · es býr í Ráðs-ęjar-sundi;
bað-at hann hlęnni-męnn flytja · eða hrossa-þjófa, 4 góða ęina · ok þá’s ek gørva kunna;
sęg-ðu til nafns þíns · ef þú vill of sundit fara.“

“Hildolf he is called, who asked me to hold it,
the counsel-wise man who lives in Redesey-sound.
He bade me not take highwaymen nor horse-thieves;
good men only, and those whom I know well—say thy name if thou wilt go over the sound!”

- 9 „Sęja mun’k til nafns míns · þótt ek sękr sjá’k [R 12v/15]
2 ok til alls øðlis: · Ek em Óðins sonr, Męila bróðir · ęn Magna faðir,
4 þrúð-valdr goða · við Þór knátt-u hér dóma!

Hins vil’k nú spyrja, · hvat þú hētir?“

“I will say my name—although I should be charged—and all my origin: I am Weden’s son, Male’s brother and Main’s father,
the strength-wielder of the Gods; with Thunder dost thou here speak!
Now I will ask something else: What art thou called?”

10 „Hár-barðr ek hēiti, · hyl’k of nafn sjaldan.“

[R 12v/18]

“Hoarbeard I am called, seldom I conceal my name.”

11 „Hvat skalt-u of nafn hylja · nema þú sakar ęgir?“

[R 12v/18]

“Why shalt thou conceal thy name, unless thou have charges?”

12 „En þótt ek sakar ęga, · fyr slíkum sem þú est

[R 12v/19]

2 þá mun’k forða fęrvi mínu · nema ek fęigr sé.“

“But though I had charges—for such a one as thou art then I will protect my life, unless I be fey^C.”

13 „Harm ljótan mér þikkir í því

[R 12v/21]

2 at vaða of váginn til þín · ok vęta ęgur minn;

skylda’k launa kęgur-svęini · þínum kangin-yrði · ef ek komumk
yfir sundit.“

“An ugly harm it seems to me to wade o’er the wave to thee, and wet my burden.
I would repay thee, swaddle-swain, for thy mocking words, if I could bring myself over the sound.”

2 ęgur ‘burden’ | The sense of this word is not clear, though it is probably the same as the first element of the compound ęgur-stund ‘burdensome hour’, found in Wāyl 42. Some authors have read it as a crude euphemism for ‘penis’, which would not be out of character for this poem. I however consider the best interpretation to be that of an author whose name I’ve forgotten (TODO!), namely that Thunder is referring to the food he carries on his back (cf. v. 3).

14 „Hér mun’k standa · ok þín heðan bíða;

[R 12v/23]

2 fannt-a-tu mann inn harðara · at Hrungni dauðan.“

“Here will I stand, and from here await thee;
thou hast not found a harder man since Rungner^P died!¹³⁴”

¹³⁴Rungner was an ettin famously slain by Thunder, TODO. Hoarbeard's mention of that battle sets off a long argument over the deeds of the two.

- 15 „Hins vilt-u nú geta · es vit Hrungnir deildum, [R 12v/25] 2 sá inn stór-úðgi jötunn, · es ór stęini vas höfuðit á, þó lét'k hann falla · ok fyrir hníga;
 4 hvat vannt-u þá meðan, Hárbarðr?“

“This wilt thou now mention, when I and Rungner dealt with each other, that great-minded ettin on whom the head was of stone.
 Yet I made him fall, and kneel down before [me]—
 what didst thou then meanwhile, Hoarbeard?”

- 16 „Vas'k með Fjöl-vari · fimm vetr alla [R 12v/27]
 2 í ey þęiri · es Al-grón heitir;
 vega vér þar knóttum · ok val fella,
 4 margs at freista, · mans at kosta.“

“I was with Felwar for all of five winters in that island which Allgreen is called.
 There we did fight and fell corpses;
 many a girl to tempt and win.¹³⁵”

¹³⁵I read margs ‘many a’ as modifying mans ‘girl’, i.e. margs mans at freista, at kosta ‘to tempt and to win many a girl’.

- 17 „Hversu snúnuðu yör konur yörar?“ [R 12v/30]
 “How did your women pleasure (TODO!!!) you?.¹³⁶”

¹³⁶Seemingly a prose line; see Introduction.

- 18 „Sparkar óttum vér konur · ef oss at spökum yrði; [R 12v/30] 2 horskar óttum vér konur · ef oss hollar véri, þęr ór sandi · síma undu
 4 ok ór dali djúpum
 grund of grófu;
 6 varð'k þeim ęinn ǫllum · øfri at rǫðum;
 hvílda'k hjá systrum sjau 8 ok hafða'k gęð þęira allt ok gaman;

hvat vannt-u þá meðan, Þórr?“

“We [I] owned frisky women, if they became pleasing toward us [me];
we [I] owned clever women, if they were hold^C toward us [me];
they wound a rope out of the sand, and out of a deep dale dug up the ground.
I alone became superior to them all in counsels,
I rested next to those seven sisters, and had their senses all, and pleasure—
what didst thou then meanwhile, Thunder?”

19 „Ek drap Þjatsa, · hinn Þrúð-móðga jötun,
2 upp ek varp augum · All-valda sonar á þann hinn heĩða himin;
4 þau ’ru męrki męst · minna verka,
þau’s allir męnn síðan of séa;
6 hvat vannt-u þá meðan, Hárbarðr?“

[R 13r/2, A 1r/1 (l. 4b ff.)]

“I slew Thedse^C, the strength-minded ettin;
Up I threw the eyes of Allwald’s son [= Thedse] onto the clear heaven!
Those are the greatest marks of my works,
those which all men since may see¹³⁷ —
what didst thou then meanwhile, Hoarbeard?”

¹³⁷Here we seem to have a rare example of native Germanic star-lore. Is the exact constellation identifiable? TODO.

20 „Miklar man-vélar · hafða’k við myrk-riður
2 þá’s ek vélta þęr frá verum.
Harðan jötun · hugða’k Hlébarð vesa;
4 gaf hann mér gamban-tęin en ek vélta hann ór viti.“

[R 13r/5, A 1r/1]

“Great girl-tricks did I have against mirk-riders^C, when I lured them away from men.¹³⁸
A hard ettin I judged Leebeard to be;
he gave me a gombentoe^C,
but I tricked him out of his wits.”

¹³⁸Alternatiely ‘away from [their] husbands’. The riður ‘(female) riders’ were witches thought to torment people and cause disease and suffering. See High 156 for discussion.

21 „Illum huga launaðir þú þá góðar gjafar.“

[R 13r/7, A 1r/3]

“With an evil mind didst thou repay the good gift.”

22 „Þat hefir ek · es af annarri skęfr;

[R 13r/8, A 1r/4]

2 umb sik es hvęrr í slíku— hvatt vannt-u þá meðan, Þórr?“

“An oak has that which it chafes from another; each man is for himself in such—
what didst thou then meanwhile, Thunder?”

23 „Ek vas austr · ok jǫtna barða’k

[R 13r/9, A 1r/4]

2 brúðir bǫl-vísar · es til bjargs gingu;
mikil myndi ętt jǫtna · ef allir lifði, 4 vętr myndi manna · undir Mið-garði—
hvatt vannt-u þá meðan, Hárbarðr?

“I was in the East, and bashed ettins:
bale-wise brides who walked to the mountain.
Great would the lineage of ettins be if all lived, naught would remain of men within Middenyard¹³⁹—
what didst thou then meanwhile, Hoarbeard?”

¹³⁹A remarkable clear statement, the underlying worldview of which is far from unique to this stanza; in Hym 11, for instance, Thunder is described as “the opponent of Rooder”, “the friend of manly retinues” and “Wighward”, referring to His role in slaying ettins and guarding men and their shrines (wighs^C). For Thunder’s killing of women cf. sts. 37–39 below and Lindow 1988.

24 „Vas’k á Vallandi · ok vígum fylgða’k,

[R 13r/11, A 1r/6]

2 atta ek jǫfrum · en aldri-gi sętta’k;
Óðinn á jarla · þá’s í val falla
4 en Þórr á þręla kyn.“

“I was in Walland^L and followed battles;
I incited princes and never reconciled them.
Weden owns the earls which fall among the slain,
but Thunder owns the kin of thralls.¹⁴⁰”

¹⁴⁰We see here a sort of aristocratic, Odinic disregard for lower life and life as a good in itself; where Thunder boasts of saving men, Weden sarcastically responds that he caused the deaths of men so that he could have them for himself.

- 25 „Ó·jafnt skipta · es þú myndir með ósum liði

[R 13r/14, A 1r/9]

“Thunder owns ample strength, but no heart; out of fear and mind-softness didst thou tread into a glove, and then seemedest thou not to be Thunder. Thou daredst neither—for thy fear—to sneeze nor to fart so that Feller might hear [it].¹⁴¹”

¹⁴¹This story is also referenced in Lock TODO. It is elaborated heavily on in Yilv 45: Thunder, Lock, and the siblings Thelwe and Wrash had travelled east for a long time when they discovered a large hall, with an opening on one end, as wide as the building. They took rest inside, but in the middle of the night there was a great earthquake and the ground beneath them trembled. Thunder rose and led the party to a side-room to the right in the middle of the hall. He sat closest to the opening with his hammer ready, while the others sat terrified further inside. At daybreak they left the hall and found a huge ettin named Skrymir (Shrimer^P) sleeping next to them. His snoring had caused the earth-quakes, and the hall was his mitten; the side-room was the thumb-part.

“I was in the east, and spoke with a certain woman;

I gladdened the gold-bright—the maiden enjoyed pleasure.”

¹⁴²*þing* (see Thing^C) usually means ‘legal assembly’, but clearly not here.

 2 ef ek reð á vág at vaða;

 4 ef hlýtr af hamri hogg.“

“Thy glibness of word will bring thee harm,

- 48 „Sif á hó hēima, · hans munt fund vilja, [R 13v/9, A 1v/4]
 2 þann munt þrek drýgja, · þat ’s þér skyldara.“

“Sib has a lover at home; him wilt thou wish to meet!
 Against that one shalt thou use thy strength—that is for thee more urgent!”

1 hó ‘lover’ | Most translators take this acc. sg. word as an alternative form of bórr m. ‘adulterer’ (gen. bórs), containing the same root as bóra f. ‘whore, prostitute’, bór n. ‘adultery, fornication’, ModEngl. whore. The -r has presumably been interpreted as the masc. nom. sg. ending, giving nom. bór*, gen. bós*. Further, this accusation is also found in Lock TODO, where Lock says that he has been Sib’s lover (bórr). Notably, CV interprets this word as the unrelated bór m. ‘pot-hook’, “insinuating that Thor busied himself with cooking and dairy-work.” This seems very unlikely when considering Thunder’s response in the next verse: “I think that thou liest!” and the parallel in Lock.

- 49 „Mélir þú at munns ráði · svát mér skyldi vęrst þikkja, [R 13v/10, A 1v/5]
 2 halr inn hug-blauði, · hygg’k at þú ljúgir.“

“Thou speakest according to thy mouth’s counsel that which should seem to me the worst;
 O heart-soft man, I think that thou liest!”

- 50 „Satt hygg’k mik segja, · sęinn est at fęr þinni, [R 13v/12, A 1v/6]
 2 langt myndir nú kominn, þórr, · ef þú litum fęrir.“

“I think myself to speak truly: thou art late on thy journey;
 far wouldst thou now have come, Thunder, if thou had brought thy colours.”

2 litum fęrir ‘brought thy colours’ | Very unclear expression. fęra litum TODO.

- 51 „Hárbarðr inn ragi, · hęldr hęfir nú mik dvalðan!“ [R 13v/14, A 1v/8]

“Hoarbeard the degenerate; thou hast now much delayed me!”

- 52 „Ása-þórs · hugða’k aldri-gi myndu [R 13v/14, A 1v/8]
 2 gleppja fé-hirði farar.“

“The journey of Thunder of the Eese I never thought that a shepherd would divert.”

- 53 „Ráð mun’k þér nú ráða: · Ró þú hingat bátinum, [R 13v/15, A 1v/9] 2 hęttum hótingi, · hitt fęður Magna!“

“I will now give thee a counsel: Row the boat hither, stop the taunting, come to the father of Main [= Thunder = me]!”

- 54 „Far þú fęrr sundi, · þér skal fars synja!“ [R 13v/17, A 1v/10]

“Go far from the sound; the ferry shall be denied thee!”

- 55 „Vísu þú mér nú leiðina · alls þú vill mik ęigi of váginn fęrja!“ [R 13v/17, A 1v/11]

“Now show me the way, since thou wilt not ferry me o’er the wave!”

- 56 „Lítit ’s at synja, · langt ’s at fara; [R 13v/18, A 1v/11]

- 2 stund 's til stokksins, · qnnur til stęinsins,

 4 þar mun Fjörgyn · hitta Þór, son sinn, ok mun hęn kęnna hęnum ęttinga brautir · til Óðins landa.“

“It is little to deny; it is long to journey:
 an hour to the log, another to the stone;
 keep thus to the left road, until thou dost find Wereland;
 there will Firgyn find Thunder, her son, and she will teach him the ancestral roads, to Weden's lands [= Osyrd].”

- 57 „Mun'k taka þangat í dag?“ [R 13v/22, A 1v/14]
 “Will I arrive thither today?”

- 58 „Taka við víl ok ęrfiði · at upp-vesandi sólu [R 13v/22, A 1v/14]

 “[Thou wilt] arrive, with toil and hardship, at the rising of the sun as I guess it is thawing.”

- 59 „Skammt mun nú mál okkat vesa, · alls þú mér skótingu ęinni svarar; [R 13v/23, A 1v/15]

 “Now our speech will be short as thou dost answer me only with scoffing;
 I will reward thee for this ferry-denial if we meet another time.
 Go now whither the fiends may have thee all!”

His beard he took to rustle, his locks he took to rip;
the son of Earth resolved to grope about.

1 Vreǰðor | TODO: Note about ambiguity of alliteration.

3 skegg ... dýja 'beard ... pull' | Apparently formulaic. Cf. a certain heroic poem (TODO).

the os^G [= Thunder = I] is robbed of his hammer!”

1 Ok ... of kvað ‘And ... did say’ | The whole line is formulaic, occurring in five other places: sts. 3, 9 and 12 of the present poem; st 3 of Ord; st. 5 of Siw Frag.

¹⁴⁵Formulaic, see Encyclopedia: Earth and Up-heaven^F.

“Wilt thou me, O Frow, the feather-hame^P lend, if I my hammer might find?”

4 „Þó mynda’k gefa þér · þótt ór gulli véri
2 ok þó sælja · at véri ór silfri.“

[Frow quoth:] “I would yet give it to thee though it were golden, and yet hand¹⁴⁶ it to thee as it were silvern.”¹⁴⁷

¹⁴⁶*sælja*, cognate of English sell here has its older sense of ‘hand over’, cf. Gotish saljan Streitberg (1910, p. 116): ‘opfern; θύειν’.

¹⁴⁷Regaining the hammer is of such importance to the gods (cf. st. 17; without it the Eese stand powerless against the Ettins^G), that Frow would lend the feather-hame to the greedy and untrusty Lock, even if it were made out of gold or silver.

1 þǫrsu dróttinn 'lord of Thurses' | This formulaic expression also occurs in several Runic charms against such thursen lords (see below under Galders); an example of the close connection between narrative and ritual poetic language.

 Hast thou the hammer of Loride (= Thunder) hidden?”

1 Hvat 's með *ǫ*sum? · Hvat 's með *ǫ*lfum? 'What is with the Eese? What is with the elves?' | Formulaic, identical line occurs in Wsp.

[Thrim quoth:] “I have the hammer of Loride hidden,

 2 Seg-ðu á lopti · lōng tíðendi!
 Opt sitjanda · sōgur of fallask,
 4 ok liggjandi · lygi of beǵllir.“

“Hast thou an errand of hardship?¹⁵⁰
 Say thou aloft, the long tidings!
 Often the sitter’s tales fail each other and the liar blows up his lie.”¹⁵¹

¹⁵⁰Thunder asks Lock if he has bad news. The collocation ørendi ‘errand’ ... erfiði ‘trouble, hardship’ is formulaic and occurs in X other (TODO!!) places, including in st. 5 of HHarv.

¹⁵¹Proverbial. If one sits or lies (liggjandi means to ‘lie down’; it is rather unfortunate that the two sound the same in English) down and thinks too much over bad news, details will be left out, excuses thought up. Thus it is best that Lock immediately tell Thunder what he has learned.

[Loki kvað:]

11 „Hefi’k ørendi · erfiði ok:

“I have an errand, hardship also:
 Thrim has thy hammer, the lord of Thurses.

[Lock quoth:]

Go they the fair Frow to find,
 and he this word first of all did say:
 “Bind thyself, Frow, with a bride’s linen!
 We two shall drive into the Ettin-homes.”

2 hann ‘he’ | The speaker is either Thunder or Lock.

3 brúðar líni! ‘a bride’s linen’ | Unclear.

 4 „Mik veltst verða · ver-gjarnasta

Wroth became then Frow, and snorted;
 the whole hall of the Eese trembled below;
 down crashed the great torc of the Brisings—“Thou knowest that I will become the most man-eager,¹⁵²
 if I drive with thee into the Ettin-homes.”

¹⁵²Either Frow is speaking out of self-awareness of her own lustful inclinations, or the sense is that she will be accused of being lustful by the other gods, but there is no verb here corresponding to ‘accuse’. For Frow’s promiscuity see Lock 30 and Note.

 he foreknew well like the other Wanes^G:
 “Let us bind Thunder then, with bride’s linen;
 he may have the great necklace of the Brisings^P.

2 vissi vel framm ‘he foreknew well’ | i.e. could predict the future. Compare the derived adjective fram-vís ‘forth-wise, prescient.’

Let us place by his side keys to jingle, and women's garments to fall down about his knees,
 and on the breast broad stones,
 and skillfully let us tip his head!¹⁵³”

¹⁵³This verse contains an interesting description of Viking age bridal dress: As the everyday manager of the household, keys were the mark of a respectable married woman. The “broad stones” on the breast are probably tortoise brooches, while the tipping of the head refers to some sort of bridal hat (TODO: Literature). Breast-brooches are also mentioned in Wǫnl 25, 36.

- 17 Þá kvað þat Þórr, · þrúðugr áss:

- 18 Þá kvað þat Loki · Laufęyjar sonr:
 2 „Þęgi þú, Þórr, · þęira orða!
 Þęgar munu jǫtnar · Ás-garð búa
 4 nęma þú þinn hamar · þér of hęimtir.“

Then quoth this Lock, Leafie's son:
 “Shut up thou, Thunder, with those words!
 Shortly the Ettins will settle Osyrd, unless thou thy hammer for thyself dost fetch!”

- 19 Bundu þęir Þór þá · brúðar líni

 en á brjósti · bręiða stęina
 6 ok hag-liga · of hǫfuð typpðu.

Bound they Thunder then, with bride's linen,
 and with the great necklace of the Brisings.

They placed by his side keys to jingle, and women's garments to fall down about his knees, and on the breast broad stones, and skillfully they tipped his head.

- 20 Þá kvað þat Loki · Laufeyjar sonr:

Then quoth this Lock, Leafie's son:

“I will also with thee be a handmaid;

we two¹⁵⁴ shall drive into the Ettin-homes.”

¹⁵⁴The form used, tvau, is the neuter plural, i.e. one of the pair is female and the other male. This is either an error due to mindless copying of v. 11, or a backhanded insult against Thunder.

- 21 Sęnn vǫru hafrar · hęim of vrekni,

Soon he-goats^{C155} were driven home, hastened onto the cart-poles; they were to run well.

Crags burst, burned the earth with flame;

drove Weden's son [= Thunder] into the Ettin-homes.¹⁵⁶

¹⁵⁵Thunder's cart was driven by he-goats, for which he is called (for instance) “the lord of he-goats” in Hym 20, 31. See Encyclopedia.

¹⁵⁶Thunder's driving of his chariot is often connected with cosmic disturbance. So, his arrival in Lock (st. 55) is signalled by the mountains quaking. The most similar description to the present stanza is found in Thedwolf's Hvl 14–16, where crags (there likewise bjǫrg) burst asunder and fires rage before him. A possibly Indo-European parallel to this is the Vedic myth of Indra breaking the mountains and releasing the mountains (as described most famously in RV hymn 1.32). See also Bdr 3 for a related description of the god Weden's riding.

- 22 Þá kvað þat Þrymr, · Þursa dróttinn:
2 „Standið upp, jǫtnar, · ok stráið bękki!
Nú fǫrið mér · Freyju at kván,
4 Njarðar dóttur · ór Nóa-túnum.

Then quoth this Thrim, the lord of Thurses:

“Stand ye up, ettins, and strew the benches!

Now bring ye me Frow as wife,

Nearth^P's daughter from the Nowetowns^L.

- 23 Ganga hér at garði · gull-hyrnðar kýr,

 4 ęinnar mér Freyju · á-vant þykkir.“

Here march to the estate golden-horned cows,
 all-black oxen, for the ettin's [= my] pleasure.
 A multitude I own of treasures, a multitude I own of necklaces;
 only Frow I think myself missing.”

2 øxn al-svartir 'all-black oxen' | Formulaic, also occurring in Hym 18. That all-black (i.e. spotlessly black) oxen were most valued is seen by the pairing with “golden-horned”. One may also compare Saxo (I.8.12), where the hero Hadding has to atone for his slaying of a heavenly being by the blooting of dark-coloured victims (furvae hostiae): Siquidem propiciandorum numinum gratia Frø deo rem diuinam furuis hostiis fecit. Quem litationis morem annuo feriarum circuitu repetitum posteris imitandum reliquit. Frøblod Sueones uocant. ‘In order to mollify the divinities he [= Hadding] did indeed make a holy sacrifice of dark-coloured victims to the god Frø. He repeated this mode of propitiation at an annual festival and left it to be imitated by his descendants. The Swedes call it Frøblot.’ This ancient ritual taboo is further paralleled e.g. by the Tanakh, where animals dedicated to Yhwh were to be without blemish (עֲדָנִי; Leviticus 1:3) and for the ettins ale brought forth.

 Alone ate he [= Thunder] an ox, eight salmones,
 all the dainties which were meant for the women;
 drank the husband of Sib [= Thunder] three sieves of mead.¹⁵⁷

¹⁵⁷Cf. Hym 15, where Thunder eats two of Hymer's oxen. It is rather interesting that the same kenning is used in both stanzas when both concern the god's great eating; perhaps one poet was playing on the other's expression, or they were both referencing another, now-lost work.

- 25 Þá kvað þat Þrymr, · þursa dróttinn:

In came the wretched sister of the ettins,
 she who for the bride-fee [= Millner] dared ask:
 “Slide off from thy hands the red rings,

if thou wilt win my love,
my love; all [my] holdness^C.”¹⁵⁹

5 ástir mínar, • alla hylli ‘my love; all [my] holdness’ | Probably formulaic. There are no preserved parallels in poetry, but there may be one in Yilv 49 (excerpt, following the death of Balder): En er goðin vitkuðust, þá mælti Frigg ok spurði, hvern sá véri með ásum, er eignast vildi „allar ástir mínar (so TW; ástir bennar ‘her loves’ SU) ok hylli, ok vili hann ríða á bel-veg ok freista, ef hann fái fundit Baldr, ok bjóða Helju út-laun, ef hon vill láta fara Baldr heim í As-garð.“ ‘But when the gods came back to their wits, then Frigg spoke and asked which one among the Eese would own “all my loves and holdness, and will ride on the Hellway^L and see if he may find Balder and offer Hell a ransom if she will let Balder come home to Osyrd.” We can tell from the citation of a Leed-meter stanza at the end of ch. 49 (see Eddic Fragments below) that Snorre knew one or more now-lost Eddic poems about Balder’s death, and it may be that one of these poems contained the same two long-lines as the present stanza. For such a sharing of whole lines cf. e.g. st. 14/1–3 above, which are identical to Bdr 1/1–3.

¹⁵⁹The sister, who was apparently the one who asked for the Hammer, now has the audacity to ask Thunder (disguised as Frow) to give her the very rings on his hands.

30 Þá kvað þat Þrymr, • þursa dróttinn:

“Bear ye in the hammer, the bride to bless;
lay ye Millner in the maiden’s knee;
bless ye us two together by Ware^P’s hand!”

4 Várar ‘Ware’ | According to Snorre one of the goddesses, presiding over vows between men and women. See Encyclopedia.

The Lay of Hymer

(Hymiskviða)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.694)–early C11th (0.268)

Meter: Firnwordslaw

Attested in two manuscripts, R and A. The two agree very well; they share the same stanzas and they come in the same order. The most substantial difference is the header; A has Hymis-kviða ‘the Lay of Hymer’, while R instead has Þórr dró Mið-garðs-orm ‘Thunder pulled the Middenyardsworm’.

The poem is a comedy about Thunder’s adventures in Ettinland. This was probably a popular genre, and is also represented by Thrim, but in spite of these similarities of contents the two poems are far apart stylistically. Whereas Thrim is written in a simple and sparse style with free Firnwordslaw-meter and few kennings, the form of Firnwordslaw used in Hym is unusually strict, almost syllable-counting, and the stanzas are filled with intricate kennings, difficult grammatical constructions and forced word order. In this way Hym is more akin to Scoldic poetry in intricate measures like Drigtquethed than to typical Eddic poetry in Firnwordslaw.

For this reason it seems likely that the anonymous poet of Hym was highly trained in the Scoldic arts, and familiar with composition in more advanced meters. (See TODO: Difference between Scoldic and Eddic). Apart from style and meter, the Scoldic composition context of Hym is also supported by both its dating and subject. There are five extant Scoldic poetic fragments (TODO: list them) that deal with Thunder’s fishing expedition, mostly from the 10th century.

These Scoldic fragments are fragmentary, and (in what survives of them) mostly focus on the scene where Thunder faces off against the hooked Wyrms pressed to the gunwale. There are some interesting verbal correspondences between these fragments and Hym—most strikingly the kenning for the Middenyardsworm in st. 22/4 below—that may also support a common composition context. The fragments do not all agree with each other; in some of them the encounter ends with the cowardly Hymer cutting off the fishing line and the Wyrms sinking back unharmed into the sea (the version preferred by Snorre)—in others Thunder strikes the head off the Wyrms, presumably slaying it.

Numerous pictorial depictions of the myth are found on Wiking Age objects. These are the Swedish Altuna (U 1611) and Linga (Sö 352) runestones, the picture stones from Hørðum, Northern Jutland, a picture stone from Gosforth in Cumbria, and others (TODO). They typically show Thunder standing in the boat with His hammer raised, and the hooked Wyr̥m below it. Several smaller details also appear on these objects: the use of the ox-head for bait (U 1611, Sö 352), Thunder's feet going through the ship (U 1611, Hørdum).

