Notes to English translation

Point about literal translation for use by scholars of comparative mythology The "guiding star" of this translation effort has been literality and consistency. All previous translations (to my knowledge) have such issues as: rendering identically repeated phrases differently at various places; covering up or obscuring technical and cultural terminology; simplifying kennings and other expressions—and this often without notes, to a point where the original meaning is, at times, unrecognizable. While I wholly encourage all readers of sufficient interest to study Old Norse (and other ancient Germanic languages!), perhaps even using this edition as a tool, I also realize that this is a demanding ask which not all interested students and scholars of comparative mythology, anthropology, literature, religion and other fields will be able to fulfill. I therefore want these groups to be able to have a text that is as close to the original as possible, at the very least when it regards sense and expression.

Anglish proper nouns

One of the most idiosyncratic parts of this edition will be its handling of proper nouns. I have opted to render all cultural and religious terms, names of places, heroes, gods, and other entities by their English cognates (thus Thunder for Old Norse Pórr) and where such do not exist, their philologically expected English (Anglish) forms (e.g. wallow for Old Norse volva). One reason for this is ideological. I believe that these myths and poems are a common Germanic or Northern European heritage, and should be treated as such. The English once knew gods such as Weden and Thunder, and called them by names naturally evolved in their language. So too did the Germans and Scandinavians, of course, and I would hope that any translators into those languages would follow this spirit and render the names in their natural forms there as well.¹ Another is philological. Forms like Odin and Thor are, while now commonly accepted, abberant. They do not even represent the Old Norse pronunciation as accurate as would be possible (for instance, Odin would be better anglicized as Othin), and many are difficult for English speakers to pronounce.

Notes to Old Norse edition

My goal with the critical editing of the texts has been to produce something as close to the original manuscripts as possible, without excessive emendation to the preserved recension(s). There are texts in three (TODO) languages in this edition, these being Old Norse, Old English and Old High German. Old Norse texts have been normalized according to roughly the same orthography as Finnur Jónsson (1932). On the other hand the Old High German and Old English texts have only been lightly normalized, correcting obvious errors and marking vowel length with acute accents. For further information see below.

Normalization of Old Norse

The orthography is inspired by Finnur Jónsson (1932) in that it strives for a more archaic form than the manuscripts, one that accords with the date at which the poetry may been composed. The standard is more similar to that of the First Grammatical Treatise (see (First Grammarian, 1950)) than the standard Old Icelandic orthography seen in most editions. Thus we for consistency make use of δ and δ and δ archaer than the traditional δ and δ , to represent the result of i-umlaut on Proto-Norse δ and δ . Superfluous and hypermetrical pronouns (usually δ hann, δ hann, δ have in many places been removed. When metrically beneficient δ and δ (particle) 'which, that, where, when', δ (3rd sg. pres. ind. of δ have been contracted to δ and δ .

Manuscripts

There are two surviving ancient manuscripts which contain full Eddic poems.

The first and most important is GKS 2365 4to, here R. It dates to the 1270s and has 45 surviving leaves, containing TODO poems. Of these 10 are mythological, and the rest heroic, dealing with legends mostly of the Migration Period. Notably, following fol. 32, there is a large gap of missing pages. This occurs in the heroic section, specifically cutting off Sighdrive. It is unclear how many leaves and poems went missing. R is not just a compilation of poems, it shows editorial input as well. Several of the mythological poems are separated by short prose sections, which tie them together into a loose frame narrative, though it is clear from their style and composition that they are originally separate works. When it comes to the heroic poems long prose sections occur both within and between them, creating a saw^C-like narrative where the prose in many cases holds up the poetry, rather than the reverse. For further literature see TODO.

The second manuscript is AM 748 I a 4to, here A. It dates to the 1300s and has just 6 leaves. A, as we have it, contains only mythological poems, and in a different order from R; it has no frame narrative. On the first two leaves are contained Hoarbeard (which lacks its beginning), Dreams and Shirner (lacking its ending). After this some number of leaves have gone missing, but the other four leaves follow eachother. On them we find Webthrithner (lacking its beginning), Grimner Hymer and the prose introduction of Wayland. A is the only medieval manuscript attesting Dreams, and further its other poems are not copied from R, but rather derive from a shared ancestor. This fact makes it very valuable for textual criticism. For further literature see TODO.

Some Eddic poems survive only in younger paper manuscripts. These being: TODO. While I have not consulted the paper mss. for poems attested in medieval mss., I have had to rely on them for these poems. Their exclusive survival there does not necessarily prove them works of late antiquarians; had we not been fortunate enough to have Dreams in A, it would have been counted among them, yet we now know that it is truly ancient. It is not an impossibility that other poems now only found in paper mss. would have survived in now lost medieval mss., perhaps even in the lost pages of R or A.

Finally several Eddic poems are quoted in Yilfer, these being (TODO): WSpae, Webthrith-ner, Grimner. It also contains a few fragments, which have also been edited. For Yilfer I have relied on the following four main mss.:

- 1. The Codex Regius of the Prose Edda S (GKS 2367 4to; 1300-1350)
- 2. The Codex Trajectinus T (Traj 1374; a c. 1595 paper copy of a ms. closely related to S.)
- 3. The Codex Wormianus W (AM 242 fol.; 1340-70)
- 4. The Codex Upsaliensis U (DG 11; 1300–25)

For sake of brevity I refer to these four collectively as G, which is thus equivalent to STWU. I refer to Haukur Porgeirsson (2017) for discussion on their internal stemmatics and origins.

West Germanic poetry

As all West Germanic poems edited here (TODO: Will we be editing other poems than Hildebrandslied?) survive only in one copy, the specific details are discussed in their accompanying introductions.

The Spae^C of the Wallow^C is the most comprehensive mythological text surviving from Heathen times. It takes the form of the monologue of a wallow, summoned by Weden in order to relate mythological knowledge. In this it fits closely with Webthrithner, Grimner, Sighdrive and Allwise, but differs