Yilv 48 gives a complete narrative, here paraphrased for the sake of shortness:

Thunder goes out into Middenyard in the shape of a young man (ungr drengr), without his chariot, his goats, or his typical travelling gear. In the evening he comes to the ettin Hymer and begs for lodgings. At dawn Hymer plans to go fishing, and so Thunder asks to join in. Hymer insults Thunder's small stature and youth, and questions his ability to go on such a long and arduous trip as he usually takes. Thunder, angered, says that he will row very far, and then asks Hymer what bait they will use. Hymer tells him to get his own bait, and so he turns to Hymer's flock of oxen and tears off the head from his greatest ox, one named Heavenrid. The two go out to sea, and Thunder rows far past Hymer's usual fishing spot. Hymer, unhappy, warns him that if they row any further out they'll be in danger of the Middenyardswyr̥m, but Thunder goes on. Eventually Thunder puts away the oars, readies a fishing line, hooks the ox-head and lowers it. The Wyr̥m soon bites, and struggles so hard that Thunder is pressed against the gunwale. This angers the god, and he brings himself into his Os-might. Strengthened, he pulls back with such force that his feet go through the bottom of the ship and press into the sea-floor; the Wyr̥m's head goes up against the gunwale. The two archenemies furiously stare at each other, Thunder "sharpening his eyes" and the Wyr̥m spitting venom. Hymer is frightened, reaches for his bait-cutting knife, and cuts off the line—the Wyr̥m then sinks back into the sea. Thunder throws the hammer after it, "and men say that he struck off the monster's head, but I think it true to tell thee, that the Middenyardswyr̥m still lives and lies in the outer sea." Thunder then punches Hymer's ear with his fist so that he is thrown overboard head-first; the god then wades back to land.

This account is clearly based on several sources, possibly including the present poem. The closest wording correspondence is when it is said that Miðgarðs-ormr gein yfir uxa-böfuð'it, en gngull'inn vá í góm'inn orm'inum 'The Middenyardswyr̥m yawned over the ox-head, and the hook went into the roof of the wyr̥m's mouth', which is decently close to st. 22 below. The name Heavenrid (Himinbrjóðr) is otherwise only found in thules listing names of oxen, and the interesting detail of Thunder's feet going through the boat is only paralleled by the Swedish Altuna stone (though see note to st. 34/2 below).

While Yilv 48, the Scoldic fragments, and Hym all share the central narrative of the fishing expedition, Hym has several additional narratives woven into it. That is not to say that Hym consists of multiple originally separate poems. Unlike, say, Highb, which has noticable differences of style and language between its constituent strands, Hym comes off as a strong stylistic and narrative whole, composed by a single poet and thereafter transmitted faithfully. One may roughly identify the following narrative divisions in Hym, of which only numbers 2–4 are found in the other sources for the myth of Thunder's fishing:

1. 1–6 Thunder attempts to force the ettin Eagre to host a banquet for the Gods; Eagre in turn asks for a cauldron big enough to brew enough ale for them all.
2. 7–16 Thunder and Tew go to visit the stingy ettin Hymer, who owns such a cauldron; horrified at Thunder's great appetite during the evening, Hymer tells them that they must eat fish the next.

3. 17–19 Thunder says that he will go fishing if he is given bait; Hymer challenges him to kill one of his oxen for bait; Thunder tears off the head of one.
4. 20–25 Hymer, Thunder and Tew go fishing; Hymer pulls up some whales; with the ox-head as bait Thunder manages to hook the Middenyardsworm itself; he loses it.
5. 26–27 Hymer challenges Thunder to carry the boat and whales back to his farm; he does.
6. 28–32 Hymer challenges Thunder to break a supposedly indestructible chalice; he succeeds by smashing it against the ettin's forehead.
7. 33–36 Thunder and Tew depart with the cauldron; they find themselves followed by a troop led by Hymer; Thunder kills them all.
8. 37–38 Lock makes the leg of one of Thunder's goats halt.
9. 39 Thunder returns to the Gods with Hymer's cauldron; they host a banquet.

The fishing expedition, found at the very center of the poem, is thus framed by the unique narrative of Thunder and Tew obtaining a huge cauldron from Hymer for the sake of brewing ale, and several other superfluous narratives scattered throughout. The poet has not been entirely successful in his endeavour, and there are several loose strands. Most notably the god Tew plays no role at all in the fishing expedition, probably because he was not originally in it; in other variants of the myth (including pictorial depictions, like that from Gosforth), Thunder is only accompanied by Hymer. Tew also lacks a reaction to the murder of his father Hymer, and this familiar relationship is also unparalleled; in Scold 16 Tew is called Weden's Son. Also unclear is the function of Lock's halting one of Thunder's goats (sts. 37–38); he does not appear anywhere else in the poem.

The poem has some interesting reoccurring themes. The “otherness” of the Ettins, specifically Hymer, is constantly emphasized in several ways:

- they live far to the East (st. 5) in an inhospitable, frozen climate (st. 10), associated with mountains (sts. 2, 17) and lava-fields (st. 36)
- they are physically deviant, being misshapen (st. 10), grey-haired (st. 16), many-headed (sts. 8, 35), and very hard-boned (sts. 30–31); they are even likened to apes (st. 20), whales (st. 36) and Danes (st. 17; see note!),
- they are stingy and inhospitable (sts. 9, 16),
- and sarcastic and cowardly (st. 19–20, 25–26, 28–32).

In these ways the Ettins oppose the Old Germanic social norms as represented by the Gods, who live in a lush green climate and are young, beautiful and generous. The one exception is of course Tew's mother in st. 8, who is light-haired (in contrast to the swarthy grandmother, presumably) and generous. Perhaps the poet is implying that it is from her that Tew has inherited his good traits?

The last point, viz. sarcasm and cowardice, is seen throughout the poem in the way Thunder comically humiliates the Ettins, especially by completing challenges issued to him. These follow a similar format: Thunder is given a near-impossible test of strength, which he shortly completes through a mix of physical strength and cleverness, humiliating the challenger. These tests are finding a huge kettle (st. 3, explicitly called Eagre's "revenge" (hǫfn)), taking one of Hymer's oxen for bait (st. 17–18), carrying home Hymer's whales and boat (st. 26), breaking Hymer's finest chalice (st. 28), and perhaps also taking away the kettle (st. 33)—though that may just be Hymer's wishing to finally be rid of the pestering gods.

Much like in Thrim the conflict is finally resolved with righteous hammer-slaughter. After the Gods leave, Hymer tries to get his revenge by ambushing them, but Thunder takes his trusty hammer and kills them all. The poem is clearly humorous and meant to be performed before an audience (see st. 38 where the poet directly addresses the listeners). The original performance context may perhaps be gleaned from the difficult final stanza. TODO: It hints at a performance at a harvest blott.

2 męgi Miskur-blinda ‘lad of Misherblind’ | An unexplained reference. Misherblind might be another name for Firneet, Eagre’s father.

¹⁶¹Having seen that Eagre has a great store of cauldrons, Thunder orders him to brew ale for the feasts of the Eese.

¹⁶²Eagre gets back at Thunder by telling him that he needs a single cauldron which can hold enough ale to supply all the Eese.

¹⁶³According to Webb 31 the Ilewaves were the poisonous wild rushes out of which the ettins emerged, and so it only makes sense that they would be found in the east, where the ettins dwell. Hymer's dwelling even further east than them illustrates his fierce nature.

 Loride’s (Thunder’s) eating far too great;
 “the following evening we three will on game-meat have to live.”

3–4 munum ... lifa ‘the next ... live’ | The poet is pushing at the limits of Old Norse syntax with this word order. In prose word order it should be construed as: at ǫðrum aptni munum vér þrír verða lifa við vęiði-mat, where verða ‘have to, must’ is used like its modern German cognate werden.
 Hymer’s stinginess—he refuses to share more of his own food but instead forces his guests to go hunt—breaks all Indo-European rules of hospitality and illustrates the otherness of the Ettins. See Introduction to the poem.

4 berg-Dana ‘boulder-Danes [ETTINS]’ | Kennings of this type emphasize the otherness of the Ettins (see Introduction to the poem above) by equating them with ethnic foreigners, and are well known from Anlif Gothrunson’s Drape for Thunder (Þórsdrápa), where Ettins are called Scots, Swedes, Danes, Ruges and Hareds; all ethnic enemies of the Norwegian Earl Hathkin, at whose court that poem may have been composed.

 The swain [= Thunder] swiftly turned to the wood, where an ox stood, all-black, before [him].

1 véntir mik | so A; vénti ek R 1 myni-t ‘will not’ | so A; myini ‘will’ R. The A reading is preferable since it makes this the first of Hymer’s several challenges of strength to Thunder, which the god, to the ettin’s humiliation, easily accomplishes.

3 Sveinn ‘The swain’ | Thunder was apparently in the shape of a youth. This detail is also found in Yilv 48, where Snorre writes: Gekk hann út of Miðgarð svá sem ungr drengr ... ‘He went out about Middenyard in the shape of a young warrior’.

4 oxi ... al-svartr ‘all-black ... ox’ | Formulaic, also occurring in Thrim 23; see note there for further parallels to the custom of sacrificing animals of certain colours. It seems that all-black oxen were thought the noblest, and so Thunder’s slaying one instead of an inferior beast is probably intended to humiliate the stingy Hymer. In Yilv 48 we read that: Hann tók inn mesta uxann, er Himin-brjóðr hét, ok sleit af hǫfuðit ok fór með til sjávar. ‘He took the greatest ox, which was called Heavenrid, and tore off its head and went with it to the sea’.

Off the bull broke the counsel-slayer of the thurse [= Thunder]
 the high meadow of the two horns [HEAD] from above.— “Worse by far thy works do seem to the wielder of ships [= Hymer = me] than if thou mightst sit calm.”¹⁶⁸

¹⁶⁸I had originally taken this as Hymer snidely belittling Thunder’s feat of pulling the head off the ox (presumably by the horns); he would have earned greater glory had he simply sat and done nothing. However, it may also be read as a factual statement; Thunder just killed one of his finest oxen, and Hymer would certainly have preferred that he had not.

The scene now shifts, and the party is out at sea. It is possible that a stanza has here been lost, or that it would be indicated in some other way in the original performance.

Bravely deed-ready Thunder pulled the venom-glistening Wyrms up on the gunwale; with the hammer He struck the high mountain of hair [HEAD]— very hideous, from above—on the Wolf's clash-brother [= Middenyardswyrms].

3 hó-fjall skarar 'high mountain of hair [HEAD]' | A rather unfitting kenning, since serpents do not have hair.

The lavafield-monsters [ETTINS] bounded and the bedrock resounded;
 the ancient earth moved all at once;

 sank thereafter that fish [= Middenyardswyrms] into the sea.

1 hrutu | so A; blumðu 'dashed' R. End-rhyme is also used by the poet in st. 3/3.

1 Hraun-gǫlkn 'The lavafield-monsters' | Both mss. have bręin-, which may mean either 'clean' or 'reindeer', neither of which fit. On the other hand braun ONP: 'stone/barren area, wasteland; lavafield' is well attested in scoldic kennings for ettins. The precise meaning of galkn 'monster' (plural gǫlkn) is unclear; but it is attested in three scoldic verses, always in kennings of the type "troll-woman of the shield [AXE]". While the mss. spelling 'galkn' (norm. gálkn) could reflect either singular and plural, the form of the verb is plural. This means that the word cannot be referring to the Middenyardswyrms, refuting the interpretation of Larrington (2014): "the sea-wolf shrieked".

3 [...] | It is very likely that a line is missing here, since the stanzas in the poem otherwise consistently have four lines. In other tellings of the myth it is at this point that Hymer cuts Thunder's fishing line, so that is probably what has been lost.

It is of course impossible to know what exact form it had, but for the reader's enjoyment, based on other poets and the account in Yilv (see introduction to the present poem) I've composed the following variant lines: unds vinr Hrungnis · vað Þórs of skar 'until the friend of Rungner [= Hymer] Thunder's fishing-line did cut'; unds fǫlr Hymir · fekk á saxi 'until pale Hymer grasped the knife'.

4 fiskr 'fish' | The Middenyardswyrms may also be called a "fish" in Grmn 21; see note there.

The unmerry ettin [= Hymer], as they rowed back,

3 ár 'in the early morning' | Finnur Jónsson (1932) suggests svátt at ór 'so that by the oar', but this burdens the meter. Assuming my interpretation is correct, the three would have been out fishing throughout the night.

[R 14v/8, A 6v/4]

¹⁶⁹ Hymer tells Thunder, who having let go of the Wȳrm now has nothing to show for the trip, that he can accomplish something half as good as the pulling of the whales if he carries them home or ties the boat (by the shore).

[R 14v/9, A 6v/6]

Loride (= Thunder) went, grasped the stern, hurled up the lake-nag [BOAT] with the bilge-water;
alone with the oars and the bilge-bucket
he bore to the farm the ettin's brim-swines [WHALES], even through the cauldron of woodland ridges [VALLEY?].

1 á | til á R 5 holt-riða | †holtriba† R

2 með austri ‘with the bilge-water’ | That is, the bilge-water was still inside the boat. As anyone who has handled one knows, this water weighs very much, so this was another great work of strength.

5 holt-riða hver | An uncertain and possibly corrupt kenning. TODO: What do other editors and translators say?

[R 14v/12, A 6v/7]

And yet the ettin, used to stubbornness, over strength of hand did flyte with Thunder;
he called no man strong—although he could row, mightily—unless he broke the chalice.

1 Ok | enn A

1–4 ALL | Even after witnessing numerous great feats of strength Hymer still refuses to admit Thunder's superiority. He now insists on challenging him with breaking his indestructible chalice.

[R 14v/14, A 6v/9]

But Loride (= Thunder), when it came to his hands, impatiently crushed steep stone with glass;
he struck right through the fastened columns;
it was still brought whole before Hymer afterward.

2 bratt-stęin glęri 'steep stone with glass' | That is, he broke the stone columns in Hymer's house with the chalice.

3 sitjandi 'fastened' | This word is ambiguous and can modify either Thunder (in which case it would mean "sitting") or the columns (súlur). I have chosen the latter and read it as signifying their stability.

a great loving counsel, the one she knew:
“Strike against Hymer's skull; it is harder—
the choice-weary ettin's—than every chalice.”

4 kost-móðs jǫtuns 'the choice-weary ettin's' | Presumably referring to the Gods' having already eaten all his choicest food and slain his finest bull.

when I see the chalice thrown before [his] knees!”—
The churl spoke [= Hymer] words: “I cannot say ever again: ‘Thou art brewed, O Ale!’

2 es | om. R 2 fyr | ̥yr̥ R

3–4 kná’k-at ... of h̥eitt. ‘I cannot ... O ale!’ | Hymer laments that with the loss of his finest vessel he will never be able to enjoy his drink again. There is strong irony here since it was he himself who challenged Thunder to break it.

[R 14v/22, A 6v/15]

It would be best if ye might bring the ale-ship [CAULDRON] out of our hall.”
Tew attempted, twice, to move it—each time stood the cauldron still before [him].

2 ̥l-kjól ‘ale-ship [CAULDRON]’ | ̥l-kjól is the accusative of ̥l-kjóll, but in this context (CV: koma, B) we would expect the dative ̥l-kjóli. The meter does not allow for this, however.

2 hofi ‘hall’ | This is the only Old Norse occurrence of the word hof in the sense ‘hall, house’; it otherwise only means ‘temple’ (hove^C). The West Germanic cognates consistently mean ‘hall’, and that is probably the original sense, so it is unclear if this is an instance of foreign influence (if so, most likely Anglo-Saxon) or just a poetic archaism.

4 en á hǣlum · hringar skullu.

The father of Moody [= Thunder] grasped the brim, and stepped down through the floor in the hall;¹⁷¹
Sib's husband [= Thunder] heaved the cauldron up onto his head, and at his heels the rings clattered.

4 hringar skullu 'the rings clattered' | i.e. the chain-links. This detail is mentioned in an example sentence contrasting long and short phonemes in FGT (1950): beyrði til hǫddu, þá er Þórr bar hverinn 'the sound of the pot-links (hadda) was heard when Thunder bore the cauldron'. According to Finnur Jónsson (1932) the chain (or hadda) on a Wiking-age cauldron would have reached across, in which case this would be a reference to the cauldron's enormous size, with its diameter—mentioned in st. 5 as one rest^C—being roughly the same as Thunder's height.

¹⁷¹In the account of Ylfr Thunder is said to have stepped through the boat when trying to pull up the Mid-denyardswyrm. This detail is also seen on the carving of the Altuna stone from Uppland, Sweden; it may have been transposed to this place in the narrative. TODO.

and that the guile-wise Lock did cause.

3 skęr | emend. from meaningless þskjrr RA

1–4 Fóru-t ... olli. ‘They journeyed ... did cause.’ | Lock, who is not mentioned earlier in the poem, was apparently placing curses on the returning party. Snorre mentions this, TODO.

But ye have heard—about that can any god-speaking man more clearly discern—which recompense he [= Thunder] from the lavafield-dweller [ETTIN] got,
as he yielded up both his own children for it.

1 ér ‘ye’ | The audience. As pointed out by Finnur Jónsson (1932) an address to the audience of this type is otherwise unparalleled in Eddic mythological poetry. Such are however fairly common in Scaldic poetry, with which this poem shares several traits (see Introduction above).

2 goð-mólugra ‘god-speaking’ | This word is a hapax, but easily understood. One who is goð-mólugr is ‘able to speak about the god-lore’, i.e. ‘versed in the mythology’.

39 Þrótt-ǫflugr kom • á þing goða
2 ok hafið hver, • þann’s Hymir átti;

4 ǫlðr at Eęgis • ęitt hęr-męitið.

[R 15r/1, A 6v/24]

The valour-mighty one [= Thunder] came onto the Thing^C of the gods, and had that cauldron which Hymer [had] owned;
but well the Wighers^G <= gods> shall drink one ale-feast at Eage’s, every flax-cutting [FALL?].

4 ęitt hęr-męitið ‘one ... flax-cutting’ | A very obscure kenning. La Farge and Tucker (1992) give several interpretations, viz. ęitr-hęr-męitir ‘poison-rope-cutter [SNAKE > WINTER]’, ęitr-orm-męiðir ‘poison-worm-injurer’ [WINTER]. The solution with the minimal amount of emendation is to read ęitt ‘one’ as modifying ǫlðr ‘ale-feast’, and hvęrjan ‘every’ as modifying hęr-męitiðr ‘flax-cutting’, a compound made up of hęrr ‘flax, cord’ and męita ‘to cut’, seemingly referring to an obscure harvest festival. This interpretation is by no means certain.

The Flyting of Lock (Lokasenna)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.965)

Meter: Leed-meter

Preserved in R, directly following Hym, though the poems without doubt were originally separate; the stylistic differences are drastical.

The poem has been interpreted as blasphemous (TODO: elaborate), but shows no linguistic signs of being particularly late.

a Eagre^P, who by another name is called Gymer^P, had prepared an ale-feast for the Eese when he had got the great kettle as is now told.¹⁷² To that gathering came Weden^P and Frie^P, his woman. Thunder^P came not, for he was on the Eastern Way^L. Sib was there, Thunder's woman; Bray^P and Idun^P, his woman. Tew^P was there, he was one-handed.

The Fenrerswolf^P tore his hand off when it was bound.¹⁷³ There was Nearth^P, and his woman Shede^P; Free^P and Frow^L; Wider^P, the son of Weden^P. Lock^P was there, and the servants of Free: Bew^P and Beal^P. There was a great many of the Eese^G and Elves^G¹⁷⁴.

b Eagre had two servants: Femfinger^P and Elder^P. There glowing gold was used instead of fire; the ale there poured itself. That place was a great grith-stead^C.¹⁷⁵ Men greatly praised how good the servants of Eagre were. Lock could not stand to hear that, and he slew Femfinger. Then the Eese shook their shields and screamed at Lock,¹⁷⁶ and chased him away to the forest—but they went to drink. Lock turned back around and met Elder outside. Lock greeted him:

¹⁷²See the immediately preceding Hym.

¹⁷³This detail is probably brought up to chronologically date the events of the poem as happening after the binding of Fenrer in the mythology.

Elder quoth: “Of their weapons they speak, and of their fight-valiance, the sons of the victory-Tews [GODS];
of the Eese and Elves which are here within none is thee a friend in words.”

4 mann-gi ... vinr ‘none ... words.’ | i.e. “none of them say anything good about you.” — The (lack of) alliteration here is very notable, and also occurs in st. 10 (between Viðarr and ulfr, see note there). It could simply be explained by the line being corrupt, but as there are no signs of that we ought to look for other explanations. I see two, namely that (a) the semi-vowel v (/w/) is participating in vowel-alliteration with o. Such an alliteration between v and true vowels is never encountered in Scoldic poetry, but it might have been existed in the simpler Eddic styles; or that (2) the poem (or at least the relevant lines) is of such old age that it was composed before the North Germanic loss of v before rounded vowels. This is supported by the fact that in both the present st. and st. 10 the words beginning with vowels (orð ‘word’, ulfr ‘wolf’) have cognates in other Germanic languages that begin with w, and in the case of the word ulfr this consonant is also attested in several old Scandinavian runic inscriptions. For metrical reasons the lines must postdate syncope, but on the basis of three clearly related C7th runestones from Blekinge (from Stentoften, Gummarp, and Istaby; DR 357–359) the loss of w before rounded vowels is shown also to have occurred after some syncope (so DR 359 hǫpʊwulafʀ Hǫpʊwulʀfʀ). Of course, even if the alliteration indeed is on v, this does not require dating the whole poem to the late Proto-Norse period (indeed, according to the analysis done by Sapp (2022), it is not even the linguistically oldest poem preserved); the older forms could simply be an archaism. A C7th Proto-Norse form of the c-line might be: mannagi ’s þér in wordé winir*.

[Lock] quoth: “Shut up thou, Giben! Him will I now mention, who seduced thy senses:

the white swain who gave thee a necklace, and thou cast o'er [him] thy leg!”

[Óðinn kvað] þat: 21 „Örr est, Loki, · ok ør-viti
2 es þú fęr þer Gęfjun at gręmi
því-at aldar ør-løg · hygg at ęll of viti
4 jafn-gørla sem ek.“

[Weden quoth] this:

“Mad art thou, Lock, and out of wits,

as thou earnest Giben's anger against thee,

for all orlays of people I ween that she should know,

just as clearly as I.”

1 Örr ... ok ør-viti ‘Mad ... and out of wits’ | Formulaic, occurs at two other places (TODO), and is probably alluded to in st. TODO of the present poem.

[Loki] kvað: 22 „Þęgi þú, Óðinn, · þú kunnir aldri-gi

2 deila víg með verum;
 opt þú gaft · þeim's gefa skyldir-a,
 4 inum slévvurum, sigr.“

[Lock] quoth: “Shut up thou, Weden! Thou couldst never deal out war amongst men—oft thou gavest to them thou shouldst not have given,
 to the slower men victory.”

[Óðinn] kvað: 23 „Veitst ef ek gaf · þeim's gefa né skylda,
 2 inum slévvurum, sigr,
 átta vetr · vast fyr jörð neðan 4 kýr mólkandi ok kona ok hefir þar börn of borit
 6 ok hugða'k þat args aðal.“

[Weden] quoth: “Know that if I gave to them I should not have given,
 to the slower men victory:
 for eight winters wast thou beneath the earth [as] a milch cow and a woman, and thou hast there borne children,
 and I've judged that a degenerate's nature.”

4 kýr mólkandi 'a milch cow' | May also be read as “milking cows”, the nom. sg. kýr being identical to the nom./acc. pl. kýr, and mólka meaning both ‘to milk’ and ‘to give milk’. “Milch cow” is preferable for two reasons, viz. (i) that the phrase is followed by ok kona ‘and a woman’ rather than sem kona ‘as a woman’ or similar, and (ii) that it agrees with another instance where Lock is gives birth in the form of a female animal (cows, of course, only giving milk after calving), namely the episode of the building of the wall around Otyard as told in Yfiv 42.

[Loki] kvað: 24 „En þik síga kóðu · Sámseyju í
 2 ok drapt á vett sem vqlur, vitka líki · fórt ver-þjóð yfir,
 4 ok hugða'k þat args aðal.“

[Lock] quoth: “But thou, they said, didst sink down into Samsy, and thou beatst the drum like [do] wallows.
 In the likeness of a sorcerer thou journeyedst among the nations of men,
 and I've judged that a degenerate's nature.”

[Frigg kvað:] 25 „Or-logum ykkrum · skylið aldri-gi
 2 segja seggjum frá,
 hvat it  sir tveir · drýgðuð í ár-daga;

4 þótt hón sjölf-gi sęgi.“

[Frow quoth:] “Mad art thou, Lock, as thou dost count your ugly loathsome deeds:
all orlays I ween that Frie might know,
though she say them not herself.”

[Loki kvað:] 30 „Þęgi þú, Freyja, · þik kann’k full-gørva;
2 es-a þér vamma vant:
ása ok alfa, · es hér inni eru,
4 hvern hęfir þinn hór vesit.“

[Lock quoth:] “Shut up thou, Frow! I know thee full well—thou art not free of blemishes:
of the Eese and Elves which are here within each one has been thy lover!”

2 vamma vant ‘free of blemishes’ | Formulaic, cf. Higb 22: hann es-a vamma vanr ‘he is not free of blemishes’.

[Freyja kvað:] 31 „Fló ’s þér tunga, · hygg at þér fremr myni
2 ó-gótt of gala;
vręiðir ’ru þér ęsir · ok ősynjur,
4 hryggr munt hęim fara.“

[Frow quoth:] “False is thy tongue, I ween that it henceforth will sing evil [into being] for thee.
Wroth against thee are the Eese and Ossens:
grieved wilt thou journey home.”

1–2 Fló ... gala; ‘False ... thee’ | The language is again strikingly similar to Higb, particularly 29/3–4: “A quick-spoken tongue—unless it be held in place—oft sings evil [into being] for itself (opt sér ó-gótt of gęlr).” and 116/3–4: “a false-counseling tongue (flá-ręð tunga) brought his life to its end, and in no way over a truthful charge.”

4 hryggr munt hęim fara ‘grieved wilt thou journey home’ | Frow here predicts the future; Lock will come to regret his insults.

Loki: 32 „Þęgi þú, Freyja, · þú est for-dęða 2 ok męini blandin mjök, síðst-u at bróðr þínum · síðu blíð řęgin
4 ok myndir þá, Freyja, frata.“

Lock [quoth]: “Shut up thou, Frow! Thou art an evil-working woman,
and much mixed with harm,

since against thy brother the blithe Reins enchanted thee,
and thou wouldst then, O Frow, fart.”

Njörðr: 33 „Þat ’s vá-lítit · þótt sér varðir vers fái, 2 hós eða hvárs;
 hitt’s undr, es áss ragr · es hér inn of kominn
 4 ok hefir sá börn of borit.“

Nearth [quoth]: “It is little woe that women should get themselves a man,
a lover or whomever else;
this is a wonder, that a degenerate os is come here within,
and he has born children!”

Loki: 34 „Þegi þú, Njörðr, · þú vast austr heðan
 2 gísl of sendr at goðum;
 Hymis meyjar · hefðu þik at hland-trogi
 4 ok þér í munn migu.“

Lock [quoth]: “Shut up thou, Nearth! Thou wast east hence sent [as] a hostage for the Gods.
Hymer’s maidens had thee for a urinal,
and pissed thee in the mouth!”

Njörðr: 35 „Sú esumk líkn · es vas’k langt heðan
 2 gísl of sendr at goðum:
 þá ek mōg gat · þann’s mann-gi fíar,
 4 ok þikkir sá ása jaðarr.“

Nearth [quoth]: “That is my relief, as I was far-away hence sent [as] a hostage for the Gods: [that] I then begot that lad whom no man hates [= Free], and he seems the peak of the Eese.”

Loki: 36 „Hétt-u nú, Njörðr, · haf á hófi þik;
 2 mun’k-a því leyna lengr:
 við systur þinni · gatst slíkan mōg,
 4 ok es-a þó ónu verr.“

Lock [quoth]: “Stop thou now, Nearth, restrain thyself;
I will no longer hide it:
by thy sister begotst thou such a lad, and there can be expected nothing worse.”

Týr: 37 „Frēyr ’s bētstr · allra ball-riða 2 ása gǫrðum í;
 mey né grótir · né manns konu,
 4 ok leysir ór hǫptum hvērñ.“

Tew [quoth]: “Free is the best of all bold riders
 in the yards of the Eese;
 he makes no maiden cry, nor [any] man’s woman, and loosens each from his bonds!”

Loki: 38 „Þegi þú, Týr, · þú kunnir aldri-gi 2 bera tilt með tvēim;
 handar ennar hógri · mun’k hinnar geta
 4 es þér sleit Fēnrir frá.“

Lock [quoth]: “Shut up thou, Tew! Thou couldst never settle strife among two;
 the right hand I will next mention, which from thee Fenrer tore.”

2 bera tilt með tvēim ‘settle strife among two’ | Uncertain. See TODO.

Týr: 39 „Handar em’k vanr · en þú Hróðrs-vitnis;
 2 bǫl es þeggja þráa;
 ulf-gi hefir ok vel · es í bǫndum skal
 4 bíða ragna rǫkrs.“

Tew [quoth]: “A hand am I lacking, but thou Rothwitner;
 both yearnings are a bale!
 Nor does the Wolf have it well, who in bonds shall await the Twilight of the Reins.”

Loki: 40 „Þegi þú, Týr, · þat varð þinni konu
 2 at hon átti mǫg við mér!
 Qln né þenning · hafðir þess aldri-gi
 4 van-réttis, vę-sall.“

Lock [quoth]: “Shut up thou, Tew! This happened to thy woman, that she had a lad by me!
 A mackerel nor a penny hadst thou never for that injustice, O wretch!”

3 Qln ‘mackerel’ | Very uncertain. See TODO.

- Frēyr: 41 „Ulf sé’k liggja · áar-ósi fyr 2 unds rjúfask rēgin;
 því munt nēst, · nema nú þegir,
 4 bundinn, bōlva smiðr!“

Free [quoth]: “The Wolf I see lying before the river-mouth, until the Reins are ripped;
 therefore wilt thou next—unless thou now shut up—
 be bound, O smith of bales!”

- Loki: 42 „Gulli keypta · létst Gymis dóttur 2 ok sēldir þitt svá sverð, en es Múspells synir · ríða Myrk-við yfir
 4 vēitst-a þá, vę-sall, hvé vęgr!“

Lock [quoth]: “Bought with gold hadst thou Gymer’s daughter [= Gird], and didst so sell thy sword— but when Muspell’s sons ride over Mirkwood knowest thou, not, O wretch, how to fight!”

- Byggvir: 43 „Vēitst ef øðli étta’k · sem Ingunar-Frēyr, 2 ok svá sēl-ligt setr:
 męrgi smęra · mōlða’k þá męin-krōku
 4 ok lęmða alla í liðu.“

Bewe [quoth]: “Know, if I owned a pedigree like Ingwin-Free, and such blessed pasture— smaller than marrow would I mill this harm-crow [= Lock],
 and beat all its limbs lame!”

- Loki: 44 „Hvat ’s þat it litla · es þat lōggra sé’k
 2 ok snap-víst snapir?
 At ęyrum Fręys · munt ę vesa
 4 ok und kvęrnum klaka.“

Lock [quoth]: “What is this little thing which I see crawling, and snap-wisely snapping?
 At Free’s ears wilt thou always be,
 and chirping under mills.”

- [Byggvir kvað:] 45 „Byggvir ek hęiti, · en mik bráðan kveða 2 goð ęll ok gumar;

því em'k hér hróðugr · at drekka Hropts megir
 4 allir ǫl saman.“

[Bewe quoth:] “Bewe I am called, but hurried do call me
 all Gods, and men;
 therefore am I here glorious, as Rof's lads [EASE] drink ale all together.”

[Loki kvað:] 46 „Þegi þú, Byggvir, · þú kunnir aldri-gi
 2 deila með mǫnnum mat;
 ok þik í flets strá · finna né mǫttu
 4 þá's vǫgu verar.“

[Lock quoth:] “Shut up thou, Bewe! Thou couldst never divide food among men,
 and in the bench-straw could they not find thee,
 when warriors fought.”

[Hēimdallr kvað:] 47 „Ǫlr est, Loki · svá't es ǫr-viti,
 2 hví né lętsk-a þú, Loki?
 því-at of-drykkja · vęldr alda hveim
 4 es sína męlgi né man-at.“

[Homedall quoth:] “Drunk art thou, Lock, so that thou art out of wits;
 why dost thou not hold back, O Lock?
 For over-drinking causes for every man that he no longer recalls his speech.”

[Loki kvað:] 48 „Þegi þú, Hēimdallr, · þér vas í ár-daga
 2 it ljóta líf of lagit;
 ǫrgu baki · munt ę vesa
 4 ok vaka vǫrðr goða.“

[Lock quoth:] “Shut up thou, Homedall! For thee was in days of yore thy ugly life laid [in place];
 with a stiff back wilt thou ever be and waking, O Watchman of the Gods.”

2 líf of lagit ‘life laid [in place]’ | Formulaic. See TODO.

4 vǫrðr goða ‘Watchman of the Gods’ | Formulaic epithet of Homedall, who had to guard the rainbow bridge of the Gods against Their enemies. See note to Grmn 13.

- [X kvað:] 49 „Létt ’s þér, Loki; · mun-at-tu lēngi svá 2 lēika lausum hala, því at þik á hjörvi skulu · ins hrím-kalda magar
 4 gǫrnum binda goð.“

“’Tis light for thee, Lock—thou wilt not so for long play with loose tail:
 for on a sword shall, with the rime-cold lad’s guts, the Gods bind thee.”

- [Loki kvað:] 50 „Veitst ef mik á hjörvi skulu · ins hrím-kalda magar 2 gǫrnum binda goð,
 fyrstr ok øfstr · vas’k at fjör-lagi
 4 þar’s vér á þjatsa þrifum.“

[Lock quoth:] “Know, if on a sword shall, with the rime-cold lad’s guts, the Gods bind me:
 first and highest was I in life-taking,
 where we laid hands on Thedse.”

- [X kvað:] 51 „Veitst ef fyrstr ok øfstr · vast at fjör-lagi 2 þá’s ér á þjatsa þrifuð, frá mínum véum · ok vǫngum skulu
 4 þér é kǫld rǫð koma.“

“Know, if first and highest thou wast in life-taking, when ye laid hands on Thedse:
 from my wighs and wongs shall for thee always cold counsels come.”

- [Loki kvað:] 52 „Léttari í mólum · vast við Laufeyjar son 2 þá’s létsk mér á bæð þinn boðit;
 getit verðr oss slíks · ef vér gǫrva skulum
 4 tēlja vǫmmin vǫr.“

[Lock quoth:] “Lighter of speech wast thou with Leafie’s son [= Lock = me] when thou hadst me invited to thy bed;
 such is told of us, if we shall clearly tell our blemishes.

P4 Þá gekk Sif fram ok byrlaði Loka í hrím-kálki mjöð ok mēlti:

Then Sib walked forth and poured for Lock mead into a rime-chalice, and spoke:

53 „Heill ves þú nú, Loki, · ok tak við hrím-kálki
 2 fullum forns mjaðar, heldr þú hana ęina · látir með ása sonum
 4 vamma-lausa vesa.“

“Hale be thou now, O Lock, and receive the rime-chalice, full of ancient mead,
 that thou rather let her [me] alone, among the sons of the Eese, remain blemish-less.¹⁸²”

¹⁸²Sib attempts to bribe Lock with drink, so that she alone will remain unaccused among the gods.

P5 Hann tók við horni ok drakk af:

He received the horn and drank from it:

54 „Ęin þú vęrir · ef þú svá vęrir,
 2 vęr ok gręm at veri;
 ęinn ek vęit, · svá’t ek vita þikkjumk, 4 hór ok af Hlórriða, ok vas þat sá inn lę-vísi Loki.“

“Alone were thou, if thou so were wary and wroth against man.
 I know one—which I think myself to know—adulterer behind even Loride’s back, and that was the guile-wise Lock!”

5 lę-vísi Loki ‘guile-wise Lock’ | Formulaic, also occurring in Hym 37. Cf. also Wsp 35 where Lock is called lę-gjarn ‘guile-eager’ and note to Wsp 17 where Lothar (possibly to be identified with Lock) gives men lę, which may be an accusative form of lę.

[Beyla kvað:]

55 „Fjoll ęll skjalfa, · hygğ á fęr vesa
 2 heįman Hlórriða;
 hann ręðr ró · þeim’s rógir hér
 4 goð ęll ok guma!“

[Beal quoth:] “The fells all quake—I think on the journey from home Loride to be;

he brings calm to the one who here maligns
all Gods and men!”

1–2 Fjöll ... Hlórriða ‘The fells ... to be’ | Thunder’s movement is often signalled by such disturbance in poetry.
See note to Thrim 21.

[Loki kvað:]

56 „Þegi þú, Beyla, · þú est Bbyggvis kvæn
2 ok męini blandin mjøk;
ó-kynjan męira · kom-a með ása sonum;
4 ęll est, dęigja, dritin.“

[Lock quoth:] “Shut up thou, Beal! Thou art Bewe’s wife,
and much mixed with harm;
a greater disgrace came not among the sons of the Eese;
thou art all, O kneadess, shitty!”

P6 Þá kom Þórr at ok kvað:

Then Thunder arrived and quoth:

57 „Þegi þú, ręg vęttr, · þér skal minn þrúð-hamarr,
2 Mjöllnir, mál fyr-nema!
Hęrða klett · drep’k þér halsi af,
4 ok verðr þá þínu fįrvi of farit.“

“Shut up thou, degenerate wight! Thee shall my thrith-hammer Millner, deprive of speech!
The shoulder-rock [HEAD] I strike off thy neck, and then is thy life destroyed!”

[Loki kvað:]

58 „Jarðar burr · es hér nú inn kominn;
2 hví þrasir þú svá, Þórr?
En þá þorir ękki · es skalt við ulfinn vega
4 ok svelgr hann allan Sig-fęður.“

[Lock quoth:] “The son of Earth is now here come inside, why thrashest thou so, O Thunder?
But then darest thou not, as thou shalt fight against the wolf, and he swallows Syefather (= Weden) whole.”

[Þórr kvað:]
59 „Þegi þú, rög vэтtr, · þér skal minn þrúð-hamarr,
 2 Mjöllnir, mál fyr-nema!
 Upp ek þér verp · ok á austr-vega
 4 síðan þik mann-gi sér.“

[Thunder quoth:] “Shut up thou, degenerate wight! Thee shall my thrith-hammer Millner, deprive of speech!

Up I throw thee, and onto the eastern ways thereafter no man sees thee!”

[Loki kvað:]
60 „Austr-förum þínum · skalt aldri-gi
 2 segja seggjum frá
 síðst í hanska þumlungi · hnúkðir þú, ein-hęri,
 4 ok þóttisk-a þá Þórr vesa!“

[Lock quoth:] “Of thy eastern journeys shalt thou never speak to youths,
 since in the thumb of a glove thou didst crawl, O Oneharrier, and didst not seem to be Thunder then!”

4 ok þóttisk-a þá Þórr vesa ‘didst not seem to be Thunder then’ | Cf. Hbl TODO.

[Þórr kvað:]
61 „Þegi þú, rög vэтtr, · þér skal minn þrúð-hamarr,
 2 Mjöllnir, mál fyr-nema!
 hęndi inni hógri · drep’k þik Hrunnis bana,
 4 svá’t þér brotnar beina hvat.“

[Thunder quoth:] “Shut up thou, degenerate wight! Thee shall my thrith-hammer Millner, deprive of speech!

With the right hand I strike thee with Rungner’s bane, so that every bone in thee breaks.”

[Loki kvað:]
62 „Lifa étla’k mér · langan aldr
 2 þótt hótir hamri mér;
 skarpar álar · þóttu þér Skrymis vesa 4 ok máttir-a þá nęsti náa ok svaltsk þá hungri hęill.“

[Lock quoth:] “For myself I intend to live a long life, even though thou threatenest me with the hammer;
 TODO.”

[Þórr kvað:]

- 63 „Þegi þú, rög vétr, · þér skal minn þrúð-hamarr,
 2 Mjöllnir, mál fyr-nema!
 Hrungnis bani · mun þér í hæl koma
 4 fyr Ná-grindr neðan.“

[Thunder quoth:] “Shut up thou, degenerate wight! Thee shall my thrith-hammer Millner, deprive of speech!
 Rungner’s bane will take thee to hell, down beneath Neegrind!”

[Loki kvað:]

- 64 „Kvað’k fyr ǫsum, · kvað’k fyr ása sonum, 2 þat’s mik hvatti hugr,
 en fyr þér ǫinum · mun’k út ganga
 4 því-at ek veit at þú vegr.

[Lock quoth:] “I spoke before the Eese, I spoke before the sons of the Eese whatever my mind did goad me.
 but for thee alone will I go out,
 for I know that thou strikest.

- 65 Ǫl gørðir þú, Égir, · en þú aldri munt 2 síðan sumbl of gøra;
 ǫiga þín ǫll, · es hér inni es, 4 lēiki yfir logi
 ok brenni þér á baki.“

Ale madest thou, Eagre, but thou wilt never since make a simble;
 all thy ownings which are here within,
 over [them] may flame play,
 and burn thee on the back!”

From Lock (Frá Loka)

The myth told here is known from two other places. Closest at hand is Wsp

Yilv 50 has a longer but somewhat different account: the Eese captured Lock’s two sons, Wonnell and “Nare or Narve”. They turned Wonnell into a wolf (vargr, which also means ‘outlaw’) and had him tear his brother Narve apart. Narve’s intestines were then taken and used to bind Lock on top of three pointed stones, with one digging into his shoulder-blades, the other digging into his loins, and the third digging into his houghs. The intestines then turned into iron.

Since the author of Yilv knew Wsp, it is possible that he combined a text similar to From Lock with this st., interpreting Vála víg-bond as ‘Wonnell’s war-bonds’ and vargr as ‘wolf’ rather than the more probable ‘outlaw’. Wonnell is otherwise only known as the son of Weden, and there is no reason as to why he could not have bound Lock. For further differences between Yilv and From Lock see introduction to From Lock below.

- P7 En eptir þetta falst Loki í Fránangrs-forsi í lax líki. Þar tóku ésir hann.
 2 Hann var bundinn með þǫrmum sonar Nara; en Narfi, sonr hans, varð at vargi. Skaði tók eittr-orm ok festi upp yfir and-lit Loka; draup þar ór 4 eittr. Sigyn, kona Loka, sat þar ok helt munn-laug undir eitrit. En er munn-laugin var full bar hon út eitrit, en meðan draup eitrit á Loka. Þá 6 kipptist hann svá hart við, at þaðan af skalf jörð ǫll; þat eru nú kallaðir land-skjálftar.

But after this Lock hid himself in the Freenangersforce in the form of a salmon. There the Eese took him. He was bound with the intestines of his son Nare, but his son Narve became an outlaw. Shede took a venomous serpent and fastened it over Lock’s face; out of it dripped venom. Syein, Lock’s wife, sat there and held a basin [for hand-washing] under the venom. But when the basin was full she bore out the venom, and meanwhile the venom dripped on Lock. Then he revolted so hard that thence all the earth quaked; that is now called earth-quakes.

The Speeches of Shirner (Skírnismöl)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.897)
Meter: Leed-meter, Galderlaw (TODO)

The whole poem is attested in both R and A. The name Skírnismöl ‘Speeches of Shirner’ comes from A; R has in the typical titular red ink För Skírnis ‘Shirner’s journey’.

The same myth is told in prose in Yilv 37. A single stanza of the present poem is quoted there, namely the last one, with some minor differences in wording that would seem to stem from oral tradition (see Note to st. 42 below). It is unlikely that the author of Yilv knew of the narrative through an oral tradition which included only the last verse, chiefly since his paraphrase does not add a single detail not found in the present poem, but on the other hand condenses and abbreviates. So, Shirner’s journey and curse (roughly sts. 10–38 here) is simply summarized in the following manner: “Then Shirner journeyed and requested the woman [i.e. Gird] for him [i.e. Free], and received her promise, that nine nights later she would come to the place which is called Barrey, and have a wedding with Free.” The summarising of a narrative mythic poem with a single verse quotation in the form of a dialogue-stanza is something done several times in Yilv; see Eddic fragments from Snorre’s Edda below.

On the other hand, the paragraph in Yilv 37 corresponding to what is here P1 is much more detailed and reads: “Gymer was a man called, and his woman Earbode; she was of the lineage of mountain-risers. Their daughter is Gird, who is fairest of all women. It was one day when Free had gone to Lithshelf and looked about all the Homes, but when he looked to the north he saw on a farm a great and fine house, and to that house walked a woman, and when she lifted her hands and closed the doors before her, then it did shine from her hands both into the air and onto the waters, and all the homes were brightened by her. And that beauty, which he had seen in that holy seat, harmed him so that he walked away filled with pain, and when he came home he spoke nothing; he neither slept nor drank; nobody dared to get words out of him. Then Nearth had Shirner, Free’s shoe-swain, called unto himself, and asked him to go to Free and ask him to speak, [...]”

- P1 Freyr, sonr Njarðar, hafði einn dag setsk í Hlið-skjálfr ok sá um heima alla; [R 11r/10, A 2r/11]
 2 hann sá í Jötun-heima ok sá þar mey fagra, þá er hon gekk frá skála fǫður síns til skemmu; þar af fekk hann hug-sóttir miklar. Skírnir hét skó-sveinn 4 Freys. Njorðr bað hann kveðja Frey máls. Þá mēlti Skaði:

Free^P, son of Nearth^P, had one day set himself in Lithshelf^D and looked about all the Homes^C. He looked into the Ettinhomes^L and saw there a fair maiden as she walked from her father's hall to her bower; thereof he got great heart-aches. Shirner^P was called the shoe-swain of Free. Nearth asked him to speak with Free. Then Shede^P spoke:

- 1 „Rís-tu nú Skírnir · ok gakk at beiða [R 11r/14, A 2r/15] 2 okkarn mál mǫg, ok þess at fregna · hvēim hinn fróði séi
 4 of-rēði afi.“

“Rise thou now, Shirner, and go to ask our lad [= Free] for speech;
 and to learn at whom the wise man [= Free] might be cross.”

1 rís ... beiða ‘Rise ... ask’ | Alliteration is missing here. A simple solution would be to replace gakk ‘go’ with a synonym like rinn ‘run’ or ráð ‘resolve’, but this lessens the semantic mirroring with l. 2/2 below (though, the insertion of the verb ganga in the present stanza may in fact be due to influence from 2/2).

4 afi ‘man’ | While this word usually means ‘father’ or ‘grandfather’, it must here certainly mean ‘man’ without a connotation of old age. See further CV.

- Skírnir kvað: 2 „Ilra orða · es mér ón at ykkrum syni, [R 11r/15, A 2r/17] 2 ef ek geng at mēla við mǫg,
 ok þess at fregna, · hvēim hinn fróði séi
 4 of-rēði afi.“

Shirner quoth: “Bad words I expect from your son [= Free], if I go with the lad to speak;
 and to learn at whom the wise
 man might be cross.”

- Skírnir: 3 „Sæg þat Freyr, · folk-valdi goða, [R 11r/17, A 2r/18] 2 ok ek vilja vita,
 hví þú ęinn sitr · ęnd-langa sali,
 4 minn dróttinn, of daga?“

Shirner [quoth]: "Tell it, O Free, troop-wielder of the gods;
I too would wish to know:
why thou sittest alone in the endlong halls,
my lord, during the days?"

Freyr: 4 „Hví of sęgja’k þér, · sęgr hinn ungi, [R 11r/19, A 2r/20] 2 mikinn móð-trega?
því-at alf-røðull · lýsir of alla daga
4 ok þęygi at mínum munum.“

Free [quoth]: “Why should I tell thee, O young youth,
[of my] great mood-grief?
For the elf-wheel [SUN] shines during all days,
and naught to my liking.”

Skírnir: 5 „Muni þína · hykk-a svá mikla vesa, [R 11r/20, A 2r/21] 2 at þú mér sęggr né sęgir;
ungir saman · vörum í ár-daga,
4 vel méttim tveir trúask.“

Shirner [quoth]: "Thy liking I do not think so great, that thou, O youth, should not tell me [of it].
Young together were we in days of yore;
we two might well trust each other."

2 segger 'youth' | This word usually means simply 'man', but it seems to have a specific connotation with youth. Its original meaning is 'messenger', and the semantic shift is thus: 'messenger' > 'young man' > 'warrior/man'. The sense of 'young man' is also seen in Wayl 23, where it is used in reference to king Nithad's two young sons. In the present stanza it answers Free's addressing Shirner as segger binn ungi 'the young youth'; Shirner points out that the two are of equal age, and so Free is as much of a young man as he.

Fréyr: 6 „Í Gymis gorrðum · ek ganga sá [R 11r/22, A 2r/23] 2 mér tíða mey;
armar lýstu, · en af þaðan
4 allt lopt ok loqr.

Free [quoth]: “In Gymer’s yards I saw walking a maiden, dear to me.
The arms shone, but thereof
all the air and sea.

4 lopt ok logr 'air and sea' | Formulaic and very old, also paralleled in the Anglo-Saxon. TODO.

7 Mēr 's mér tíðari · an manna hvēim
 2 ungum í ár-daga;
 ása ok alfa · þat vill ęngi maðr,
 4 at vit sátt séim.“

[R 11r/24, A 2r/24]

The maiden is dearer to me than to any man young in days of yore.

Of the Eese and Elves^F does no man¹⁸³ wish that we two should be brought together.”

¹⁸³i.e. ‘person’. For other examples of gods being called men see note to final st. of Webth (TODO).

Skírnir: 8 „Mar gef mér þá, · es mik of myrkvan beri
 2 vísan vafr-loga,
 ok þat sverð, · es sjalft vegisk
 4 við jǫtna ęt.“

[R 11r/25, A 2r/25]

Shirner [quoth]: “The steed then give me, which might bear me over the dark,
 wise wavering-flame;
 and that sword, which by itself might strike against the line of the Ettins^G.”

Fręyr: 9 „Mar þér þann gef’k, · es þik of myrkvan berr
 2 vísan vafr-loga,
 auk þat sverð, · es sjalft mun vegask,
 4 ef sá ’s horskr es hęfr.“

[R 11r/27, A 2r/27]

Free [quoth]: “That steed I give thee, which bears thee over the dark,
 wise wavering-flame;
 and that sword which by itself will strike,
 if he is wise who owns it.”

1–4 berr ‘bears’; mun vegask, ef sá ’s horskr es hęfr ‘will strike, if he is wise who owns it’ | In his response Free replaces the subjunctive verb forms (beri ‘might bear’, vegisk ‘might strike’) with indicative and future forms, giving a sense of certainty and authority. The steed and sword are faultless, and if Shirner fails on the mission, it would be only due to his own fault (“if he is sharp who owns it.”).

P2 Skírnir męłti við hest’inn:

Shirner spoke with the horse:

10 „Myrkt es úti, · mál kveð’k okkr fara

[R 11r/29, A 2r/28]

2 úrig fjöll yfir
 þursa þjóð yfir;
 4 báðir vit komumk · eða okkr báða tēkr sá hinn ám-átki jōtunn.“

“Tis dark outside; I declare it time for us to journey over the drizzling mountains,
 over the tribe of the Thurses^G.
 Both two [shall] we come [over], or us both does take that unnatural ettin.¹⁸⁴”

3 þursa ‘of the Thurses’ | so A; þyria R

5 ám-átki jōtunn ‘unnatural ettin’ | Formulaic. See note to Wsp 8.

¹⁸⁴Shirner declares his intention not to abandon the horse given to him by his lord; they will either both make it, or both perish.

P3 Skírnir reið i Jōtun-heima til Gymis garða; þar vāru hundar ólmir ok bund- [R 11r/31, A 2v/1] 2 nir fyrir skíð-garðs hliði þess, er um sal Gerðar var. Hann reið at þar, er fē-hirðir sat á haugi, ok kvaddi hann:

Shirner rode into the Ettinhomes, to Gymer’s yards. There were fierce hounds bound in front of the slope of the wooden fence which surrounded Gird’s¹⁸⁵ hall. He rode to where a shepherd sat on a mound, and greeted him:

¹⁸⁵It is first now that we are informed of the maiden’s name.

11 „Sęg þat hirðir, · es á haugi sitr
 2 ok varðar alla vega:
 hvé ek at and-spilli · komumk hins unga mans
 4 fyr greyjum Gymis.“

[R 11v/2, A 2v/4]

“Say this, O herdsman, who on the mound dost sit,
 and watchest all the ways:
 How I to discourse might come with the young girl [= Gird], past the greyhounds of Gymer?”

[Hirðir] kvað:

12 „Hvart est fęigr, · eða est framm ginginn
 2 [...];
 and-spillis vanr · þú skalt ę vesa
 4 góðrar meýjar Gymis.“

[R 11v/4, A 2v/5]

[The herdsman] quoth:
 “Either art thou fey, or gone forth [DEAD];
 [...].
 Discourse-less shalt thou always be,
 with the good maiden of Gymer [= Gird].”

4 góðrar meyjar ‘good maiden’ | Formulaic, carrying with it a sense of chastity. See note to Higb 102/1 for further occurrences.

[Skirnir] kvað: 13 „Kostir ’ru bętri · an klökkva séi [R 11v/6, A 2v/7] 2 hvęim es fúss es fara, ęinu dógri · mér vas aldr of skapaðr
 4 ok alt líf of lagit.“

[Shirner] quoth: “Choices are better than sobbing might be for whomever is eager to journey.
 In one half-day my age was shaped,
 and all my life laid down.¹⁸⁶”

1 an ‘than’ | so A; þeldr an at ‘rather than to [be]’ R

1 Kostir ‘Choices’ | i.e. ‘alternatives, other ways’.

¹⁸⁶ An excellent example of the fatalistic Germanic worldview, in which one’s course of life was determined (“laid down”) at birth (“in one half-day”). Presumably after uttering these words Shirner rides through the fire surrounding the fortress. — The causative leggja ‘to lay (down, in place)’ is closely connected to fate; the expression is formulaic. Cf. Lock 48: i ár-daga vas þér bit ljóta líf of lagit ‘in days of yore was thy ugly life laid down’ and Wsp 19: þér lög lögðu ‘they [= the Norns] laid down laws’.

[Gęrðr] kvað: 14 „Hvat ’s þat hlym hlymja · es hlymja hęyri’k nú til [R 11v/7, A 2v/8] 2 ossum rønnum í?
 ęrð bifask, · en allir fyr
 4 skjalfa garðar Gymis.“

[Gird] quoth:
 “What is that din of dins, which I of dins now hear in our halls?
 The earth quakes, but before [me] tremble
 all Gymer’s yards.”

Ambótt kvað: 15 „Maðr ’s hér úti, · stiginn af mars baki, [R 11v/9, A 2v/10]
 2 jó léttr til jarðar taka.“

"A man is here outside, stepped down off horseback;
he lets take his steed to the ground.¹⁸⁷"

¹⁸⁷According to Finnur Jonsson (1932) a still known (in his time) Icelandic expression; Shirner lets his horse graze.

“Bid thou him to go in into our hall,
and to drink the renowned mead;
though I fear that here outside should be my brother’s bane.”

“What sort is that, not of Elves, nor of sons of the Eese, nor of wise Wanese?
Why camest thou alone over the raging fire,
to see the state of our hall?”

“I am not of Elves, nor of sons of the Eese,
nor of wise Wanese—
yet I came alone over the raging fire, to see the state of your hall.

19 Epli ellifu · hér hef’k al-gullin,
 2 þau mun’k þér Gerðr gefa,
 frið at kaupa, · at þú þér Frey kveðir
 4 ó·leiðastan at lifa.“

[R 11v/15, A 2v/14]

Elven apples have I here, all-golden;
 those I will to thee, O Gird, give to purchase [thy] love, that thou callest Free for thee
 most unloathsome [MOST LOVELY] in life.¹⁸⁸

¹⁸⁸ at lifa here means seems to mean ‘in life/living’ rather than the typical infinitive sense ‘to live’; cf. st. 22 at deila ‘in sharing’ below. This is possibly an archaism.

[Gerðr] kvað:

20 „Epli ellifu · ek þigg aldri-gi
 2 at manns-kis munum, né vit Freyr, · meðan okkart fjör lifir,
 4 byggum beiði saman.“

[R 11v/17, A 2v/15]

[Gird quoth:]
 “Eleven apples will I never take,
 to any man’s liking;
 nor will I and Free—while our lifeblood lives—dwell both together.”

[Skirnir kvað:]

21 „Baug þér þá gef’k, · þann’s breindr of vas
 2 með ungum Óðins syni;
 áttu ’ru jafn-höfgir, · es af drjúpa
 4 hina niundu hverja nött.“

[R 11v/19, A 2v/17 (ll. 1–2)]

[Shirner quoth:]
 “The bigh^C I then give thee, that one which was burned with Woden’s young son [= Balder].
 Eight are even-heavy, which from it drip,
 every ninth night.¹⁸⁹”

3–4 áttu ... nött ‘Eight ... night.’ | In A these lines and 22:1–2 are missing. Instead 1–2 here and 22:3–4 are combined into one.

¹⁸⁹ The bigh, while not named, is clearly Dreepner as known from Ylva 49, describing Balder’s funeral: “Weden laid on the pyre that gold ring which is called Dreepner. Its nature was such that every ninth night, eight even-heavy golden rings dripped from it.” When Harmod^P later comes to Hell^L to try to bring Balder back, Balder tells him to bring the ring back to Weden, as a token of memory.

[Gerðr] kvað:

22 „Baug þikk-a’k, · þótt breindr séi,

[R 11v/21, A 2v/18 (ll. 3–4)]

2 með ungum Óðins syni;
es-a mér gulls vant · í gǫrðum Gymis
4 at deila fé fǫður.“

[Gird quoth:]

“The bigh I take not, though it may have been burned with Weden’s young son [= Balder];
I have no want of gold in Gymer’s yards,
in sharing the fee^C of my father.”

[Skírnir kvað:]

23 „Sér þú męki, męr, · mjóvan, mál-faan,
2 es hęf’k í hęndi hér?
hǫfuð hoggva · mun’k þér halsi af,
4 nema mér sętt sęgir.“

[R 11v/23, A 2v/19]

[Shirner quoth:]

“Seest thou this sword, O maiden—slender, pictured-painted—,
which I have in my hand here?
Hew the head will I, off thy neck, unless thou come to terms with me.”

1 mál-faan ‘picture-painted’ | The sword is inlaid with metal (perhaps gold or silver) forming a pattern. The expression is formulaic; cf. TODO.

[Gęrǫr kvað:]

24 „Á-nauð þola · vil’k aldri-gi
2 at manns-kis munum,
þó hins get’k, · ef it Gymir finniðsk
4 vįgs ó-trauðir · at ykkir vega tíði.“

[R 11v/25, A 2v/20]

[Gird quoth:]

“Stand coercion will I never,
to any man’s liking;
though I get this, if thou and Gymer meet—men unreluctant of conflict—that ye two will wish to fight.¹⁹⁰”

2 manns-kis ‘any man’s (lit. ‘no man’s)’ | manns ęnskis A

¹⁹⁰ Gird says that she will never let herself be forced to marry Free, even if that means that her father and Shirner should fight over her.

[Skírnir kvað:]

25 „Sér þú męki, męr, · mjóvan, mál-faan,
2 es hęf’k í hęndi hér?
fyr þessum ęggjum · hnįgr sá hinn aldni jǫtunn,

[R 11v/27, A 2v/22]

4 verðr þinn fęigr faðir.

[Shirner quoth:]

which I have in my hand here?

By these edges sinks the aged ettin [= Gymer] down;

fey^C becomes thy father.

26 Tams-vęndi þik drep’k, · ęn þik tęmja mun’k,

[R 11v/28, A 2v/24]

2 męr, at mınum munum,

4 sįðan ęva sęi.

With the taming-wand I strike thee—and tame thee I will,

O maiden, to my liking!

There shalt thou go, where thee the sons of men never since may see.

1 Tams-vęndi ‘taming-wand’ | Has been interpreted as a sword, TODO.

27 Ara þúfu á · skalt ár sitja,

4 matr sé þér męir lęiðr · an manna hveim hinn fráni ormr með firum.

On an eagle’s perch shalt thou sit at dawn;

turn out of the world;

hanker after Hell^L.

Food be for thee more loathsome, than to any one the gleaming serpent [= the Middenyardswyrm] among men.¹⁹¹

1 Ara þúfu á · skalt ár sitja ‘On an eagle’s perch shalt thou sit at dawn’ | ár skalt sitja · ara þúfu á ‘at dawn shalt thou sit on an eagle’s perch’ A 2–3 horfa hęimi ór; snugga hęljar til ‘turn out of the world; hanker after Hell’ | horfa ok snugga hęljar til ‘turn and hanker after Hell’ A

2–3 horfa hęimi ór; snugga hęljar til ‘turn out of the world; hanker after Hell’ | i.e. “you will look toward and yearn for the underworld”.

5 firum | This is the last word of fol. 2v of A, after which the text cuts off.

¹⁹¹Her food will be more disgusting than the Middenyardswyrm^C, for which cf. Hym 22.

 Sit thyself down, and I will tell thee
 a heavy roaring-breaker, and a twined grief.

1 Tópi ok ópi, • tjosull ok óþoli 'Toop and woop, tessele and restlessness' | The first three of these four words are magic curse words without clear meaning; I have left them untranslated.

30 Tramar gneypa • þik skulu gæstan dag

 2 gamban-tēin at geta
 gamban-tēin ek gat.

To the wood I went, and to the raw/sappy tree,
 the gombentoe^C for to get;
 the gombentoe I got.

2 gamban-tēin 'gombentoe' | Perhaps "curse-twig". A compound consisting of the very rare word gamban 'magic/curse?' and tēinn 'twig, branch' (cf. mistil-tēinn 'mistle-toe'). This may be the stick on which the runic curse in st. 36 below should be carved, or it is to be identified with the tams-vǫndr 'taming-wand' of st. 26 above. Cf. Hígh 152, which speaks about a runic curse carved on rótum rás viðar 'the roots of a raw/sappy tree'.

Wroth with thee is Woden; wroth with thee is Bray of the Eese (= Thunder);
 thee shall Free come to hate,
 O most wicked maiden, if thou hast earned the gomben-wrath of the gods.

Hear may Ettins, hear may Rime-thurses,

Rimegrimner is called the thurse who thee shall have

 A finer drink do thou never get,
 O maiden, against thy liking,
 O maiden, to my liking!

- 36 Þurs ríst'k þér · ok þría stafi, [R 12r/16] 2 ęrgi ok óði ok ó·þola, svá ek þat af ríst · sem ek þat a ręist,
 4 ef gørask þarfar þęss.“

Thurse^G I carve for thee, and three staves:
 degeneracy^C and madness and restlessness.—
 So I carve it off, like I carved it on,
 if there be need for that.¹⁹²

1 Þurs 'thurse' | Thurse is the name of the þ-rune (þ); it is carved as part of the curse.

1 þría stafi 'three staves' | Three runic letters (or phrases) representing the three following words (ęrgi 'degeneracy' etc.). The ritual practice of carving "three staves" is first found on the C7th Gummarp stone: haþuwolafrsate staba þria fff 'Hathwolf placed three staves: fff', where the f-rune (f) stands for its name fee^C (i.e. 'wealth, cattle') and is thus meant to bring wealth.

2 ęrgi ok óði ok ó·þola 'degeneracy and madness and restlessness' | Both ęrgi 'degeneracy' and ó·þoli 'restlessness' (here probably with a sexual connotation), are found in the love magic charm on the rune stick B257 from Bryggen (edited below under Galders). ęrgi is also found in the curse-formula on the C7th Proto-Norse runestones from Stentoften and Björketorp. See further introduction to B257.

¹⁹²Shirner has carved the curse (which will make true the curse), but tells Gird that he will scrape it off if she accepts his demands. She promptly does.

- [Gērðr kvað:] 37 „Hęill ves þú hęldr, sveinn, · ok tak við hrim-kalki [R 12r/19]

[Gird quoth:]

“Hale be thou rather, O swain, and receive the rime-chalice, full of ancient mead—
 though I had intended that I never would love the Waning [= Free] well.”

1–2 Hęill ... mjaðar ‘Hale ... mead’ | Formulaic; the same lines occur in Lock 53.

4 vaningja ‘the Waning [= Free]’ | lit. ‘descendant of the Wanes^G’. A rare word. Its only other occurrence in the Norse corpus is in a thule^C of boar-names. Boars were sacred to Free, TODO.

- [Skirnir kvað:] 38 „Ørendi mín · vil’k ęll vita, [R 12r/21]

 Gird her pleasure grant.”

- P4 Þá reið Skirnir heim. Freyr stóð úti ok kvaddi hann ok spurði tíðenda: [R 12r/24]
 Then Shirner rode home. Free stood outside and greeted him and asked for the tidings:

40 „Seg mér, Skírnir, · áðr verpir sððli af mar [R 12r/25]

Dumezil hypothesis. Irish influence? Many interesting things to write here!

The language of Rígh is highly formulaic, but also often unique to it. Of particular note are the alliteration between the adverb męirr ‘further’ and míðra, e.g. in st. 2/1: gekk męirr at þat

- P1 Svá segja menn í fornum sǫgum, at ęinn-hverr af ǫsum, sá er Hęimdallr hét, [W 78r/1]
2 fǫr fęrðar sinnar ok framm með sjóvar-strǫndu nǫkkurri, kom at ęinum húsa-bó ok nęfndisk Rígr; ęptir þęiri sǫgu er kvęði þetta.

So say men in ancient saws^C that one of the Eese^G, he who was called Homedall^P, went on his journey and came forth along a certain lake shore, came upon a lone homestead and called himself Rígh—according to that saw is this poem.

- 1 Ár kvǫðu ganga · grónar brautir [W 78r/TODO]
2 ǫflgan ok aldinn · ǫs kunnigan, ramman ok rǫskvan · Ríg stíganda.

Of yore, they said, did walk on green roads
a mighty and aged os^G, cunning:
the strong and brisk Rígh, striding.

1 Ár ‘Of yore’ | sens. emend. (see note); at W

1 Ár ‘Of yore’ | Formulaic. It is very common for poems to begin with ár. Cf. Wsp 3/1, Hym 1/1, HHund I 1/1, Guth I 1/1, Siw 1/1

 4 hjón sǫtu þar · hǫr at arni, Ái ok Edda · aldin-falda.

Went he further after that on the middle of the road,
 came he to a house—the door was wide open.
 He took to go inside, fire was on the floor.
 A couple sat there, hoary by the hearth:
 Great-Grandfather and Great-Grandmother, old-fashioned.

4 at | sens. emend.; af W

- 3 Rigr kunni þeim · rǫð at sęja; [W 78r/TODO]
 2 meirr settisk hann · miðra fletja en á hlið hvára · hjón sal-kynna.

Righ knew to tell them counsels,
 further he set himself down on the middle of the floor-bench,
 and on either side: the couple of the hall.

- 4 Þá tók Edda · økkvinn hleif, [W 78r/TODO]
 2 þungan ok þykkvan, · þrunginn sǫðum, bar hǫn meirr at þat · miðra skutla,
 4 soð vas í bolla · setti á bjóð;

 6 reis hann upp þaðan, · réðsk at sofna;

Then took Great-Grandmother a lumpy loaf, heavy and thick, stuffed with chaff,
 she carried it further after that on the middle of a trencher, broth was in a bowl, she set it on a plate—
 a cooked calf was the best dainty;
 he [= Righ] rose up thence, resolved to sleep.

- 5 Rigr kunni þeim · rǫð at sęja; [W 78r/TODO]
 2 meirr lagðisk hann · miðrar rēkkju,
 en á hlið hvára · hjón salkynna.

Righ knew to tell them counsels;
 further he laid himself down in the middle of the bed,
 and on either side: the couple of the hall.

- 6 Þar vas hann at þat · þrjár nætr saman; [W 78r/TODO]
 2 gekk hann meirr at þat · miðrar brautar;
 liðu meirr at þat · mǫnuðr níu.

There he was after that for three nights in all;
 went he further after that on the middle of the road;
 passed further after that nine months.

- 7 Jóð ól Edda, · jósu vatni [W 78r/TODO]
 2 hǫrund-svartan, · hétu Þrél.

Great-Grandmother begot a child, they sprinkled it with water¹⁹⁴—swarthy of skin—they called it Thrall.

2 hǫrund-svartan ‘swarthy of skin’ | emend.; hǫrfi svartan ‘swarthy with flax(?)’ W

¹⁹⁴A reference to the Heathen naming ceremony, somewhat resembling the Christian baptism, wherein water would be poured on a newborn. Cf. Hígh 156.

- 8 Hann nam at vaxa · ok vël dafna; [W 78r/TODO]
 2 vas þar á hǫndum · hrokkít skinn, kropnir knúar, · [...]
 4 fingr digrir, · fúlligt and-lit, lotr hryggr, · langir hélar.

He took to grow, and thrive well;
 there on his hands was wrinkled skin,
 crooked knuckles, [...],
 thick fingers, a foul face,
 a stooping back, long heels.

- 9 Nam meirr at þat · magns of kosta, [W 78r/TODO]
 2 bast at binda, · byrðar gǫrva;
 bar heim at þat · hrís gęrstan dag.

He took further after that to try his power:
 bast to bind, burdens to make,
 he carried home after that brushwood on a gloomy day.¹⁹⁵

¹⁹⁵The thrall had to work in even the most hostile weather.

- 10 Þar kom at garði · gęngil-bęina, [W 78r/TODO]

- 2 aurr vas á iljum, · armr sól-brunninn, niðr-bjúgt es nef, · nefndisk þír.

There came to the farm a gangle-boned woman:
mud was on her footsoles, her arm sunburnt,
downturned her face—she called herself Thew.

1 gęgil-bęina ‘gangle-boned woman’ | Derogatory, somebody who (due to poverty) only travels by foot.

3 Þír ‘Thew’ | The name probably means ‘maid-servant’ or ‘female slave’. Unlike Thrall, it is not attested in any prose texts, but probably corresponds to OS thiwi ‘maid(-servant)’, being further root-related to þéa -þjá ‘to enthrall’, Proto-Norse þewar ‘servant’, OE þéow ‘slave, servant’.

- 11 Męirr sęttisk hōn · miðra flętja, 2 sat hjá hęnni · sonr húss, róddu ok rýndu, · rękkju gørðu
4 Þręll ok þír · þrungin dógr.

[W 78r/TODO]

Further she set herself down on the middle of the floor-bench;
by her sat the son of the house [= Thrall].
They spoke and whispered, made a bed—
Thrall and Thew—in hard-pressed nights.

Children they begot—they settled and were content—
I think that they were called Rame and Feesner, Clour and Cledge, Chafser, Foulner, Drumber, Digrald, Drant and Hazer, Lout and Ledgald.—They laid yard-fences, dunged the fields, fed the swine,
kept the goats, dug the turf.

- 13 Dótr vōru þęr · Drumba ok Kumba,

There he was after that for three nights in all;
went he further after that on the middle of the road;
passed further after that nine months.

- 32 Svein ól móðir, · silki vafði, [W 78v/TODO]
 2 jósu vatni— · Jarl létu heita;
 bléikt vas hár, · bjartir vangar,
 4 ótul vöro augu · sem yrmlingi.

Mother begot a swain, swaddled him in silk;
 they sprinkled him with water—let him be called Earl.
 Pale was his hair, bright his cheeks, fierce were his eyes, like the young serpent.

4 ótul ... yrmlingi 'fierce ... the young serpent' | A person of noble stock being recognised as such through their appearance is a motif in Norse literature. Cf. esp. the incident at the beginning of HHund II, where Hallow, disguised as a thrall-woman, is almost caught due to his unslavelike eyes, which are, as in the present stanza, likewise said to be ótul 'fierce, terrible'.

- 33 Upp óx þar · Jarl á fletjum; [W 78v/TODO]

Up grew Earl there on the floor-benches;
 he took to shake shields, fasten bow-strings,
 bend elmwood, shaft arrows,
 throw javelins, hoist frankish spears, ride horses, throw hounds (TODO)
 , brandish swords, practice swimming.

- 34 Kom þar ór runni · Rigr gangandi, [W 78v/TODO]
 2 Rigr gangandi, · rúnar kęnni;

 óðal-völlu, · aldnar bygðir.

There came out of a brush Rígh, walking:
 Rígh, walking, taught runes;
 he gave his own name; said that he had a son;
 he bade him take the ethel-plains:
 the ethel-plains, the ancient villages.

1–5 Kom ... bygðir. | Rígh approaches his son, Earl. He reveals himself as his father and initiates him into the warrior aristocracy through teaching him the runes and giving him the noble title Rígh (henceforth he will be known as Rígh Earl). Finally he instructs him to set out and win land for himself, which Rígh Earl soon does.

 6 val nam at fęlla, · vá til landa.

He [= RIGH-EARL] rode further thence through the mirky wood, through the frosty fells, until to a hall he came—
 the shaft he took to hoist, shook the linden shield, leapt with the horse, and brandished the sword;
 war he took to rouse, the plain he took to redden,
 men he took to fell—he won the land.

- 36 Réð hann ęinn at þat · átján búum; [W 78v/TODO]

He alone ruled, after that, eighteen homesteads.
 Wealth he took to hand out; to give all men gifts and treasures, [and] slender-ribbed steeds; rings he scattered; he cut apart a bigh.

4 hringum hreytti ‘rings he scattered’ | Cf. StarkSt Frag 1/2a bring-breytanda ‘ring-scatterer’ [GENEROUS MAN]’ which contains the same words.

- 37 Óku ęrir · úrgar brautir [W 78v/TODO]

They asked for her hand and drove home, married her off to Earl—she went under the linen.
They settled together and were content with themselves, grew their lineage and enjoyed life.

There grew up the sons of Earl:
horses they tamed, shield-rims they bent,

But Kin the Young knew runes:

4 Konr ungr ‘Kin the Young’ | The name is clearly a folk etymological pun on ON konungr ‘king’, who held the highest social rank, above even the earls.

41 Meirr kunni hann · mǫnnum bjarga,

4 „Hvat skalt, Konr ungr, · kyrra fugla?
 Hældr métti þér · hestum ríða
6 [...] · ok hær fella.

[W 78v/TODO]

Kin the Young rode through brushes and woods;
he flung bolts, he calmed birds.
Then quoth a crow—it sat lone on a twig—:
“For what shalt thou, Kin the Young, calm birds?
Better it fit thee horses to ride,
[...], and armies to fell.”

- 44 Á Danr ok Danpr · dýrar hallir;
2 oðra óðal · an ér hafið;
 þeir kunnu vel · kjól at ríða,
4 egg at kenna, · undir rjúfa.

[W 78v/TODO]

Dan and Danp own costly halls:
nobler ethel than ye do—
they know well the ship to ride,
the blade to teach, wounds to tear.

2 ér ‘ye’ | metr. emend.; þér ‘id.’ W, which is simply a younger form of ér, and shows that the poem has been linguistically modernised.

2 óðal ‘ethel’ | Ancestral farmland, in this case the eighteen homesteads owned by Earl.

3 kjól at riða ‘ship to ride’ | i.e. to sail.

4 egg at kenna ‘the blade to teach’ | i.e. to fight, wage war. Apparently a euphemism; to “teach someone the blade” is to fight him.

At this point leaf 78 ends. The rest of the poem is lost.

The Lay of Wayland (Völundarkviða)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.428)–early C11th (0.475)

Meter: Firnworslaw

The Lay of Wayland (Wayl) is a story of immense psychological complexity, one of the masterpieces of Norse narrative poetry.

The poem begins with a prose introduction, which survives in both R and A.

Wayland gets his revenge on the whole royal household. He murders Nithad's two young sons (affectionately, his "bear-cubs") and thus ends his male lineage. Likewise he defangs Nithad's "cunning wife" (she is never called anything else) by reducing her once powerful counsels to cold words; and finally he rapes Beadhild, depriving her of her maidenhood and value in marriage. They are thus reduced to the same state of complete powerlessness as he himself experienced, something clearly seen in the repetition of the adjective viljalauss 'powerless'; in v. 12 it describes Wayland after he wakes in shackles, but in v. 31 Nithad uses it to refer to his own mental state after the deaths of his sons. This sense of hopelessness is also seen in Beadhild's haunting concluding speech. "I knew by naught struggle against him; I could by naught struggle against him."

From the other versions of the story it is known that Beadhild gave birth to a son, Woody (OE Wudga, Thdr Viðga, in Danish ballads Vidrik Verlandson). He went on to become a great hero, and in the later heroic ballads by far eclipses his father. His birth seems heavily foreshadowed by Wayland forcing Nithad to swear an oath in v. 33, but he is nowhere directly mentioned in the poem, probably for artistic reasons.

Apart from this lay there is one other telling of the full story, namely the Strand of Wayland the Smith in Thdr. While written in Old Norse, it is clear from the proper names and content that it is based on German sources (probably heroic ballads). Thus the native form Völundr is replaced with Velent [sic], Niðuðr with Niðungr. Interestingly there is a note within it showing that the native form was still known, namely about "Velent, the excellent smith, whom Warrings (Væringjar) call Wayland (Völundr)". Apparently Wayland was so famous that "all men seem to praise his workmanship so, that the maker of any smith's work which is made better than other works, is called a Wayland (Völundr) with regards to workmanship."

Far more stark than minor differences of language is that of tone. The psychological complexity and tension of the older redaction is almost entirely gone: Wayland is no longer a mysterious wild man, but a chivalrous knight who can escape from any peril through his ingenuity and craftsmanship. He is not kidnapped out of Nithad's greed, nor hamstrung out of the suspicion of his cruel wife, but rather a loyal servant of Nithad's, banished from the kingdom after defending himself against the king's corrupt steward, and hamstrung after being caught attempting to poison the king's food in revenge.

Most frustratingly the personality of Beadhild is entirely expulged. She is the anonymous "king's daughter", an unnamed maiden (jungfrú, a borrowing from Low German) who is peacefully seduced by Wayland and quickly falls in love with him. Likewise the person of Nithad's cunning wife is completely gone, and the murder of his sons no longer ends his lineage, since he has another, older son who survives him and takes over the kingdom. Wayland still flies away laughing after telling Nithad what he has done, but only four years (his son with Beadhild is three years old) later reconciliates with Nithad's son, retrieves Beadhild and their son and lives a long life as a famous craftsman.

With this it is clearly seen that the story by the time of the Thdr had been heavily distorted, a tragic victim of medieval romantic sensibilities. It does not have any high literary value, but is of interest since it shows the wide reception and variation of the narrative.

Finally there are also traces of the story in the Anglo-Saxon tradition, where it is alluded to in both Walder and Dear, the latter of which particularly emphasising the powerlessness felt by Wayland and Beadhild (thus being much closer in spirit to the present poem than to Thdr). Parts of the narrative are depicted on the early C8th Frank's casket, where it is as prominent as the depiction of the Adoration of the Magi—a true testament to the weight with which it was regarded within that culture.

To illustrate the narrative correspondences and differences of the various redactions, I present the following table:

Nithad was a king in Sweden called. He had two sons and one daughter; she was called Beadchild. Three brothers were there, the sons of a king of the Finns. One was called Slayfinn, another Agle, the third Wayland. They travelled on skis and hunted wild animals; they came into the Woldfdales and made for themselves houses there. A body of water lies there, which is called Wolfsea. Early in the morning they found on its shore three women who were spinning linen. Near the women were their swan-hames^C; they were Walkirries. Two of them were the daughters of king Ladwigh: Ladguth Swanwhite and Harware Allwit. The third was Alerune, daughter of Kear^P of Walland^{G199}. The men took the women to their halls with them. Agle got Alerune, and Slayfinn Swanwhite, and Wayland Allwit. The couples lived there for seven winters; then the women left to attend battles, and did not return. Then Agle left on skis to look for Alerune, and Slayfinn looked for Swanwhite, and Wayland stayed in the Woldfdales. He was the most skilled craftsman whom men know of in the ancient saws. King Nithad had him captured, as it is here sung of:

1 hon hét 'she was called' | so R; ok hét hon 'and she was called' A 2 vöru 'were' | so A; om. R 4–13 sér þar hús ... um kveðit 'for themselves houses ... sung of' | so R; om. (due to loss of the following foll. in the ms.) A

Maidens flew from the south through Mirkwood²⁰⁰ —young allwits²⁰¹— to fulfill orlay^C.

They on the lake-shore set down to rest;
the southern ladies span expensive linen.

2 or-lög drýgja; ‘fulfill orlay’ | That is, to fulfill their destinies, and act according to their innate nature, as described in P1 and st. 3. I disagree with Clunies Ross (2005)[103], who translates this phrase as ‘engage in war’, through seeing the latter word as a borrowing from OE (cf. Dutch oorlog ‘war’). In fact, the expression drýgja orlög is also attested in OE, namely in l. 29 of a poem on the Christian Doomsday (TODO?), about a man going to Hell for his sins: ond þonne á tó caldre · or-leg dreógeð ‘and then for ever and ever [he] suffers his orlay’

²⁰⁰Mirkwood is surely referenced for its association with the war-ravaged lands of the Gots and Huns; a natural environment for Walkirries.

²⁰¹Maybe look at what this means. TODO.

They stayed then for seven winters after that,
and all the eighth they yearned,
and the ninth did need divorce them.—
The maidens longed for the mirky wood:
the young allwits, to fulfill orlay.²⁰²

²⁰²As Walkirries the orlay^C (already laid-down destiny) of the sisters was to preside over battles for Woden. Remembering this duty they become increasingly restless, until they one day decide to leave when their husbands are out hunting. For the significance of Mirkwood (here “the mirky wood”), see note to st. 1.

 Came there from the hunt the weather-eyed shooter:
 Wayland passing over a long way.

²⁰⁵Nithad's men take off all the seven hundred rings (presumably to count them) and then put them back on, but they keep just one. This high is probably the one mentioned in sts. 17 and 26, since Beadhild has it already when Wayland is brought back after being captured. Finnur Jónsson (1932) writes (My translation from the Danish): "The ring which Nithad kept must have had special properties, and distinguished itself before others. There is no doubt that the ring is a flight ring; whether this was clear to the poet is however questionable. This much is certain, that Wayland seems to be able to fly away only after he has got back the ring; that is, the one which Beadhild brings him." —The reader may for himself judge the plausibility of this, but it seems that Wayland, being an exceptionally handy craftsman, may just as well have crafted wings for himself without need for magical rings. This agrees with the Low German verison and the Daedalus myth, for both of which see the introduction to the present poem.

Now called Nithad, lord of the Nears:
 “Where gottest thou, Wayland, leader of elves,
 our ounces, in the Woldales?
 Gold was there not on Grane^P's path;
 far I've thought our land from the fells of the Rhine.²⁰⁶”

²⁰⁶Grane was the horse of the legendary hero Siward^P, slayer of the dragon Fathomer^P. These events were thought to have taken place in Germany. Nithad's speech is thus sarcastic: "Where did you get that gold? I have never heard of a dragon's hoard in the Wolfdales!", the implication being that Wayland has stolen the gold (from king Nithad).

- 15 „Man'k at mēiri • mēti ǫttum, [R 18v/13]

[Wayland quoth:]

“I recall, that we owned greater wealth,
 when we a whole household were at home:
 Ladguth and Harware were born to Ladwigh;
 known was Alerune, Kear's daughter.”²⁰⁷

²⁰⁷Wayland responds rather cryptically. It seems that by asserting the noble lineages of the three swan-wives he gives a legitimate reason for his wealth, although he is, judging by the tone, likely aware that the greedy Nithad neither cares nor believes him.

- 16 Úti stóð kunnig • kvǫn Níðaðar, [R 18v/15]

 “I dare not tell, save to thee alone.”

2 [...] | The meter requires a half-line here, likely containing a more specific description of the bigh.

²¹⁰The verse is without doubt incomplete, but the story can be gleaned: Beadhild breaks the bigh she has been given by her parents (previously mentioned in sts. 10 (see note there) and 17), and is afraid that her parents may become upset. She thus goes to Wayland in secret, asking him to repair it.

Laughing, Wayland threw himself in the air;
weeping, Beadhild went from the island,
grieved the lover's flight, and the father's fury.

²¹⁴C-V: fit ‘the webbed foot of water-birds’, the reader may picture for himself. Wayland has crafted a mechanism to take flight, regaining his mobility which he lost when he was hamstrung.

or a babe might own within the hall.²¹⁵

²¹⁵Wayland has Nithad swear oaths that he will not harm “his bride” (i.e. Beadhild), nor her and Wayland’s newly conceived child. The oaths are formulaic, and relate to the warrior’s honour. Similar lists are found in TODO.

[R 19v/2]

[Nithad quoth:]

“Rise up, O Thankred, my best thrall;

bid Beadhild, the brow-white maiden,

to go, fair-clothed, with her father to counsel.”

2–3 mey hina brá-hvítu ... fagr-varið ‘the brow-white maiden ... fair-clothed’ | With these expressions Nithad strongly stresses the purity of his daughter (męr ‘maiden’ here simply meaning ‘virgin’). Perhaps he thinks that her innocence can be restored if she dresses in fair clothes, but it will not be so.

- 40 „Es þat satt Bęðvildr, · es sęgęu mér,
 2 sętuð it Völundr · saman í holmi?“

 4 ek vętr hęnum • vinna kunna’k, ek vętr hęnum • vinna mätta’k.“

[R 19v/4]

[Beadhild quoth:]

“’Tis true, Nithad, as he said²¹⁶ to thee:I and Wayland stayed together on the islet, for one heavy hour—it should never [have been]!I knew by naught struggle against him;I could by naught struggle against him.²¹⁷”

4 vinna | metr. and sens. emend.; om. R

²¹⁶Beadhild, knowing that the only one who is aware of what happened is Wayland, makes the subtle change in the conjugation, from her father’s general plural (“what they said”), to the specific singular (“what he said”).

²¹⁷Beadhild was both mentally (kunna ‘to know, understand’) and physically (mega ‘to have strength to do, avail’) incapable of struggling against him. — As Finnur Jónsson (1932) comments, an unsurpassed final verse.

Eddic fragments from Snorre's Edda

Numerous Eddic stanzas are quoted in Snorre's Edda, whether isolated or in sequence. The majority of them are taken from longer Eddic poems preserved in full in other manuscripts (primarily R and A), but a few are found nowhere else; it is these fragments that are edited in the present section.

The fragments have some things in common: they are generally pieces of spoken dialogue quoted in the context of longer narrative prose sections, and are, with one exception (Homedall's galder, see below), not introduced by reference to their source, but rather with phrases like þá kvað hann 'then he quoth'.

This half-stanza is quoted in Yilv 2, being the second Eddic verse in the text, following High 1 in the same chapter, which is uttered by Yilfer himself when he enters the hall of the Eese. The whole section is clearly referencing other Eddic mythic wisdom contests and particularly reminiscent of Webth.

- P1 Hann sá þrjú háséti ok hvert upp frá ǫðru, ok sátu þrír menn sinn í hverju.
2 Þá spurði hann, hvert nafn höfðingja þeira véri. Sá svarar, er hann leiddi inn, at sá, er í inu neðsta háséti sat, var konungr, ok heitir Hárr, en þar nēst 4 sá, er heitir Jafnhárr, en sá ofast, er Þriði heitir. Þá spyrr Hárr komandann, hvárt fleira er erendi hans, en heimill er matr ok drykkir honum sem ǫllum 6 þar í Háva hǫll. Hann segir, at fyrst vill hann spyrja, ef nokkurr er fróðr maðr inni. Hárr segir, at hann komi eigi heill út, nema hann sé fróðari,

He [= Yilfer] saw three high-seats, and each was higher than the other. And there sat three men, each in his seat. Then he asked what the names of those chieftains were. He who led him in answers, that the one who sat in the lowest high-seat was a king, and is called High, and there next that one who is called Evenhigh, and uppermost the one who is called Third. Then High asks the guest whether he has any other errands, and says that food and drink will be freely offered to him, like it is to all men there in the High One's hall. He [= Yilfer], asks if anyone inside is a learned man. High says, that he will not come out whole, unless he be more learned [than he],

- 1 „ok statt-u framm · meðan þú fregn

“and stand forth while thou askest;

The following passage is almost the whole of Yilv 23, excepting at the very end svá er sagt ‘so it is said’, after which is quoted Grmn 11. The myth described is found in typically corrupted form in Saxo (TODO), who also paraphrases the same two stanzas. See Hopkins (2021).

12 þetta:

The third Os is that one who is called Nearth. He lives in the heaven in the place called Nowetowns. He rules the course of the wind, and stills sea and fire. On him shall one call for sea-faring and for hunting. He is so wealthy and blessed with money that he may give them a wealth of lands or loose property; on him shall one call for that sake. Nearth is not of the lineage of the Eese. He was brought up in Wanehome, but the Wanese gave him as a hostage to the gods, and in return got as hostage that one who is called Heener. He was used to reconcile the gods and the Wanese. Nearth has that woman who is called Shede, the daughter of the ettin Thedse. Shede wishes to have the dwelling which her father had owned, which lies on some fells in the place called Thrimham—but Nearth wishes to live by the sea. They agreed with each other that they would live for nine nights in Thrimham, but the other nine at Nowetowns. But when Nearth came back to the Nowetowns from the fell, he quoth this:

- 2 „Læið erumk fjöll, · vas’k-a lengi á,

- 2 nêtr einar níu;
 ulfa þytr · mér þótti illr vesa
 4 hjá sǫngvi svana.“

“The fells are loathsome to me; I was not long thereon—only for nine nights.
 The howling of the wolves thought me evil, compared to the song of swans.”

P3 Þá kvað Skaði þetta:

Then Shede quoth this:

- 3 „Sofa né mát'k-a'k · sévar beðjum á 2 fugls jarmi fyrir;
 sá mik vękr · es af víði kǫmr
 4 morgun hverjan már.“

“I could not sleep on the beds of the sea for the bleating of the bird.
 He awakes me, when from the wide sea he comes,
 every morning, the mew.”

P4 Þá fór Skaði upp á fjall ok byggði í Þrym-heimi, ok ferr hon mjök á skíðum 2 ok með boga ok skýtr dýr. Hon heitir ǫndur-goð eða ǫndur-dís.

Then Shede went up to the fells and dwelled in Thrimham, and she often goes on skis with her bow and shoots beasts. She is called ski-god or ski-dise.

Homedall's Galder (Heimdallargaldr)

This mysterious fragment is quoted in Yilv 27, the chapter describing Homedall, where it is introduced by the sentence: Ok enn segir hann sjalfr í Heimdallar-galdri. ‘And further he himself says in Homedall's Galder.’ The fragment appears to be the end of a stanza in the fitting meter Galderlaw, consisting of two consecutive c-lines.

The same poem is mentioned again, but not quoted from, in Scold 15: Heimdallar hǫfuð heitir sverð. Svá er sagt, at hann var lostinn manns hǫfði í gegnum. Um þat er kveðit í Heimdallar-galdri, ok er síðan kallat hǫfuð mjǫtuðr Heimdallar ‘A sword is called Homedall's head. So is said, that he was pierced by a man's head. About that it is sung in Homedall's galder, and thereafter the head is called Homedall's bane.’

4 „Niu em’k móðra mogr,
2 niu em’k systra sonr.“

“I am nine mothers’ lad;
I am nine sisters’ son.”

The following passage is from Yilv 35, which lists the Ossens^G.

P5 Fjórtánda Gná, hana sendir Frigg í ymsa heima at ørindum sínum. Hon á 2 þann hest, er renn lopt ok lög, er heitir Hóf-varpnir. Þat var eitt sinn, er hon reið, at vanir nokkvörir sá reið hennar í loptinu. Þa mælti einn:

The fourteenth is Gna; Frie sends her into every home to do her errands. She owns the horse who runs through air and sea, and is called Hoofwarpner. It was one time when she rode that some Wanes saw her riding in the air. Then one spoke:

5 „Hvat þar flýgr, · hvat þar færr,
2 eða at lopti liðr?“

“What flies there, what fares there, or passes through the air?”

P6 Hon svarar:

She answers:

6 „Né ek flýg, · þó ek fær
2 ok at lopti lið’k á Hóf-varpni, · þeim’s Ham-skępir
4 gat við Garð-rofu.“

“I fly not, thou I fare,
and pass through the air,

on Hoofwarpner, whom Hamsherper
begot with Yádrove.”

P7 Af Gnár nafni er svá kallat, at þat gnéfar, er hátt ferr:

From Gna's name it is so called that something which fares high up protrudes.

Yilv 49 contains the narrative of Balder's death, beginning with his ominous dreams, and ending with the Eese failing to “weep him out of Hell” (for a summary and discussion of the myth and its attestations, see the introduction to Wsp 31–33). At the end of the chapter, a single Leed-meter speech-stanza is quoted.

P8 Því nęst sendu ęsir um allan heim ęrind-reka at biđja, at Baldr vęri grátinn
 2 őr Helju, en allir gerđu þat, menninir ok kykvendin ok jęrđin ok steinarnir ok trę ok allr málmr, svá sem þú munt sęt hafa, at þessir lutir gráta, þá er 4 þeir koma őr frosti ok í hita. Þá er sendi-menn fóru heim ok hęfđu vel rekit sín ęrindi, finna þeir í helli nękkvęrum, hvar gýgr sat; hon nefndist 6 Þękk. Þeir biđja hana gráta Baldr őr helju, hon segir:

Next after that the Eese sent an errand-runner through all the Home^C, to ask that Balder be wept out of hell. And all did that, the men and the beasts and the earth and the stones and trees and all bedrock, as thou must have seen, that these things weep when they come out of cold and into heat. When the messengers journeyed home, and had ran their errand well, they find in a certain cave that a gow^C sat there; she called herself Thanks. They ask her to weep Balder out of hell. She says:

7 „Þękk mun gráta • þurrrum tęrum
 2 Baldrs bál-farar;
 kyks né dauđs • naut'k-a Karls sonar
 4 hafi Hęl því's hęfir.“

“Thanks will weep—with dry tears for Balder's pyre-journey [DEATH].
 Neither alive nor dead did I benefit from Churl's son [= Balder];
 let Hell have what she has!”

P9 En þess geta menn, at þar hafi verit Loki Laufeyjarson, er flest hefir illt 2 gørt með ásum.

But men guess that this was Lock, Leafy's son, who has done the most evil among the Eese.

Scold 26, here edited in part, is the only surviving retelling of Thunder's journey to the ettin Garfrith, and his following fight with, and slaying of, him and his two daughters, Yelp and Grope. This was apparently a well-known story, and is also mentioned in Vetr Lv 1/1b (quoted in Scold 11, which lists kennings for Thunder): stétt of Gjǫlp dauða 'thou didst step over the dead Yelp'. The prose of Scold 26 seems to be based on an earlier, now-lost poem in Leed-meter, from which it quotes two stanzas. The first is found in all four main manuscripts, while the second is found only in U. Both are spoken by Thunder and closely resemble each other stylistically, which is why they most likely come from the same poem.

P10 Þá fór Þórr til ár þeirar, er Vimur heitir, allra á mest. Þá spennti hann
 2 sik megin-gjörðum ok studdi for-streymis Gríðar-völ, en Loki helt undir megin-gjarðar. Ok þá er Þórr kom á miðja ána, þá óx svá mjök áin, at uppi 4 braut á ǫxl honum. Þá kvað Þórr þetta:

Then Thunder journeyed to that river which is called Wimbre, greatest of all rivers. Then he wrapped his might-girdle around himself and leaned upon Grith's stave against the stream, and Lock held up the might-girdle. And when Thunder came to the middle of the river, it waxed so great that it reached up unto his shoulders. Then Thunder quoth this:

8 „Vax-at-tu nú, Vimur, · alls mik þik vaða tíðir
 2 jǫtna garða í;
 vætst, ef þú vęx · at þá vęx mér ós-męgin
 4 jafn-hátt upp sem himinn.“

“Grow not now, O Wimbre, as I wish to wade through thee into the yards of the ettins;
 know that if thou growest, that my os-might then grows up as high as the heaven.”

- P11 Þá sér Þórr uppi í gljúfrum nokkurum, at Gjálp, dóttir Geirrøðar stóð þar
 2 tveim megin árinna, ok gerði hon ár-vøxtinn. Þá tók Þórr upp ór ánni stein mikinn ok kastaði at henni ok mælti svá: „At ósi skal á stemma.“ Eigi 4 missti hann, þar er hann kastaði til, ok í því bili bar hann at landi ok fekk tekit reyni-runna nokkurn ok steig svá ór ánni. Því er þat orð-tak haft, at 6 reynir er björg Þórs.

Then Thunder sees that, up in some gorges, Yelp, daughter of Garfrith stood there on both sides of the river, and she caused the river's growth. Then Thunder took up from the river a great stone, and threw it at her and spoke thus: "At the source shall river be dammed!" He did not miss his target, and in that moment he turned towards land and caught hold of some rowan shrub, and thus stepped out of the river. Therefore the saying goes that the rowan is Thunder's deliverance.

- P12 En er Þórr kom til Geirrøðar, þá var þeim fé-logum vísat fyrst í geita-hús
 2 til her-bergis, ok var þar einn stóll til sētis, ok sat Þórr þar. Þá varð hann þess varr, at stóllinn fór undir honum upp at rēfri. Hann stakk Gríðar-veli 4 upp í raftana ok lét sigast fast á stólinn. Varð þá brestr mikill, ok fylgði skrékr. Þar hófðu verit undir stólinum dótr Geirrøðar, Gjálp ok Greip, ok 6 hafði hann brotit hrygginn í báðum. Þa kvað Þórr:

But when Thunder came to Garfrith's home, then the companions were first shown to a goathouse as lodgings, and the seating there was one chair, and Thunder sat thereon. Then he noticed that the chair beneath him was going up toward the roof. He stuck

- 9 „Einu sinni • neytta'k alls megin
 2 jǫtna gǫrðum í þá's Gjǫlp ok Grēip, • dótr Gēir-raðar, 4 vildu hefja mik til himins.“

“But one time I used all [my] might in the yards of the ettins:
 When Yelp and Grope, daughters of Garfrith, would lift me to the heaven.”

First Lay of Hallow Hundingsbane

This rather late poem is very well written. Particularly beautiful are the introductory stanzas, which tell of Norns arriving in the night to predetermine Hallow's life.

P1 Hér hefr upp kvæði frá Helga Hundings bana, þeira ok Høðbrodds. Völ-2 sunga kviða.

Here begins a lay regarding Hallow, bane of Hunding and his men, and of Hathbrod. A lay of the Walsings.

1 Á¹ vas alda · þat's arar gullu
2 hnigu hēilōg vōtn · af Himin-fjōllum;
þá hafði Hēlga · inn hugum-stóra
4 Borghildr borit · í Brálundi.

[R 20r/21]

It was the dawn of elds^C, as eagles shrieked, holy waters poured down from the Heavenfells;
then had Burhild in Browlund given birth to Hallow the great of heart.

1 Á¹ vas alda 'It was the dawn of elds' | This formulaic introduction immediately situates the events of the poem in the distant mytho-heroic past, indeed, if one compares Wsp 3, at the beginning of history.

- 2 Nótt varð í bót, · nornir kvómu, [R 20r/23]
 þér's ǫðlingi · aldr of skópu;
 þann bótou fylki · frégstan verða
 ok buðlunga · bætstan þykkja.

It turned night in the settlement; norns came,
 those who shaped the age of the nobleman [= Hallow].
 They bade that battle-arrayer become the noblest,
 and among princes seem the best.

- 3 Sneru þér af afli · ør·løg-þóttu [R 20r/25]
 þá's borgir braut · í Brálundi;
 þér um greiddu · gullin-símu
 ok und mána sal · miðjan fæstu.

They turned mightily orlay-strands when castles were broken in Browlund.
 They wrapped a golden band, and beneath the moon's hall [SKY/HEAVEN] fastened it in the middle.

- 4 Þér austr ok vestr · ęnda fōlu, [R 20r/27]
 þar átti lofðungr · land á milli, brá nipt Nera · á norðr-vega ęinni fęsti, · ęy bað hon halda.

They in the east and west hid its ends;
 there the praised one owned land in between.
 The kinswoman of Nare (unknown person) [NORN] tugged onto the northern ways a single cord—she bade it hold forever.

From Harward and Syelind (Frá Hjorvarði ok Sigrlinn)

P1 Hjorvarðr hét konungr. Hann átti fjórar konur. Ein hét Alfhlidr; sonr
2 þeira hét Heðinn. Qnnur hét Sereifr; þeira sonr hét Humlungr. In þriðja hét Sinrjóð; þeira sonr hét Hymlingr. Hjorvarðr konungr hafði þess heit nungr átti dóttur allra^a fegrsta; sú hét Sigrlinn. Iðmundr hét jarl hans; Atli 6 var hans sonr er fór at biðja Sigrlinnar til handa konungi. Hann dvalðisk vetrlangt með Sváfni konungi. Fránmarr hét þar jarl, fóstri Sigrlinnar; dót-8 tir hans hét Álf. Jarlinn réð, at meyjar var synjat, ok fór jarlinn heim.

Atli jarls sonr stóð einn dag við lund nokkurn, en fugl sat í limunum uppi
10 yfir hánun ok hafði heyrt til, at hans menn kǫlluðu vænstar konur þær, er Hjorvarðr konungr átti. Fuglinn kvakaði, en Atli hlýddi, hvat hann sagði.

 to rule everything together with himself. Hallow quoth:

P4 Heim gekk ambótt ok sagði Sigrúnu:

 2 ef þik folks jaðarr · finna lystir;

5–6 brúðir, dísir, oss ‘brides, dises, us’ | Hallow speaks in the plural. “Now has my bride, my dise^C (goddess), come into the closed mound, next to me, who am dead.”

P6 Sigrún bjó sęing í haug'inum.

Syerun prepared a bed in the mound:

- 11 „Hér hefi'k þér, Hęlgi, · hvílu gørva, 2 angr-lausa mjök, · Ylfinga niðr;
vil'k þér í faðmi, · fylkir, sofna
4 sem'k lofðungi · lifnum mynda'k!“

“Here have I for thee, Hallow, made a place of rest, all sorrowless, O kinsman of the Wolvings!
I will in thy arms, O marshal, fall asleep,
like I would with the living man of praise.”

4 sem'k lofðungi · lifnum mynda'k! ‘like I would with the living man of praise’ | i.e. “just as I would if you were still alive.”

[Hęlgi kvað:]

- 12 „Nú kveð'k ęnskis · ør-vęnt vesa,

“Now, I say, there is naught more missing neither late nor soon from the Sevefells, when thou dost sleep on the unliving arm,
O white daughter of Hain—in the mound,
and thou art alive!—born of the king.”

(The night has passed; dawn is breaking, and Hallow speaks. The manuscript does not indicate the change of scene.)

[Hęłgi kvað:]

- 13 „Mál's mēr at ríða • roðnar brautir, 2 láta fǫlván jó • flug-stíg troða;
skal'k fyr vestan • vind-hjálms brúar
4 áðr Sal-gofnir • sigr-þjóð vęki.“

“It's time for me to ride the reddening roads;
to let my pale steed tread the flight-path [SKY/HEAVEN].
I shall go west of the wind-helm's bridges [SKY/HEAVEN > CLOUDS?], before Salgovner may awaken the victorious people.”

1 roðnar 'reddening' | From the rising dawn.

- P7 Þęir Hęłgi riðu leið sína, en þęr fóru hęim til bójar. Annan aptan lét 2 Sigrún ambótt halda vǫrð á haugi'num. En at dag-setri, es Sigrún kom til haugs'ins, hón kvað:

Hallow and his men rode on their way, but the women journeyed home to the farm. The next evening Syerun let her maid-servant keep watch on the mound. And at sunset, as Syerun was coming to the mound, she [= the maid-servant] quoth:

- 14 „Kominn vęri nú, • ef koma hygði,
2 Sigmundar burr • frá sǫlum Óðins;
kveð'k grams þinig • gręnask vánir
4 es á ask-limum • ęrnir sitja ok drífr drótt ǫll • draum-þinga til.“

“He would now have come if he had thought to come Syemund's son [= Hallow], from Weden's halls;
the hopes, I say, of the prince are fleeting,
when the eagles sit upon ashen branches,
and all mankind drifts off to dream-Things.

4 es á ask-limum • ęrnir sitja 'when the eagles sit upon ashen branches' | i.e. “when the eagles are roosting”. This is a sign of Hallow and his men not coming, for if they were, the eagles would be following them (and picking at their bodies).

5 drífr ... draum-þinga til 'drifts off to dream-Things' | i.e. falls asleep.

- 15 Ves *ei*gi svá ór · at *ei*n farir,
 2 dís skjöldunga, · draug-húsa til!
 Verða *q*flgari · allir á nóttum
 4 dauðir dólgar, mér, · an of daga ljósa.“

Be not so mad that thou journey alone,
 O lady of the Shieldings, to the ghost-houses!
 Mightier at night do all become dead fiends, O maiden, than during the bright days!”

- P8 Sigrún varð skamm-líf af harmi ok trega. Þat var trúa í forneskju, at menn 2 vęri endr-bornir, en þat er nú kǫlluð kerlinga-villa. Helgi ok Sigrún er kallat at vęri endr-borin. Hét hann þá Helgi Haddingjaskati en hon Kára 4 Hálfðanar dóttir, svá sem kveðit er í Káruljóðum, ok var hon val-kyrja.

Syerun became short-lived for pain and grief. It was a belief in ancient times that men were reborn, but that is now called an old wives' tale. Of Hallow and Syerun it is said that they were reborn. He was then called Hallow Hardingskate and she Cheer Half-danesdaughter, as is sung in the Leeds of Cheer, and she was a walkirrie.

- P1 Sigurđr gekk til stóðs Hjálp-reks ok kaus sér af hest einn er Grani var
2 kallađr síđan. Þá var kominn Reginn til Hjálp-reks, sonr Hreiđ-mars.
 Hann var hverjum manni hagari ok dvergr of vøxt. Hann var vitr, grimmr 4 ok fjøl-kunnigr. Reginn veitti Sigurđi fóstr ok kennslu ok elskaði hann mjøk. Hann sagði Sigurđi frá for-ellri sínu ok þeim at-burðum at Óđinn 6 ok Hónir ok Loki høfðu komit til And-vara-fors; í þeim forsi var fjølđi nar ok fór þá til And-vara-fors ok kastaði netinu fyr gedduna en hon hljóp 16 í netit. Þá męlti Loki:

Siward went to Helpric's stable and thereof chose for himself one horse, which was henceforth called Grane. Then Rein, son of Rethmar, was come to Helpric. He was more crafty than any man and a dwarf in stature; he was clever, cruel and many-cunning^C. Rein fostered and taught Siward and love him very much. He told Siward about his own parents, and about the events that Weden, Heener and Lock had come to Andwareforce; in that force was a multitude of fish. A dwarf was named Andware; he was for a long time in the force in the likeness of a pike and got his food there. "Otter was our brother called," said Rein, "who often journeyed in the force in the likeness of an otter. He had caught a salmon and sat on the riverbank and ate it with closed eyes Lock struck him with a stone unto his death. The Eese thought themselves to have been very lucky, and flayed the skin off the otter. The same evening they sought to pass the night at Rethmar's house, and showed their catch. Then we bound them and proposed to them as a life-ransom that they would fill the otter-skin with gold, and also cover the outside with red gold. Then they sent Lock to procure the gold. He came to Ran and got her net, and then journeyed to Andwareforce and threw the net in front of the pike, and it jumped into the net. Then spoke Lock:

1 „Hvat 's þat fiska · es rinn flóði í,
2 kann-at sér við víti varask.
Höfuð þitt · læys-tu hęlju ór;
4 finn mér lindar loga!“

“What kind of fish is it who runs in the flood?
It cannot protect itself from harm.
Ransom thy head out of Hell;
find me the flame of the linden [GOLD]!”

2 „And-vari ek hęiti, · Óinn hét minn faðir,
2 margan hęfi'k fors of farit.
Aumlig norn · skóp oss í ár-daga
4 at skylda í vatni vaða.“

“Andware I am called; Owen was called my father;
through many a force have I fared.
A wretched norn shaped for us in days of yore,
that I should in the water wade.”

3 „Sęg-ðu þat, And-vari, (kvað Loki) ef þú ęiga vill
2 líf í lýða solum:
Hver gjöld · fāa gumna synir
4 ef höggvask orðum á?“

“Say that, Andware—quothe Lock—if thou wilt own life in the halls of men:
Which recompense do the sons of men get,
if they hew at each other with words?”

4 „Ofr-gjöld · fǫa gumna synir

 By the ramifications of untrue words is each who lies to another long followed.²²¹”

²²¹ Watery torment in the afterlife for oath-breakers and liars is well attested in the Germanic sources. See note to Wsp 39 for discussion.

P2 Loki sá allt gull þat er And-vari átti. En er hann hafði fram reitt gullit, þá
 2 hafði hann eftir einn hring ok tók Loki þann af hánun. Dvergrinn gekk inn í steininn ok mælti:

Lock saw all the gold which Andware owned. But when he had brought forth all the gold, then he had one ring left, and Lock took it off him. The dwarf went into the stone and spoke:

5 „Þat skal gull · es Gustr átti
 2 bróðrum tveim · at bana verða
 ok ǫðlingum · átta at rógi;
 4 mun míns féar · mann-gi njóta.“

“That gold which Gust owned shall for two brothers become the bane, and for eight nobles the [cause of] strife;
 of my wealth will no man benefit.”

P3 Ésir reiddu Hreið-mari féit ok tráðu upp otr-belginn ok reistu á fótr; þá
 2 skyldu ésirnir hlaða upp gullinu ok hylja. En er þat var gørt gekk Hreið-marr framm ok sá eitt grana-hár ok bað hylja. Þá dró Óðinn framm 4 hringinn And-vara-naut ok hulði hárit.

The Eese prepared the wealth for Rethmar and stuffed the otter-skin and raised it on its feet. Then the Eese should fill it up with gold and cover it. But when that was done Rethmar stepped forth, and saw a single whisker-strand and bade it be covered. Then Weden drew forth the ring Andwaresgift and covered the strand.

- P5 Þá dó Hreið-marr en Fáfniir tók gullit allt. Þá beiddisk Reginn at hafa 2 föður-arf sinn, en Fáfniir galt þar nei við. Þá leitaði Reginn ráða við Lyngheiði, systur sína, hvernig hann skyldi heimta föður-arf sinn. Hon kvað:

Then Rethmar died, and Fathomer took all the gold. Then Rein asked to have his father's inheritance, but Fathomer gave back a no. Then Rein looked for counsel from Lingheath, his sister, over how he should get his father's inheritance. She quoth:

- 13 „Brúðar kvæðja • skalt blíð-liga

 4 ok es mér fangs vón • at frekum ulfi.

 4 þrymr um ǫll lōnd • ør·lōg-símu.“

I will raise the troop-bold prince,
 now the son of a king is come among us!
 This ruler will become mightiest under the sun,
 he fastens through all lands his orlay-strands!”

4 þrymr ... ør·lōg-símu ‘he fastens ... orlay-strands’ | i.e. “his fate is being fixed throughout all lands”. Cf. the first four sts. of HHund I.

- P7 Sigurðr var þá jafnan með Regin ok sagði hann Sigurði at Fáfni lá á Gnit-
 2 heiði ok var í orms líki. Hann átti ógis-hjalm er ǫll kvikvendi hréddusk

 4 brá því ofan í Rín ok lét reka ullar-lagð fyr straumi ok tók í sundr lagðinn sem vatnit. Því sverði klauf Sigurðr í sundr steðja Regins. Eptir þat eggjaði 6 Reginn Sigurð at vega Fáfni. Hann sagði:

Then Siward was always with Rein, and he told Siward that Fathomer lay on the Gnit-heath in a Wyrms likeness; he owned the helm of awe by which all living things were frightened. Rein made for Siward the sword which is called Gram; it was so sharp that he plunged it down into the Rhine, and floated a lock of wool down the stream, and it split the lock like it did the water. With that sword Siward split asunder Rein’s anvil; after that Rein urged Siward to slay Fathomer. He said:

- 16 „Hátt munu hléja • Hundings synir

Titled Frá dauða Fáfnis 'From Fathomer's death' in R.

1 „Sveinn ok sveinn! · Hverjum est sveini of borinn?
2 Hverra est manna mögr?
es þú á Fáfni rautt · þinn hinn frána męki;
4 stöndumk til hjarta hjörr!“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“O swain and swain! To which swain art thou born;
of which men art thou son?

As thou on Fathomer hast reddened thy gleaming blade,
the sword stands unto my heart!”

P1 Sigurðr dulði nafns síns fyr því at þat var trúa þeira í forneskju at orð feigs
2 manns mętti mikit ef hann bölvaði óvin sínum með nafni. Hann kvað:

Siward concealed his name, because it was their belief in ancient times that the word of a fey^C man could do much if he baled his enemy by his name. He [= Siward] quoth:

2 „Göfugt dýr ek hęiti · en ek gengit hef’k
2 hinn móður-lausi mögr, föður ek á’kk-a · sem fira synir,
4 geng ek ęinn saman.“

“Noble Deer am I called, and I have gone
as the motherless lad.
A father I have not like the sons of men;
I go alone.”

3 „Veitst, ef fǫður né átt-at · sem fira synir,
2 af hverju vastu undri alinn? [...]“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“Dost thou know, if thou hast no father, like do the sons of men, by which wonder thou wast begotten?”

4 „Étterni mitt · kveð’k þér ó·kunnigt vesa
2 ok mik sjalfan hit sama:
Sigurðr ek heiti · Sigmundr hét minn faðir
4 es hef’k þik vǫpnum vegit.“

[Siward quoth:]

“My lineage I declare is unknown to thee, and my self the same.²²³
Siward am I called—Sýmund was called my father—who with weapons have struck thee.”

²²³The meaning is that Fathomer would not recognize Siward’s lineage (i.e. his father) or name, since he is an orphan who up until this point has not won any glory. He is not saying that he is lineage is unknown even to himself, since sjalfan mik ‘my self’ is accusative, not dative.

5 „Hverr þik hvatti, · hví hvetjask lést,
2 mínu fǫrvi at fara?
Hinn frán-eygi sveinn, · þú áttir fǫður bitran,
4 á-bornu skjór á skęð.“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“Who goaded thee—why didst thou let thee be goaded—
my life for to destroy?
O gleaming-eyed swain, thou haddest a sharp father;
inborn traits quickly show!”

4 á-bornu skjór á skęð. ‘inborn traits quickly show.’ | The original is cryptic. á skęð means roughly ‘rapidly, quickly’, whence the expression ríða á skęð ‘CV: to ride at full speed’, but the other words are uncertain. La Farge and Tucker (1992) read ‘your innate qualities show quickly’, suggesting two unattested words: an adjective áborinn* ‘innate, inborn’ and a verb skjóa* ‘to show’. Yet the lack of i-umlaut in the supposed 3rd sg. pres. ind. skjór is difficult. We would expect skýr*, as in skjóta ‘to shoot,’ with 2nd/3rd sg. pres. ind skýtr. A solution here would be reading a 2nd sg. pres. subj. skjóir, with a vowel TODO

- 6 „Hugr mik hvatti, · hendr mér full-týðu
 2 ok minn inn hvassi hjorr;
 fār es hvatr · es hrøðask tēkr 4 ef í barnósku ’s blauðr.“

[Siward quoth:]

“My heart goaded me, my hands availed me,
 and this my sharp sword.

Few a man is brave when he takes to grow,
 if in youth he be soft.”

- 7 „Veit’k, ef þú vaxa næðir · fyr þinna vina brjósti,
 2 séi-t maðr þik vręiðan vega;
 nú est haptr · ok hęr-numinn,
 4 ę kveða bandingja bifask.“

- 9 „Hęipt-yrði ęin · tęlr þú þér í hví-vętna
 2 en ek þér satt ęitt sęgi’k:
 It gjalla gull · ok it glóð-rauða fę,
 4 þér verða þęir baugar at bana!“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“With only hateful words dost thou answer anything, but I tell thee truth alone:

The resounding gold and the glowing red wealth,
 those bighs will be thy bane!”

- 10 „Fęi ráða · skal fyrða hvęrr
 2 ę til ins ęina dags

því-at einu sinni · skal alda hvęrr
 4 fara til hęljjar heðan.“

[Siward quoth:]

“Rule [his] wealth shall every man, always, until the one day;
 for at one time must every man journey hence to Hell.”

2 ins ęina dags ‘the one day’ | i.e. his predetermined time of death. Siward dismisses the idea of the curse, since he knows that he will die regardless of whether he takes the gold or not; and he would rather die rich and famous than wretched and forgotten.

11 „Norna dóm · munt fyr nęsjum hafa
 2 ok ó·svinnns apa;
 í vatni þú drukknar · ef í vindi ręr;
 4 allt es fęigs forað.“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“The doom of the Norns shalt thou have before the headlands, and that of an unwise ape.
 In water wilt thou drown if thou row in wind;
 everything is the pit of the fey^{C. 224}”

1 fyr nęsjum ‘before the headlands’ | i.e. ‘close at hand, imminent’. A formulaic expression for imminent death, cf. the last st. of Sonatorrek (TODO).

²²⁴That is, the cursed, death-doomed (fey) man will find sudden death no matter where he turns.

12 „Sęg mér, Fáfnir, · alls þik fróðan kveða
 2 ok vęl mart vita:
 Hvērjar ’ru þęr nornir · es nauð-gonglar ’ru
 4 ok kjósa móðr frá mögum?“

[Siward quoth:]

“Say to me, Fathomer, as they call thee wise,
 and knowing well enough:
 Who are the Norns that attend in need,
 and choose mothers from their lads?”

3 es nauð-gonglar ’ru ‘that attend in need’ | lit. ‘who are attendant in need’, i.e. who help ailing mothers during childbirth. Cf. Sdr 8.

13 „Sundr-bornar mjøk · hygg at nornir sé,

2 ęigu-t þęr ęt samn;
 sumar 'ru ąs-kunngar, • sumar alf-kunngar,
 4 sumar dętr Dvalins.“

[Fathomer quoth:]

“Of very sundry birth I judge the norns to be;
 they come not from a common lineage:
 Some are begotten of the Eese, some begotten of the Elves, some are the daughters of Dwollen [DWARFS].”

14 „Sę męr þat, Fáfńir, • alls þik fręđan kveđa
 2 ok vęl margt vita,
 hvę sá holmr hętir • es blanda hjęr-lęgi
 4 Surtr ok ęsir saman.“

[Siward quoth:]

“Say to me, Fathomer, as they call thee wise,
 and knowing well enough:
 What is the islet called, where Surt and the Eese blend sword-water [BLOOD] together?”

15 „Ó-skópnir hętir • en þar ęll skulu
 2 ęęirum lęika gođ;
 Bil-ręst brotnar • es á brott fara
 4 ok svima í móđu marir.

[Fathomer quoth:]

“Unshopner it is called, and there shall all the Gods play with spears; Bilrest shatters when they fare away,
 and the horses swim in the sea.

Fathomer continues speaking, but there is probably something missing here, since the transition is abrupt. Between its paraphrases of st. 15 and of st. 16, N has Ok enn męlti Fáfńir: „Reginn bręđir minn vęldr mínum dauđa, ok þat hlęgir mik, er hann vęldr ok þínum dauđa, ok ferr þá, sem hann vildi.“ ‘And further spoke Fathomer: “My brother Rein causes my death, and it gladdens me that he also causes thy death, and then it will go like he has willed.”’, which may either be a paraphrase of a lost st., or an addition by the redactor.

The Speeches of Syedrive (Sigrdrífumól)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.961)

Meter: Leed-meter

Sdr is attested in two medieval mss., namely R (which is the main mss. for the pres. ed) and N (Wals ch. 21), which begins with a paraphrase of the present poem up to P2:

Brynhildr segir, at tveir konungar þorðust. Hét annarr Hjalmgunnarr; hann var gamall ok hinn mesti hermaðr, ok hafði Óðinn honum sigr heitit, en annarr Agnarr eða Auða bróðir. „Ek fellda Hjalmgunnarr í orrostu, en Óðinn stakk mik svefn-þorni í hefnd þess ok kvað mik aldri síðan skyldu sigr hafa ok kvað mik giptast skulu. En ek strengða þess heit þar í mót at giptast engum þeim, er bréðast kynni.“ Sigurðr mælti: „Kenn oss ráð til stórra hluta.“ Hun svarar: „Þér munuð betr kunna, en með þökkum vil ek kenna yðr, ef þat er nokkut, er vér kunnum, þat er yðr mætti líka, í rúnum eða öðrum blutum, er liggja til hvers blutar, ok drekkum bæði saman, ok gefi goðin okkr góðan dag, at þér verði nýt ok fregð at mínum vitrleik, ok þú munir eptir þat, er vit réðum.“ Brynhildr fyllði eitt ker ok fýrði Sigurði ok mælti:

‘Byrnhild says that two kings fought. One was called Helmguther; he was old and the greatest warrior, and Weden had promised him victory, but the other was called Eyner or Eade’s brother. “I felled Helmguther in battle, but Weden stung me with a sleeping-thorn as revenge for that, and declared that I should never thenceforth have victory, and said that I must marry, but I made a vow in response, to marry no man who could be frightened.” Siward spoke: “Teach us counsels regarding great things.” She answers: “Ye will know better, but with thanks I will teach you, if there is anything which we know that may please you, of runes or other things of importance; and let us both drink together, and may the gods give us two a good day, that thou have use and joy from my wisdom and that thou afterwards recall that which we two speak of.” Byrnhild filled a vessel and brought it to Siward and spoke:’

After this it cites sts. 4–12 and 14–18 in uninterrupted sequence, and paraphrases sts. 19 ff. (TODO: edit these!). The order of stanzas in N is not identical to R. Both mss.

have sts. 4–5 and 12, 14–18 in the same place, but the order of sts. 6–11 in between is divergent, as seen by the following table:

 and give the sitters [= us] victory.

2 nipt ‘[her] kinswoman [= Earth]’ | According to Yilv 10 Earth is the daughter of Night and Aner^P.

3 Ó-rēiðum augum · lítið okkr þinig ‘With unwrathful [FRIENDLY] eyes look ye toward us two’ | An archaic conception; the Gods turning Their friendly gaze toward the worshipper symbolises Their bestowing their favour, and the specific use of ó-rēiðr ‘un-wroth’ shows that the wrath of the Gods was feared. Compare Hdl 6. Similar language is found in other ancient literatures, e.g. in the Hebrew Bible, most famously in the “Priestly Blessing” of Numbers 6:24–26 where Yahweh’s favour is expressed by “making His face shine” and “lifting His face” toward the receiver of the blessing, and also in Psalms 4:6 and the chorus of Psalms 80, contrasting with 80:17 where the Israelites are depicted as perishing before the rebuke of Yahweh’s face.

1 Hēilir ésir, · hēilar ósynjur ‘Hail the Eese! Hail the Ossens!’ | Probably formulaic, subverted by Lock in Lock 11 (see note there for possible ritual use).

4 lēknis-hendr ‘healing-hands’ | Hands with the power to heal (perhaps supernaturally). The singular form lēknis-hynd occurs in the semi-Christianized prayer on a c. 1300 stick from Ribe, Denmark (signum DR EM85;493).

1 bók-rúnar ‘book-runes’ | Or ‘beech-runes’. The word may also be emended to bót-rúnar ‘cure-runes’, since the letters c and t were, in the TODO miniscule used on Iceland, very similar. This emendation is favourable for two reasons: (i) it makes more sense, since the semantic pair bót ‘cure’ : bjarg ‘rescue’ is surely stronger than bók ‘book, beech’ : bjarg ‘rescue’, and since the present stanza is specifically referring to the practical use of the runes; (ii) the pair bót-rúnar : bjarg-rúnar is already found in a runic charm (B 257, edited under Galders from Bryggen).

Grim strands follow the troth-breach;
wretched is the outlaw of vows.²³⁵

3 simar ‘strands’ | i.e. ‘strands of fate’; cf. HHund I 3, where the nors are said to twist such strands. Often emended to limar ‘ramifications’ in accordance with Rein 4, where that word is used in basically the same context. Such a scribal confusion is easily understood, since s in this position was always spelled with long f in the old mss. The paraphrase (see other note) is not conclusive, since it replaces this word with hefn ‘revenge’.

²³⁵The punishment is one of torment in the afterlife; see note to Wsp 39. — The whole stanza is paraphrased in Wals ch. 21: Ok sver eigi rangan eið, því at grim hefn fylgir griðrofi. ‘And swear no wrong oath, for grim revenge follows the grith-breach.’

The Third Lay of Guthrun

(Guðrúnarkviða þriðja)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.731), early C11th (0.178)

Meter: Firnwordslaw

A very short narrative poem, depicting a single minor legendary event. It is especially notable for its depiction of a trial by ordeal and the mention of a woman being drowned in a bog.

Herch, one of Attle's concubines tells Attle that she has seen his wife Guthrun sleeping with Thedric. Attle becomes distressed upon hearing this (P1). Guthrun asks him what is wrong (1), and he responds that Herch has accused her of sleeping with Thedric (2). Guthrun promises to prove her innocence through a trial by ordeal involving picking up a white stone from boiling water (3). She further says that while she and Thedric did sit down together, they did so in mutual grief over the deaths of her brothers (4–5). She tells Attle to summon a German lord named Saxe, who knows how to carry out the trial. Seven hundred men arrive to witness the event (6). Before picking up the stone, Guthrun laments over her brothers' deaths, saying that they would have disputed the accusation through violence, but that she must now prove her innocence by herself (7). She then puts her hand in the boiling water, and unscathed takes out the stones. She holds it up and shows it to the witnesses (8). Attle laughs, knowing that his wife has been faithful, and orders Herch to pick up the stone (9). She does so, but her hands are horribly scorched, and men lead her to a "foul bog", presumably to be drowned (see above). The poet ends by laconically stating that Guthrun in such a way was "reconstituted for her affronts".

P1 Herkja hét ambótt Atla; hón hafði verit frilla hans. Hón sagði Atla at hón
2 hefði sét Þjóðrek ok Guðrúnu bæði saman. Atli var þá allókátr. Þá kvað Guðrún:

Herch was named the female thrall of Attle; she had been his concubine. She told Attle that she had seen Thedric and Guthrun both together. Attle was then wholly displeased. Then Guthrun quoth:

1 „Hvat ’s þér, Atli? · é, Buðla sonr,
 2 es þér hryggt í hug; · hví hlér þú éva?
 Hitt myndi óðra · jǫrlum þykkja
 4 at við męnn męltir · ok mik sęir.“

“What is with thee, Attle? Always, O son of Bodle, art thou sad at heart—why laughest thou never?

“This troubles me, Guthrun, Yivick’s daughter:
 in the hall has Herch told me that thou and Thedric beneath thatched roof slept, and ye lightly warded the linen.²³⁶”

²³⁶i.e., they threw off their clothes and slept together.

3 „Þér mun’k alls þęss · ęiða vinna

“To thee I will swear oaths of all of that—which neither wife nor husband has been able to swear upon,—²³⁸

²³⁷Historically, Thedmar was the father of Thedric, who took over the kingdom after his father’s death (see Encyclopedia). Thedmar may here be a scribal error for Thedric, a scribal error for “Thedmar’s son”, or a nickname due to conflation of the father and son.

²³⁸Guthrun says that she will prove her innocence through a trial by ordeal (that is, by lifting “the white holy stone” out of boiling water; see st. 8). She further strengthens her position by pointing out that no reliable person has sworn an oath attesting to her guilt.

The Lay of Attle

(Atlakviða)

Dating (Sapp, 2022): C10th (0.719)–early C11th (0.212)

Meter: Speech-meter, Firnwordslaw

A famously archaic poem.

Attle sends his messenger Kneefrith to Guthur (1). He arrives at Guthur's hall, where the mood is one of unease, and addresses Guthur (2). Kneefrith invites him and his brother Hain to Attle's court (3), offering them treasures, weapons and land (4–5). Guthur asks his brother Hain for advice, since he has not heard of Attle having gold to give away (6).

The Death of Attle (Dauði Atla)

P1 Guðrún Gjúkadóttir hefndi bróðra sinna, svá sem frégt er orðit. Hon drap 2 fyrst sonu Atla, en eptir drap hon Atla ok brendi hollina ok hirðina alla;
um þetta er sjá kviða ort.

Guthrun Yivicksdaughter avenged her brothers, as has become famous. She first killed the sons of Attle, and after that she killed Attle, and burned the hall and the whole hird. Regarding that this lay is wrought.

- 1 Atli sendi · ár til Gunnars
2 kunnan segg at riða, · Knéfrøðr vas sá heitinn;
at gørdum kom hann Gjúka · ok at Gunnars hollu, 4 bękkjum arin-gręypum · ok at bjóri svósum.

Attle sent—of yore—to Guthur a well-known messenger to ride; Kneefrith he was called.
 To the yards of Yivick he came, and to the hall of Guthur;
 to the hearth-surrounding benches, and to the lovely beer.

2 Drukku þar drótt-męgir · —ęn dyljędr þęgðu—
 2 vín í val-hęllu, · vręði sęusk þęir Húna;
 kallaði þá Knęfręðr · kaldri ręddu,
 4 sęęgr inn suð-róni · sat hann á bękk hęm:

There the dright-lads [WARRIORS] drank—but the concealed ones shut up—wine in the walhall; they feared the wrath of the Huns.
 Then called Kneefrith with cold voice,
 the southern messenger, he sat on a high bench:

1 dyljędr ‘concealed ones’ | Finnur Jónsson (1932) reasonably interprets this as referring to Attle’s spies at Guthur’s court.

2 val-hęllu ‘the walhall’ | The interpretation of this compound is difficult in the current context. The first element val- could be (1) valr ‘falcon’, referring to the aristocratic hunting practice; (2) valr ‘Wale^G’, cognate with ‘Welsh’ but in ON referring to the French or Romans, stressing the southern location or appearance of the hall; or (3) valr ‘(collective) the battle-slain’, foreshadowing the inevitable death (feyness^C) of the Yivickings^G. If (3) is correct the word is linguistically identical to Walhall^L, Weden’s hall, whither the battle-slain go.

3 „Atli mik hingat sęndi · ríða ęręndi,

He also declared himself willing to give you two the field of wide Gnit-heath,
 [and] of yelling spears and of gilded prows, great treasures and the place of Danp;
 the renowned brush which men call Mirkwood.

- 6 Høfði vatt þá Gunnarr · ok Høgna til sagði:

His head turned Guthr then, and said to Hain:
 “What dost thou counsel us two, O younger man, as such a thing we hear?
 I knew of no gold on the Gnit-heath which we two should not own as much of.

- 7 Sjau eigu vit sal-hús · sverða full,

 2 einn ’s minn betri · en sé allra Húna.“

[my] helmet and whitest shield, come from Caser’s hall;

- 9 „Hvat hyggir brúði þendu · þá’s hón okkr baug sendi,

 Hár fann’k heiðingja · riðit í hring rauðum;
 4 ylfskr es vegr okkarr · at riða ørendi.“

[Hain quoth:]

“What dost thou think the bride meant, when she sent us two an armlet wrapped with a heath-dweller’s garment [WOLF > WOLF’S HAIR]? I think that she gave us a warning!

I found the heath-dweller’s [WOLF’S] hair tied through the red ring:

wolven is our road, if we ride that errand!²⁴⁰”

²⁴⁰That it is the more cautious Hain who speaks here is clear from Guthur’s response in the following stanzas. Whereas Hain judges the wolf-hair to be a warning of Hunnish treachery, Guthur thinks that it is a warning that wolves will steal his treasure if he does not show up.

- 10 Niðjar-gi hvøttu Gunnar · né náungr annarr,

Kinsmen urged not Guthur, nor any other relation,
 not counselors nor advisors, nor those who were mighty.
 Guthur then announced—as a king should,
 renowned in the mead-hall—with great spirit:

- 11 „Rís-tu nú, Fjornir, · lát-tu á flēt vaða
 2 greppa gull-skálar · með gumna höndum!

“Rise now, Ferner; let on the floorboards wade forth the golden bowls of warriors along the hands of men!

1 Fjornir ‘Ferner’ | An otherwise unknown servant.

The wolf will rule the inheritance of the Nivlings—
 the old grey guardians [WOLVES]—if Guthur is missing.
 Black-furred bears [will] bite with wrangling teeth—amusing the bitch-pack—if Guthur comes not.”

- 13 Leiddu land-rogni · lýðar ó-neisir,

the ruler of the Gots—to buy with gold.²⁴³

1 Svá ... verjask | Line moved from the last st. to this one since it seems to connect semantically with the immediately following line, and also creates a regular line distribution of 4-4 instead of 5-3.

²⁴³The Huns ask Guthur (it is clear that “ruler of the Gots” refers to him, cf. sts. 1, 3, 10) if he wishes to ransom Hain. He instead responds with the following:

- 23 „Hjarta skal mér Hogna · í hendi liggja
2 blóðugt, ór brjósti · skorit bald-riða, saxi slíðr-bęitu, · syni þjóðans.“

[Guthur quoth:] “The heart of Hain shall lie in my hands:
bloody from the breast, cut from the bold rider [= Hain], with a slide-biting sax,²⁴⁴ from the son of the sovereign [= Hain].”

²⁴⁴i.e. a short-sword with a blade so sharp that it draws blood when one slides the finger across it.

- 24 Sköru þeir hjarta · Hjalla ór brjósti,

- 26 Hló þá Hogni · es til hjarta skóru

Other Heroic Poetry

The Lay of Hildbrand

Dating: C8th

Meter: Firnwordslaw

For the text of original poem I present the manuscript text with as few textual emendations as possible. As for the orthography, I have found it impossible to produce a normalised without too heavily distorting the received text, being as it is, a blend of several dialects (one need only observe the treatment of the name Thedric, which appears thrice, and each time in a markedly different form). Apart from my typical practice of capitalising proper names, marking prefixes with ⟨·⟩ and compounds with ⟨-⟩, and using acute accents to signify long vowels, circumflex accents to signify now-monophthongised original diphthongs, and overdots to mark nasal vowels, I have done the following changes in order to clarify etymological relationships and make the text somewhat more wieldy. Of these, 8–10 have also been noted in the apparatus where they occur:

1. Consistently replaced both p (wynn) and uu with w.
2. Consistently replaced c with k.
3. Consistently replaced qu with kw.
4. Consistently replaced t with t̥ in positions affected by the Second Sound Shift.
5. Replaced th with þ.
6. Replaced e with ē when reflecting an original a-vowel affected by i-mutation.
7. Replaced ó with ō where originally an a.
8. Removed unetymological double nn.
9. Restored initial b- where etymological and/or metrically required.
10. Removed initial b- unetymological and/or metrically deficient.

The punctuation of the original, entirely consisting of interpuncts, at times representing metrical breaks, at others sporadically placed, has not been retained.

Where they appear in cæsuræ, the words kwad Hilti-brant ‘Hildbrand quoth’ (found in ll. 30, 49, and 58) replace the usual interpunct. Due to their hypermetrical nature, I had originally planned to remove these, and instead indicate the speaker in the margins—but after comparison with various Norse stanzas (e.g. Rein 3, wherein the words kvað Loki ‘Lock quoth’ appear in the stanza’s first cæsura), I have come to believe that these represent an ancient oral interjection, seemingly going back as far as the Migration Period (as it seems incredulous to think that the scribe of ms. should have influenced the four centuries younger scribe of R in such a minor point.)

The poet gives a very short formulaic introduction, from which we can tell that the beginning of the poem is preserved (1–2). Hildbrand and Hathbrand, father and son, arm and dress themselves before riding into battle, each the head of an opposing host (3–6). Hildbrand asks Hathbrand about his name and lineage, saying that he knows all noble genealogies (7–13). Hathbrand gives his name, and says that the old men of his tribe have told him that his father was Hildbrand, a brave warrior. He abandoned the newborn Hathbrand in order to serve Thedric in his fight against Edwaker, but this was a long time ago, and Hathbrand doubts that he is still alive (14–29). Realising that he is facing his son, Hildbrand invokes God as witness, and as a token of loyalty offers Hathbrand a golden bigh which the Hunnish king had given him (30–35). Hathbrand exclaims that treasures must be won by struggle alone and harshly insults his father’s manhood: he calls him an old Hun, and accuses him of having survived to old age through treachery (36–41). Hathbrand then reveals that he has learned from sailors on the Mediterranean that Hildbrand is dead (42–44).

After this follow three short speeches by Hildbrand. The second one is certainly spoken by him, but the other two may be misplaced or misattributed. Hildbrand reflects on his son’s prosperity, saying that he can tell from his clothes that he has a good lord, and that he, unlike himself, has not suffered an exile’s fate (first speech: 45–48). He then calls on God, and laments that after thirty years of war he is now forced to fight against his own son; still, he tells Hathbrand that he should easily be able to kill such an old man as himself, if he has the strength to it (second speech: 49–57). Lastly, he (or Hathbrand, if we choose to emend) says that only the most degenerate easterner would refuse the fight when his opponent so greatly desires it. He accepts his fate and declares that when the duel is over, one of the two must win and rob the corpse of the other (third speech: 58–62).

The two men then throw their javelins, each of which gets stuck in the opposing shield, before rushing into each other, hacking away at their shields until they become worthless (63–68). The rest of the poem was continued on the now-lost, following page(s).

“This our people told me—that Hildbrand was called my father—I am called Hathbrand.

Long ago he turned east, he fled Edwaker's hate,

hence with Thedrich and his multitude of thanes.

He left in the land a little one to stay:

a bride in the bower, a bairn ungrown, inheritance-less—he rode east hence,

at which time Thedrich was in great need of my father—that was so friendless a man!

He was immeasurably hostile to Edwaker,

37 mit gêru skal man · geba in·fâhan ‘With spear shall one win gifts’ | This ancient mindset was codified by the Indians as part of the kṣatra-dharma, the code of the Warrior (kṣatriya) caste, which explicitly forbade them from taking gifts. So in a part of the Mahabharata (12.192.73), a Warrior King refuses a gift from a priest since “it is the duty prescribed for a Kṣatriya that he must fight and protect (people). Kṣatriya are said to be the givers, then, how can I take (this) from you?” (Hara (1974) transl.)

Widesith spoke, unlocking his word-hoard,
he who through the most tribes over earth,
and folks had journeyed; often he received on a bench pleasing treasures. From the Mirgings his ancestry stemmed. Together with Elhild, the good peace-weaveress, for the first time he sought out the home of the Reth-King, to the east of the Angles, [the home of] Erminric^P, the angry oath-breaker. — He then began to speak before the many:

6 freoþu-wębban ‘peace-weaveress’ | A woman used in a political marriage to bring peace between two tribes or families, in this case apparently between King Edwin (see ll. 97–98) and the Gots.

7 Hreð-cyninges ‘Reth-King’ | i.e. the king of the Reth-Gots, which is apparently just a poetic name for the (Eastern) Gots; cf. ll. 18, 57, 88–89.

Heliand

Very much a work in progress.

The following is a complete list of source manuscripts, in chronological order.

- L. 840–850 (Thomas 4073 (Ms))
- P. 840–850 (R 56/2537 (PA))
- V. 800–850 (Palatini Latini 1447)
- S. 850 (cgm. 8840)
- M. 850–875 (cgm. 25)
- C. 950–1000 (Cotton Caligula A. VII sign. 3-11)

The two main manuscripts of the poem are M and C, which contain lines TODO, respectively. Fragments L and P appear to originally belong to the same codex; their hands are identical, and so is the format of the page.

Notes on the normalization:

- Long vowels are marked by the acute rather than by the circumflex accent or macron. This is both faithful to the original manuscripts and concordant with my practice in normalising other Germanic languages.
- Long vowels ô and ê resulting from monophthongisation of diphthongs au and ai are, however, written with the circumflex accent.
- ó when coming from etymological a or á is written as ǫ
- When attested in all mss., epenthetic (svarabhakti) vowels are marked with an underdot. Otherwise they are deleted.
- Long vowels resulting from nasal assimilation are marked with an overdot. i is written as ĩ.
- ms. e and i, when occurring between vowels are written as j.
- ms. i, when word-initial or following g and corresponding to etymological j is written as j

- ms. e as resulting from i-mutation is written as ē.
- ms. b or ḃ, when representing the voiced bilabial fricative, is written as v.
- ms. th is written as þ.
- ms. uu is written as w.

Galders: Poetic Charms, Spells, and Curses

Under this section are gathered sundry [^Cgalder]galders (metrical magic charms) attested in Old Germanic languages. I have only included those with clear Heathen or otherwise traditional elements (especially certain poetic formulae known from older texts). Thoroughly Christian prayers are found below under "Poetry on Christian Subjects".

Continental Germanic galders

The Two Merseburg Galders

Dating: TODO.

Meter: Firnwordslaw, Galderlaw

These two galders, preserved in a manuscript (TODO) are some of the only surviving examples of genuine Heathen galders from the continent. Both share a common two-part structure, each beginning with an historiola (a “historical” account describing the successful effects of the galder in the mythic past), followed by an imperative, commanding that the willed magic effect take place in the present.

The first galder begins with the historiola describing a group of supernatural women in the midst of a battle, affecting its outcome by fastening or loosening fetters. The imperative then commands that some fetters in the present be destroyed, so that captive(s) may escape.

The second galder begins with the historiola describing a group of Gods riding through the woods. Among them is Balder^P, whose young horse sprains its foot. Three Gods then sing (see Note to bi-guol below) a healing-galder each over the horse; first the otherwise unknown goddess Sithguth^P, then the goddess Sun^P, and finally the god Weden^P. The imperative (apparently the same one sung by Weden) then commands that a present sprain be healed.

Of yore sat dises, sat here, then there:
some fastened fetters, some hindered armies,
some cleaved shackles (TODO!).—
Destroy the fetter-bonds, lead the way from the fiends!
.H.

5 .H. | The meaning of this letter, which is very clear and written in the same hand as the galders, is uncertain. To me the most convincing suggestion is that it be read as .N., short for Latin nomen ‘name’, presumably the name of the person whom the singer wishes to free from the fetters.

Phol and Weden journeyed in the woods;
 then was the foot of Balder’s foal sprained.
 Then begaled^C him Sithguth^P, Sun^P her sister;
 then begaled him Frie^P, Full^P her sister;
 then begaled him Weden, as he knew well:
 Like bone-sprain, like blood-sprain, like joint-sprain!
 Bone to bone,
 blood to blood,
 joint to joints, like were they glued together!

3 bi·guol ‘begale’ | third past singular of bi·galan ‘begale’, transitive of galan ‘gale, sing a galder’. This verb is the origin of the noun “galder”, literally ‘something galed’. Cf. Ord TODO, wherein a woman “gales” “bitter galders” over another in order to help her in childbirth.

Against worms (Contra vermes)

Dating: ?

Meter: Firnwordslaw

A manuscript charm, as its header suggests, aimed against worms. The worms (possibly maggots in an infected wound) are to leave the body (from marrow, to bone, to flesh, to skin) and instead go into some arrows (strála), possibly a ritual implement.

- 1 Gang út, Nesso, · mid nīgun nessi-klínon, 2 ut fana þemo marge an þat bēn, · fan þemo bēne an þat flesg, ut fan þemo flesgke an þia húd, · ut fan þera húd an þesa strála.
4 Drohtin, werþe só.

Go out, Nesse, with nine small Nesses!

Out from the marrow into the bone, from the bone into the flesh, out from the flesh into the skin, out from the skin into these arrows.
Lord, may it be so.

Against Swarm

(Wið ymbe)

Dating: ?
Meter: Firnwordslaw

TODO. That bees are called “victory-wives” is interesting.

P1 Wið ymbe nim eorþan, ofer·weorp mid þínre swíþran handa under þínum
2 swíþran fēt, and cwet:

Against a swarm take earth, throw it with thy right hand under thy right foot, and say:

1 Fó ic under fót, · funde ic hit.
2 Hwæt eorðe mæg · wið ealra wihta ge·hwilce and wið andan · and wið æminde
4 and wið þá micelan · mannes tungan.

I catch under foot, I may have found it.
How, earth works against everywhich wight and against mischief and against neglect and against that mighty tongue of man.

4 þá micelan · mannes tungan ‘that mighty tongue of man’ | The tongue is surely here standing in for “speech”, specifically galder; i.e., if the swarming of the bees were caused by an enemy’s cursing, the earth will disarm it.

P2 And wiððon for·weorp ofer greót, þonne hí swirman, and cweð:
And with that throw the grit over, when they swarm, and say:

1 for·weorp ofer greót ‘throw the grit over’ | i.e. “throw the earth over the swarm”.

- 2 Sittē gē, sige-wíf, · sīgað to eorþan!
2 Næfre gē wilde · to wuda fleogan.
 Beo gē swá ge·mindige · mínes gódes,
4 swá bið manna ge·hwilc · metes and éþeles.

Sit ye, victory-wives; sink to the earth!

Never ye would fly to the woods.

Be ye so mindful of my good,

like is every man of his measure and homestead.

One shall take seven small wafers, such as one offers [during the Mass], and write these names on each wafer: Maximianus, Malchus, Johannes, Martinianus, Dionysius, Constantinus, Seraphion. After that shall one sing this galder which is henceforth said; first into the left ear, then into the right ear, then over the man's head; and thereafter a maiden go forth, and hang it on his neck; and one do so for three days. He will soon be well.

Here came walking in an inspiden wight, had his harness in his hands; said that thou wert his horse, laid his reins on thy neck; then they together began to ride from the land.
As soon as they came away from the land, then they together began to cool limbs.
Then came walking in the beast's sister;
then she ended [it], and swore oaths,
that this never should harm the ailing man,
nor him who this galder might get,
nor whomever this galder could gale.
Amen, let it be.

Among the Germanic peoples the elves and Eese were originally beneficial, as seen by numerous names like Alfred (OE Ēlf-réd ‘Elf-counsel’), Oswald (OE Ós-weald ‘Os-power’), Elfwin (Lomb. Alb-oin ‘Elf-friend’), Oshelm (Lomb. Anselm ‘Os-helmet’).

Old Norse galders

The Ribe Galder Stick

Dating: Medieval.
Meter: Firnworslaw

A wooden stick from the Danish city of Ribe. The galder is syncretic, and as such contains numerous pre-Christian elements, albeit in a Christian(ised) context.

The inscription may be conveniently divided into four parts. Part one (ll. 1–4) contains an introductory prayer where the healer asks for the support of natural forces (Earth, Up-heaven and the Sun) and Christian divinities (God and Saint Mary), that the healing may be successful. Part two (ll. 5–8) ritually exorcises any sickness which may have entered any part of the body. Part three (ll. 9–14) apparently warns the addressee that they will be haunted by “nine needs” (an old Heathen formula; see Note) until they pray. Part four (ll. 15, which is probably prose) gives the personal name “Bonde”, perhaps the addressee, and concludes with an “Amen”.

Jorð bið ak varðe · ok up-himēn
2 söl ok sante María · ok salfeñ Guð dróttēn
þet hann lē mik lēkneð-hand · ok lyf-tunge
4 at lyfe biðfandē · þer bótē þarf.

I bid earth to ward, and up-heaven,
the sun and saint Mary, and the very lord God,
that he lend me a healing-hand and medicine-tongue,
as medicine for the trembler who needs a cure.

Ór bak ok ór bryst
2 ór líke ok ór lim
ór ðven ok ór ðren
4 ór alle þe þer illt kann í at kume.

Out of back and out of breast!
Out of body and out of limb!

Out of eyes and out of ears!

Out of everything, where evil which might come in!

Svart hêter stênn • han stêr í hafê útê,
 2 þer liggêr á þé níu nauðêr;

Swart is a stone called, he stands out in the ocean.

There lie on it nine needs.

They will not sleep sweetly

The Canterbury Galder

Dating: c. 1075

Meter: Firnwordslaw

This Old Norse galder is found in the Anglo-Saxon manuscript Cotton Caligula A XV. It runs across the bottom margin of the two facing pages 123v and 124r and is written in very clear runes of Wiking Age long-stave type. One rune, viz. g in vigi vegi ‘smite’ is “stung”. The text has no word separators.

The galder is very similar to those on the amulets from Sigtuna (U Fv1933;134, U NOR1998;25) below. They all belong to a type of magical healing where an illness-causing devil is commanded to leave the suffering person. The final line, viðr áðra-vari ‘against pus of veins’ is probably a declaration of purpose.

Gyrils sár-þvara!

2 Far-ðu nú, • fundinn es-tu!

Galders from Bryggen

Several galders or magical inscriptions are part of the cache of medieval rune-inscribed objects found at Bryggen in the city of Bergen, Norway. For simplicity's sake, they are here listed in ascending order of their runological numbers.

Dating: c. 1335
Meter: Galderlaw

A stick inscribed on four planed sides. Part of the stick is broken off, which renders the text incomplete. The inscription is clearly a “love-charm” (that is, a piece of sexually coercive magic), addressed—as shown by the feminine dative sjalfri þér ‘thy self’ on side D—to a woman. The language closely resembles that of Shir 36, in which Shirner, Free’s servant, threatens to carve a runic inscription which will curse the ettin-woman Gird with ergi ‘degeneracy’, ðði ‘madness’, and óþoli ‘restlessness, impatience’ unless she sleep with his master. It seems that we are here dealing with just such a surviving runic curse, and that Shir 36 is reflecting an authentic form of Norse “love magic” (for it is unlikely that the present inscription should derive directly from that poem) by which a woman is cursed with sexual restlessness until she succumb to the will of the male curser.

A more distant parallel may be seen in the curse-formula found on the two C7th runic inscriptions from Stentoften and Björketorp (see TODO), wherein the destroyer of the respective monuments is cursed to become herma-lausar argjú ‘restless (a different root from óþoli above!) with degeneracy’, i.e. ‘incessantly randy’.

Another thing of note is that side D ends with a string of fake-Latin gibberish, indicating post-conversion influence on the Old Norse-Germanic magic tradition.

A Ríst ek bót-rúnar · ríst ek bjarg-rúnar
2 ein-falt við ǫlfum
 tví-falt við trollum
4 þrí-falt við þursum

I carve cure-runes, I carve rescue-runes:
 onefold against elves,
 twofold against trolls,
 threefold against thurses.

B Við inni skóðu · skag-val-kyrju
 2 svá't ei megi · þó-at é vili lé-vís kona · lífi þínu granda.

Against the scatheful shag-walkirrie, so that she may not—though she always wants to—
 that guile-wise woman—harm thy life.

C Ek sendir þér · ek sé á þér
 2 ylgjar ergi · ok ó·þola;
 á þér hríni ó·þoli · ok *jǫ*tuns móðr;
 4 sit-tu aldri, · sop-tu aldri.

I send to thee, I see on thee
 a she-wolf's degeneracy and restlessness;
 may restlessness stick on thee, and an ettin's wrath!
 Never sit, never sleep!

D Ant mér sem sjalfri þér.

A short little charm explicitly invoking the two most important Heathen Gods, Thunder and Weden. The inscription postdates the conversion of Norway by over a century, and it is therefore an open question whether the two mentioned gods should still have been seen in a positive light (in which case the inscription is only well-wishing, assuming that the receiver was of like mind to the sender), or whether they had already assimilated into the Christian complex of demons and devils (in which case the inscriber may have had more sinister intent than the first line lets on). Judging from the first line, and from the half-Heathen contents of many other inscriptions found at Bryggen (some from as late as the C14th), I prefer the first option.

Hęill sé þú · ok í hugum góðum;
 2 Þórr þik þiggi,
 Óðinn þik ęigi.

May thou be hale and in good spirits;²⁴⁹
 may Thunder receive thee, may Weden own thee.

3 Óðinn þik ęigi ‘may Weden own thee’ | See note to Wsp 23.

²⁴⁹Formulaic, the same line is attested in Hym 41; see note there for parallels.

Christian poetry

Old Saxon Baptismal Vow

Dating: ?
Meter: Prose.

While not an alliterative poem in the slightest, this short text is important for its mention of Saxon Heathen Gods, and as I have no section for Miscellanea, I have here set it first among the Christian poetry, in order to give relevant cultural context. The format of the text is straight-forward and resembles the modern Catholic questions asked to participants during the Sacrament of Confirmation (TODO: reference). The person to be baptised is to respond positively to three denying and three affirming questions; first to forsake the Devil (P1), all “Devil-yields” (i.e. non-Christian rituals, see note to that word) (P2), and all the Devil’s “works and words” and his followers, among which are listed the three Germanic-Saxon gods Thunder, Woden, and Saxneet (P3); and then to profess belief in each member of the Trinity: God the almighty father (P4), Christ God’s son (P5), and the Holy Ghost (P6).

P1 „For·sachistu diobole?“ et respondeat: „ec for·sacho diobole“
“Forsakest thou the Devil?” and he should respond: “I forsake the Devil.”

P2 „end allum diabol-gelde?“ respondeat: „end ec for·sacho allum diabol-
2 gelde.“
“And all devil-yields?” he should respond: “I forsake all devil-yields.”

1 diabol-gelde ‘devil-yields’ | An obvious calque of OE TODO, which means TODO.

P3 „End allum dioboles wercum?“ respondeat „end ec for·sacho allum dioboles
2 wercum and wordum, Thuner ende Wóden ende Sax-nôte ende allem them un·holdum the hira ge·nôtas sint.“

“And all the Devil’s works” he should respond: “and I forsake all the works and words of the Devil; Thunder and Weden and Saxneet and all those unhold ones who are their fellows.”

P4 „Ge·lôbistu in Got ala-męhtigun fader?“ „Ec ge·lôbo in Got ala-męhtigun
2 fader.“

“Believest thou in God, the almighty father?” “I believe in God, the almighty father.”

P5 „Ge·lôbistu in Crist Godes suno?“ „Ec ge·lôbo in Crist Gotes suno.“

“Believest thou in Christ, God’s son?” “I believe in Christ, God’s son.”

P6 „Ge·lôbistu in hâlogan gâst?“ „Ec ge·lôbo in hâlogan gâst.“

“Believest thou in the Holy Ghost?” “I believe in the Holy Ghost.”

The Wessobrunner Hymn

Dating: late C8th
Meter: Firnwordslaw

This text can be split into two parts, the “poem” and the “prayer”. Following my principle of including sources rather than excluding (TODO: see Introduction), I here present both.

The first part is a short alliterative poem describing the earliest beginning of the world. The poet describes “the greatest of wonders”, namely that the universe began as a void, where neither earth nor heaven existed. In this void was, however, the almighty God, along with his many spirits (presumably the Heavenly Host or the Angels). While the cosmogony expressed is clearly Jewish-Christian rather than Germanic, the poem does contain two word-pairs also found in Norse Heathen stanzas about the creation of the world (see Notes to ll. 2, 3.), which may point toward a repurposing of older Heathen motifs and expressions in the new, Christian context.

The second part is a thoroughly Christian prayer. The author first thanks God for creating the earth and heaven, this is presumably why the poem was included, and for giving good things to mankind. He then asks for faith, strength and wisdom to “withstand devils”, “reproach degeneracy” and “work [God’s] will”.

I learned among men that greatest of wonders, that earth was not, nor up-heaven,

nor a forest, nor a mountain was not,
 nor any [...]; nor did the sun shine,
 nor the moon give off light, nor the glittering sea.
 Then nothing was there, neither of limit nor infinity (TODO: Translation),— and then was the One Almighty God:
 the mildest of men [= Christ], and there were also many with Him:
 good ghosts, and Holy God.

2 erdo | ero ms.

2 erdo ... úf-himil ‘earth ... up-heaven’ | A formulaic merism attested across the Germanic world, expressing the totality of the universe. Cf. especially Webth 21, where the god Weden asks the ettin Webthriðner about the origin of “earth and up-heaven”, and Wsp 3/3, where it is said, about the time before the World existed, that “earth and up-heaven” never existed.

3 paum ... perek ‘forest ... mountain’ | The same word-pair is found in Grmn 40, describing the creation of the world from Yimer’s body by the Gods.

O God almighty, thou didst work heaven and earth, and thou didst give men so many good things. Give me in thy mercy the right belief and good will, wisdom and prophecy, and power to withstand devils and to reproach degeneracy and to work thy will.

NOTE: This encyclopedia is both incomplete and inconsistently formatted. New entries will be added, and old ones be corrected and expanded in the future.

Cultural and religious terms and expressions (C)

- ape (ON api, OE apa, OS apo, OHG affo, PNWGmc. apō*) In the Old Norse the word seems to mean ‘fool, buffoon’, in the other old languages apparently ‘monkey’, though this sense should be a later development of the former; why would the early Germanic tribes have a word for an animal that they had never encountered?
- auht (ON étt, OE éht ‘possession, property’) The Nordic (paternal) clan or family line.
- begale (OHG bi-galan) To enchant, bewitch something or someone by singing a galder^C. Transitive of gale^C.
- bigh (ON baugr, OE béag, OHG boug) Armlets used as currency during the Migration Period. — The giving of rings and armlets in exchange for loyalty (holdness^C being the word used for a warrior’s loyalty towards his lord, and of a lord’s grace towards his servants) was common across all of Germanic Europe, as seen in the many poetic ruler-kennings of the type “breaker of rings” (e.g. béaga brytta ‘the breaker of bighs’ in Beow ll. 35, 352, 1487). An illustrative example of this is Hild 33–35. This is also connected with the oath-ring, and the famous ring-swords. TODO? reference some literature on this.
- bloot (ON blót, OE blót, OHG bluoz) A sacrifice or a sacrificial feast, one of the best attested Germanic pagan practices. The animals would be sacrificed by the host, cooked in large kettles and eaten communally. See also bloot-house^C.
- bloot-house (ON blót-hús, OHG bluoz-hús) A heathen temple. Glosses Latin fānum in OHG. See also harrow^C, hove^C, wigh^C.
- Doom (ON dómr, OE dóm) Commonly ‘judgement, verdict’ (whence Doomsday, ‘Judgement Day’), in the Norse and Anglo-Saxon poetry often specifically referring to one’s fame or good reputation (that is, how others will judge one’s character and deeds), especially after death. It is clear that this verdict was of utmost importance to the ancient Germanic people. The clearest examples are Higb 77 (see there): I know one that never dies: the Doom o’er each man dead. and Beow 1384–1389, where Beowulf consols king Rothgar after Grendle’s mother has slain his trusted advisor Asher (Æschere): Ne sorga, snotor guma! · Sélre bið ég-hwém, / þæt hé his fréond wrece, · þonne hé fela murne. / Úre égbwylc sceal · ende ge-bídan / worolde lifes; · wyrce sé þe móte / dómes ér déaþe; · þæt bið driht-guman / un-lifgendum · æfter sélest.
- ‘Grieve not, wise man! ’Tis better for each one / that he avenge his friend than that he mourn much. / Each one of us shall suffer the end / of worldly life—win he who might / Doom before death: that is for the warrior, / unliving, afterwards the best.’ Other illustrative examples in Beow include 884b–887a: [...] Sige-munde ge-sprong / æfter deað-dæge · dóm un-lýtel / syþðan wíges heard · wyrme á-cwealde

/ bordes byrde [...] ‘For Syemund^P sprang up / after his death-day an unlittle [= great] Doom, / since hard in conflict he defeated the Wyrms^C, / the hoard’s herder.’ and 953b–955a: [...] þú þé self hafast // dēdum ge-frēmed · þæt þín dóm lyfað // áwa tó aldre [...] ‘Thou hast for thyself by deeds accomplished that thy Doom lives for ever and ever.’

feather-hame (ON fjaðr-hamr, OE fēðer-hama, OS fēðar-, fēðer-hamo) A plumage which when donned by the wearer let him fly like, or become, a bird. One is owned by Frow and used by Lock to fly between the homes. In the Healend feather-hames are donned by angels who fly from heaven to earth. See also hame^C.

fee (ON fé, OE fēoh) Originally ‘cattle’, however also used in a broader sense to refer to one’s mobile wealth. For this cf. particularly High TODO.

fey (ON fēigr, OE fēge, OHG feigi ‘cowardly’) Being doomed or fated to die, with a sense of predestination and inevitability. Its earliest use is on the Rök stone: aft uamuþ stanta runar þar + n uarin faþi faþir aft faikiān sunu Apt Vámóð standa rúnar þár, en Varinn fāði, faðir aft fēigjan sonu ‘After Woemood (Vámóðr) stand these runes^C, but Warren (Varinn) painted, the father after the fey son.’ It was believed that one’s TODO. See PCRN HS II:35, p. 928 ff. (TODO) feyness (ON fēigð) The state of being fey^C.

five days (ON fimm dagar) The Old Scandinavian (and perhaps Germanic) week was originally five days long, the seven-day week being a later import, as seen by the names of the days, which are obviously calqued from the Latin (Dies Mercurii = Weden’s day, et.c.). According to the GolL there were six weeks in a month, and “five days” is used as a generic period of time in High 51 and 74; in st. 74 it is contrasted with month. Related to this is the legal term fiþb (ON fimmt, OSw. fēmt), a meeting or gathering set to be held at a five-day notice. See fimt in CV, Love et al. (2020) for further discussion.

galder (ON galdr, OE gealdor, OHG galdar) A magical song or incantation, probably synonymous with leed^C. Verbal noun formed to gale^C ‘to sing, chant’.

gale (ON gala, OE galan, OHG galan) To sing, chant, especially of magical songs; verbal root of galder^C ‘something sung, chanted’.

gand (ON gandr, Latin gandus) A witch’s familiar, a spirit sent out to do her bidding. See PCRN HS I:17, p. 361 and II:26, p. 656. TODO gid (ON goði, OE Gydda masc. given name) A heathen priest or master of ceremonies.

gidden (ON gyðja, OE gyden ‘goddess’) The womanly equivalent of gid^C.

good of meat (ON matar góðr) An old expression, appearing both in High 39 and several Viking Age Runic inscriptions, viz. Sm 39: mildan orða · ok matar góðan ‘mild of words and good of meat’, U 805: bónða góðan matar ‘a farmer good of meat’, U 703:

mandr matar góðr · auk máls risinn ‘a man good of meat and proud in speechTM;
cf. also U 739: hann var mildr matar · auk máls risinn ‘he was mild of meat and proud in speech’. — Antonyms are matar illr ‘evil of meat’ and meat-nothing^C.

guest (ON gestr, OE giest, OS gast, OHG gast, Got. gasts, PGmc. gastiz) The Old Germanic peoples placed great value on hospitality.

hame (ON hamr) A skin, shape. Individuals can through magic “shift hames” (ON skipta hǫmum), and leave their human hames behind, instead entering into the shapes of wolves, bears, birds. During this process the original hame would be sleeping in a vulnerable state, as described in WalsS ch. TODO-NUMBER: TODO-QUOTATION. See also feather-hame^C, town-riders^C, evening-riders^C.

harrow (ON hǫrgr, OE bearg, PNWGmc. harugar*) A cairn constructed for ritual purposes. Hdl 10 describes one: “A harrow^C he made for me, loaded with stones; now that stone-pile is become into glass. He reddened [it] in fresh blood of oxen; Oughter^P ever trusted on the Ossens^G.” See also wigh^C.

hold (ON hollr, OE hold, OS hold, OHG hold) ‘Favourable, loyal, gracious’, often of a ruler towards his subject (in the sense of ‘gracious, benevolent’) or vice-versa (in the sense of ‘loyal, devoted’). Mirroring these earthly relationships, it is often used to refer to divine grace, both of the Christian God—thus in the Ecclesiastical Laws of King Cnut ALIE I (p. 372): þam byþ witod-lice God hold, þe bið his bláforde rihtlice hold ‘Indeed God is hold towards him who is rightly hold to his lord’—but in the oldest Scandinavian material likewise of the Heathen gods. Thus Lock 4 (e.): holl rǫggin ‘hold Reins^G’, and Ord 10 (e.):

Svá hjalpi þér · hollar véttir,

‘So help thee hold wights^C; Frie^P and Frow^P, and more gods [...]’.

This word is common in old Scandinavian oath formulæ, e.g. in the elder redaction of the West-Geatish Law: Svá sé mér goð holl ‘So may the Gods(!) be hold towards me,’ in medieval Norwegian laws (NgL II[197,397]) and Grey-Goose (TODO: cite): Guð sé mér hollr ef ek satt segi, gramr ef ek lýg ‘God be hold towards me if I speak truly, wroth if I lie,’ in Grey-Goose (TODO) also: Sé guð hollr þeim er heldr griðum, en gramr þeim er grið rýfr ‘God be hold towards him who keeps the truce, but wroth against him who breaks the truce’. I refer to Löffler (1895) for further discussion on these formulæ.

holdness (ON hylli, OE hyldu, OHG huldi) Abstract noun formed to hold^C, meaning ‘favour, loyalty, grace,’ with the same semantics as the adjective.

Notably, this word appears three times in connection with the grace of gods in the poetry, namely in Grmn 43, where (according to my interpretation) the preparer of food at the blout is said to earn the “holdness of Woulder^P and of all the gods;” and Grmn 53 where the disgraced king Garfrith is said to have been bereft of the support gengi of Weden and all the Oneharriers, and of “Weden’s holdness” (Óðins hylli). “Weden’s holdness” is also mentioned in a stanza by Hallfred (edited as Hfr Lv 7 by Diana Whaley in SkP V), who laments that: “The whole race of man has wrought songs to win the holdness of Weden; I recall the fully rewarded works of our kinsmen/ancestors.”

From the semantics of this word the Germanic view on heavenly grace is clear: the Gods are hold towards those who do good works, which include swearing true oaths, faithfully observing truces, partaking in the blood, following rules of hospitality, and composing poetry—and gram^C ‘wroth’ towards those who do the opposite.

Home (ON heimr, OE hām, PNWGmc. haimar*) In the Norse often referring to a realm in the cosmology (Wsp 2: “I remember nine Homes”, Webth TODO: “From the runes of the Ettins^G and of all the gods I can speak truly, for I have come into each Home”). Thus Ettinham^L is the ‘Home/realm of the ettins’. When used alone the term simply means ‘the world (that we inhabit)’. See also nine Homes^L, Thrithham^L.

leat (ON blaut) In some saws explained as the blood drained from the offered animal; the verbal root is bljóta ‘to get by lot’ and this word certainly refers to the use of the blood for auguries.

leat-twigg (ON blaut-tēinn) A twig used to sprinkle the leat^C. The pattern of the blood would presumably be inspected for the augury; cf. Hym 1.

leed (ON ljóð, OE léod) A magical chant or incantation, as seen by High 153 synonymous with galder^C. See also gale^C, begale^C.

manwit (ON man-vit) Common sense and wits.

many-cunning (ON ffjöl-kunnigr) Skilled with sorcery or the dark arts.

meat-nothing (ON mat-niðingr) One who is a nothing^C with food, i.e. one who does not properly furnish his guest^C. See good of meat^C.

nithe (ON níð, OE nīþ, OHG nīd) Originally ‘hatred, enmity’. In the Norse the sense is something like ‘shame’ which was not just a social abstraction, but almost a tangible thing. So the curse ritual where the curser would “turn nithe” (snýja níð against his enemy to cause him great misfortune. A poet would “compose nithe” (yrkja níð) through singing slanderous verses, which likewise had a adverse effect on their subject. See also nothing^C.

nithing (ON niðingr, OE nīþing) One afflicted with nithe^C; a villain. In the Norse a sort of legal term; a nithing could not swear oaths or bear witness.

orlay (ON ørlog, OE orlæg) One’s predetermined fate, destiny, purpose as decreed by the Norns^G.

rest (ON rofst) The distance between two rest-stops, a geographical mile (about 1850 metres). See CV: rofst.

- [illegible]

Guther could not be apprehended or punished for his crime while in it. — In OE the word means ‘pagan idol’. It is not immediately clear which meaning is the original one, but in the present edition the Norse sense has been adopted, since the Anglo-Saxon sources are all of a Christian nature. The Beow name Wighstone (Wīh- or Wēohstān) in any case suggests it is the Norse meaning, since ‘idol-stone’ makes little sense.

wode (ON ōðr, OE wód, PNWGmc. wódur*) Heener^P’s gift to men, though the name may suggest it be from Weden^P. The word has several related meanings: ‘mind, (poetic) inspiration, rage’. See also Woderear^P.

wyrm (ON ormr, OE wyrm, PNWGmc. wurmīr*) A dragon, serpent. The distinction between “wyrm” and “worm; snake” is purely editorial and not made in the original languages.

yin- (ON ginn-) A rare augmentative prefix. TODO.

yin-holy (ON ginn-heilagr) High holy, sacrosanct. Used of the Gods in the formula ginn-heilög goð ‘yin-holy Gods’.

Persons and objects (P)

Attle (Attila, ON Atli, OE Ætla, MHG. Etzel, PNWGmc. Attilō*) The ruler of the Huns^G (historically from 434–453). Husband of Guthrun^P, and with her father of Earp and Oatle^P. and murderer of I HHb 54, SiL 11, I Gr 23, ShS 28, 29, 33, 37, 54, 56, 57, II Gr 26, 38, 45, III Gr 1, 9, BnOr 0, OdW A, 2, 22, 23, 25, 26, 30, 31, AtD 0, AtL 1, 3, 15, 17, 18, 27, 31, 32, 34, 36, 37, 38, 41, 43, B, AtS 2, 4, 21, 22, 44, 52, 60, 64, 71, 73, 77, 80, 86, 87, 97, 98, 108, 113, 117, FG 0, GrB 12, Ham 6.

Balder (ON Baldr, OE Bældæg (not directly cognate), OHG Balter, PWGmc. Baldrar*) The beautiful son of Weden^P, slayed by his brother Hath^P, avenged by his other brother Wonne^P. Husband of Nan^P.

Earp and Oatle (ON Erpr ok Eitill) The sons of Attle^P and Guthrun^P.

Earth (ON ǣrð, OE eorþe, OHG erda, PNWGmc. erþu*, PGmc. erþō*) The personified Earth. By Weden^P the mother of Thunder^P.

Fathomer (ON Fáfnir) The wyrm^C slain by Siward^P, who was originally a man. Son of Rethmar^P, brother of Otter^P and Rein^P.

Fimblethyle (ON Fimbulþylr) The ‘ultimate thyle^C’ or sage; name for Weden^P.

Free (ON Frēyr, OE frēa ‘lord’, PNWGmc. Frawjar*) Son of Nearth^P, brother of Frow^P. See also Ing^P.

- Frie (ON Frigg, OE Frige*, OHG Frija, PNWGmc. Friju*) Wife of Woden^P, mother of Balder^P. Related to Full^P, who is either her sister (Second Merseburg Charm, though this may be metaphorical, as in Hdl 1) or her maid-servant (the Norse sources).
- Frow (ON Frøya) Cat-goddess, daughter of Nearth^P, sister of Free^P, wife of Wode^P. Promised to the Ettin. Possibly = Easter?
- Full (ON Fulla, OHG Folla) Maid-servant (or sister?) of Frie^P; see there.
- Guth (ON Gunnarr, MHG Gunther) Brother of Hain^P.
- Guthrun (ON Guðrún) Daughter of king Yivick^P, sister of Guth^P and Hain^P. The wife of Attle^P.
- Hain [Hain 1] (ON Hogni, OE Haguna, Hagena, OHG Hagano, Ger. Hagen, PNWGmc. Hagunô*) A Nivling^G and Yivicking^G, son of king Yivick^P, brother of Guth^P and Guthrun^P. In Atl he defeats seven warriors before being captured by Attle^P, who has his heart cut out at the request of Guth^P.
- Hain 2 [2] A petty king of East Geatland^L, contemporary with Granmer^P, the king of Southmanland^L and Ingeld Illred, the Ingling^G king of Upland^L.
- Hath (ON Hǫðr) The blind son of Woden^P, the slayer of his brother Balder^P.
- Heener (ON Hónir, PNWGmc. Hónijar ‘the little swan(?)’) An obscure god. Rydberg (1886)[552] has convincingly argued that he is connected with the stork, connecting his name with the Greek κύκνος ‘swan’ and Sanskrit śakuna ‘bird of omen’, and noting that his epithets langi fótr ‘long foot’ and aurkonungr ‘mud-king’ (both found in Scold 22) accurately describe the stork. He gives wode^C TODO.
- Hell (ON Hell) Owneress of Hell^L.
- Hindle (ON Hyndla) A witch awoken by Frow^P in Hdl.
- Homedall (ON Hœimdallr, OE Hámdall*) The Watchman of the gods, whitest of the Eese^G.
- Hym (ON Hymir) Tew^P’s father according to Hym.
- Ing (ON Yngvi, OE Ing) Probably an older name of Free^P. The legendary ancestor of the Ingling^G. Cf. the Old English Rune Poem.
- Loth (ON Lóðurr, OS Logapōre, PNWGmc. Logaporjar* ‘Flame-darer(?)’) Gives three gifts to man. The Old Saxon attestation is a bit uncertain.
- Millner (ON Mjöllnir, OE Meldne*, PNWGmc. Meldunjar*) The hammer owned by Thunder^C.
- Moon (ON Máni) The personified moon. In Webth 23 the son of Mundlefare^P and brother of Sun^P.
- For ritual invocations of the Moon see Note to High TODO (hēiptum kveða).

- Mundlefare (ON Mundilfari) The father of Sun^P and Moon^P (Webth 23).
- Nearth (ON Njǫrðr) One of the Waneg. Father of Free^P and Frow^P.
- Nithad (ON Niðuðr, OE Níþhad, PNWGmc. Níþa-baduz*) The king that imprisoned Wayland^P, father of Beadchild^P and two unnamed sons (Wayl, Dear).
- Oughter (ON Óttarr, OE Óththere, PNWGmc. Óhta-harjar*) Legendary Swedish king.
- Rotholf (ON Hrólfr kraki, OE Hrópulf, PNWGmc. Hrópi-wulfar*) A king of the Shieldings^G (see family tree). As foreshadowed in Beow 1017–9, 1180–90, he betrays the sons of Rothgar^P, his cousins Rethrich and Rothmund^P, in order to take the throne for himself. In the later Icelandic tradition this has been forgotten, and he is consistently portrayed as a heroic king.
- Rothgar (ON Hróarr, OE Hróþgár, PNWGmc. Hróþi-gairar*) A king of the Shieldings^G (see family tree), one of the main characters in Beow.
- Shede (ON Skadi, OE Scede(?), PGmc. Skadi*) A female figure, possibly the namesake of Shedeny^L and the Shedelands^L, in which case she was in an early period closely associated with, and perhaps thought to guard, the Scandinavian (or properly Scandinavian, see Shedeny) peninsula. In the Norse tradition the daughter of Thedse^P, and later wife of Nearth^P. Their marriage is the subject of Yilv which preserves.
- Shield (ON Skjǫldr, OE Scyld, PNWGmc. Skelduz*) Legendary Danish king, founder of the Shieldings^G.
- Syemund (ON Sig-mundr, OE Sige-mund, MHG. Sieg-mund, PNWGmc. Sigi-mundur*) In the Norse tradition the son of Walsing^C and father of Siward^P. In Beow it is instead Syemund himself who slays an unnamed wyrm. Connected with his nephew Sinfittle^P.
- Sithguth (OHG Sinthgunt, PNWGmc. Sinþa-gunþir*(?)) Only known from Mers II as the sister of Sun^P.
- Siward (ON Sigurðr) A hero of the Walsings^G, slayer of the wyrm^C Fathomer^P.
- Sun (ON Sól, OHG Sunna) The personified Sun, who in the Germanic mythology is a woman. In Webth 22 the daughter of Mundlefare^P and sister of Moon^P. In Mers II the sister of Sithguth^P.
- Thrim (ON Þrymr) Ettin who steals Thunder's hammer in Thrim and is later killed.
- Thunder (ON Þórr, OE Þunor, OHG Donar, PNWGmc. Þonarar*) Son of Weden^P and Earth^P. Friend of men, guarding of Middenyard.
- Tew (ON Týr, OE Tiw) Son of Hymer^P. One-handed god. The name is not identical to Sanskrit Dyāus, Greek Zeus, Latin Iuppiter.
- Webthrithner (ON Vafþrúðnir) Ettin defeated by Weden in the wisdom contest in Webth.

- Weden (rhymes with leaden; ON Óðinn, OE Wóden, Wéden, OHG Wuotan, PNWGmc. Wóðanar* ‘Lord of wode^C (poetry, intelligence)’) Chief of the Eese^G, God of Wisdom, Galder, Poetry, War. Husband of Frie^P, and by her father of Balder^P. Father of Thunder^P by Earth^P. Brother of Heener^P and Lothar^P or Will^P and Wigh^P.
- Wider (ON Víð-arr, OE Wīd-here*, PNWGmc. Wīda-barjar*) Son of Weden^P, who avenges him at the Rakes of the Reins^L.
- Wigh (ON Véi, PNWGmc. Wīhā* ‘hallow, (heathen) priest’) Brother of Weden^P and Will^P.
- Will (ON Vili, PNWGmc. Wīljā*) Brother of Weden^P and Wigh^P.
- Wode (ON Óðr, OE Wód) Obscure husband of Frow^P. His name looks to be the same word as wode^C.
- Wonnell (ON Váli, OE Wonela*, PNWGmc. Wanilô* ‘the little Wane^G?’) Son of Weden^P, who just one night old avenges his brother Balder^P through slaying Hath^P, his half-brother.
- Woulder (ON Ullr, Wuldor*, PNWGmc. Wulþuz*) A rather obscure god. He is mentioned in connection with oath-rings (TODO) and the setting of ritual fires (Grmn TODO). These obscure references are likely related to the interesting finds at Lilla Ullevi (‘the small wigh^C of Woulder’) in Upland, Sweden, consisting of several dozen fire striker-shaped iron amulet rings dating to 660–780 (for a detailed description see (af Edholm, 2009)).
- Yimer (ON Ymir, OE Yime*) The primeval ancestor of the Ettins^G, probably equivalent to Earyelmer^P. The first Gods slew Yimer and arranged the world out of his corpse.
- Yivick (ON Gjúki, OE Gifca, OHG Gibicho, MHG. Gibeche) King of the Burgends^G (historically from late 300s–407) of the Nifling dynasty, ancestor of the Yivickings^G. Father of Guthrun^P, Guthar^P and Hain^P.

Groups and tribes (G)

TODO: Map of rough tribal areas. Genealogies.

- All Gods (ON ǥll goð) Occurs in ritual or ritual-adjacent use (see note to Grmn 43, Sdr 2–3, Lock 11), strongly suggesting a conception of Godly Oneness (Divine Unity). Compare the Thing of the Gods^G.
- Danes (ON danir, OE dene, PNWGmc. daníR*) A tribe in eastern modern-day Denmark and southern Sweden. They probably originated in Scania in southern Sweden, before moving westwards into the Danish isles and eventually Jutland, driving out the Earls^G and Jutes^G. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Dwarfs (ON dvergar, OE dweorgas, OHG twerca, PNWGmc. dwegór*) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings, often referred to as living in rocks and mountains. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO

- Eese (rhyming with geese; ON ésir, OE ése, PNWGmc. ansiwir*; sg. os, ON áss, OE ós, PNWGmc. ansur*) Either a subgroup of Gods or all the Gods. See also Gods^G, Tews^G, Wanes^G, Reins^G. Noted members: Weden^P, Thunder^P, Frie^P, Hath^P and Balder^P Attestations: TODO
- Elves (ON alfar, OE ieľe, PNWGmc. alβír*) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings. Possibly ancestral spirits? Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Ettins (ON jötnar, OE eotenas, PNWGmc. etunór*) The fundamental enemies of the Gods, the agents of chaos and disorder. See Rises^G, Thurses^G. Noted members: Hymer^P, Thrim^P, Webthrithner^P, Yimer^P Attestations: TODO
- Geats (ON gautar, OE géatas, PNWGmc. gautór* from geut-* ‘to pour’, perhaps ‘the libators’) A tribe in what is today southern-central Sweden. See also Geatland^L, Swedes^G. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- yin-Reins (ON ginn-ręgin) yin-^C + Reins^G. The sacrosanct, highest divine powers.
- Gods (ON gođ, OE godu, OHG gota, PNWGmc. godu*) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Huns (ON búnir, OE Húne, OHG Húni, Hunni, PNWGmc. búnír*) An invading Asiatic tribe in the Migration Period. In the legendary material their cultural and ethnic foreignness is not seen. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Inglings (ON ynęlingar, PNWGmc. ingwalingór* ‘the descendants of Ing^P’) Difference between this term and Shelvings^G is a bit unclear. They seem to be used synonymously in the Norse sources, whereas the English only use the later.
- Nears (ON níarar -njárar) A Swedish tribe, only mentioned in Wayl, where it is ruled by king Nithad^P. The name and location may allow us to connect them with the Swedish province of Närke, cf. Old Swedish Nærikjar ‘inhabitants of Närke’, Nærisker ‘belonging to Närke; Nearish’. The Old Swedish stem nær- (with unclear vowel length, though it is probably long) would be a reduced form of níar-, njár-.
- Norns (ON nornir) Supernatural women responsible for the fates (orlay^Cs) of men. Probably synonymous with Dises^G, Mothers^G.
- Ossens (ON ósynjur) The wives of the Eese^G, see there.
- Oncharriers (ON ęin-ęerjar, OE án-ęergas*) Weden’s chosen warriors, probably corresponding to the Vedic Maruts. The Ownharriers have some agency (Grmn TODO) and were probably also invoked in rituals. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Reins (ON roęn, ęgin) The heavenly powers. Judging from Webth TODO the term may be more closely associated with the Wanes^G than the Eese^G.
- Saxons (ON saxar, OE Seaxan, Seaxe) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO

- Shieldings (ON skjoldungar, OE Scyldingas, PNWGmc. skeldungóR*) The descendants of Shield^P; the legendary Danish^G royal dynasty. With Harward^P's death after his slaying of Rotholf^P their rule ended. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Shelvings (ON skilfingar, OE scilfingas, PNWGmc. skilþingóR*) The descendants of Shelf^P; the legendary Swedish^G royal dynasty. The exact difference between the terms Shelvings and Ingling^G is unclear, but the first may have referred to the old royal family in Sweden, while the latter to the Norwegian branch which claimed descent from the former. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: Hdl 15, 20
- Swedes (ON sviár, OE swéon, PNWGmc. swibanír*) The tribe around the Mälar valley in eastern Sweden. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Thurses (sg. Thurse; ON þurs, OE þyrs, OS thuris, OHG duris, PNWGmc. þurisar*) Possibly a poetic synonym for Ettins^G. See also Rime-Thurses^G. Noted members: TODO Attestations: Wal 8, Shr 31, 35, 36, Hyme 17, Thr 5, 10, 21, 24, 29, 30, Alw 2, I HHb 40, HHw 27.
- Tews (ON tívar, PNWGmc. tíwóR*) A poetic synonym for Gods^G. Attestations: TODO
- Wanes (ON vanir, OE wan-?) A subgroup or tribe of the gods, associated with fertility, harvests and fishing. Noted members: Nearth^P, Ing^P, Frow^P Attestations: TODO
- Yivickings (ON gjúkungar) The descendants of Yivick^P, including Guthur^P, Guthrun^P and Hain^P. Attestations: TODO

Places and events (L)

- Eastern Way (ON Austr-vegr) In the mythology the eastern lands of the Ettins^G, to which Thunder^P goes to fight the Ettins and protect the realms of Gods and men. Probably the same as Ettinham^L. In Scandinavian (especially Swedish) runic inscriptions this word refers to Eastern Europe and Asia.
- Ettinham (ON Jǫtun-heimr, Jǫtna-heimar) The 'Ettin^G-Home^C' or 'home of the Ettins'; the eastern realm of chaotic and inhospitable beings. See also Eastern Way^L, Outyards^L.
- Fimble-winter (ON fimbulvetr) The great winter, which kills all humans apart from Life and Lifethrasher^P.
- Geatland (ON Gaut-land, Gauta-land) The land of the Geats^G.
- Hell (ON hēl, PNWGmc. halju*, Got. halja) The Underworld, personified as and formally identical to Hell^P. After the arrival of Christianity the word came to refer to the Christian hell-fire (= Gehenna), which is the case in all attested languages apart from the Old Norse. See also Nivelhell^L.
- Middenyard (ON Mið-garðr, OE Middan-geard, OS Middil-gard, OHG Mittil-gart, Got. midjun-gards) The 'Middle Enclosure'; the realm of men. See also Osyard^L, Outyards^L.

- Nivelhell (ON nífl-hell) ‘Mist-Hell’. From the poetic evidence it seems like it may originally have been a synonym for Hell^L.
- Osyard (ON Ós-garðr) The ‘Enclosure of the Eese’^G; the heavenly realm. See also Middenyard^L, Outyards^L.
- Outyards (ON Út-garðar) Not Eddic. The ‘Outer Enclosures’, described in Yilv. See also Ettinham^L, Middenyard^L, Osyard^L.
- Rakes of the Reins (ON ragna røk) The ‘ultimate events of the Reins’^G, euphemism for the destruction of the world.
- Rakes of the Tews (ON tíva røk) See Rakes of the Reins^L.
- Thing of the Gods (ON þing goða) The Divine Council or Assembly, where the Gods convene and make decisions; a conception well known from Near Eastern literature. The Thing is only attended by the male Gods (Eese^G, Bdr 1, Thrim 14); it is held every day (Grmn TODO). According to Snorre twelve Gods apart from Weden were present at the Thing (viz. Thunder, Nearth, Free, Tew, Homedall, Bray, Wither, Wonnel, Woulder, Heener, Forset, Lock); this certainly corresponds to the Scandinavian and English jury of twelve men. Occurrences: Wsp 6, 9, etc, Hym TODO.
- Thrithham (ON Þrúð-heimr) Thunder^P’s home^C. See thrith^C.
- Up-heaven (ON upp-himinn, OE up-heofon, OS upp-himil, OHG uf-himil) Highest Heaven; used in Earth and Up-heaven^F.
- Walhall (ON Valhöll, OE Wælheall) The Hall of the Slain owned by Weden^P and inhabited by the Oneharriers^G.

Poetic formulæ (F)

All formulæ are given in English translation, their attested forms and a Proto-Germanic rendition. For those consisting of two words bound together by a conjunction, & is written in its place.

- Earth and Up-heaven (ON jörð & upphiminn, OE eorþe & upheofon, PGmc. erþō & uphīminaz*) An ancient poetic merism meaning “the world”; used especially about the creation and destruction of the world, and in prayers. ON: Ribe Galder, Wsp 3, Webth 20, Thrim 2, Ord 17; OE: Acreboot; OHG: Wessobrunner Hymn
- Eese and Elves (ON ésir & alfar, OE ése & ielfe, PNWGmc. alþír & ansiwīr*) A merism; both heavenly and earthly spiritual beings. Notably the two words always occur in this order (never ‘Elves and Eese’), even in OE.
- words and works (ON orð & verk, OE word & weorc, PGmc. wurdó & werkó*) Beow 289, 1100, 1833
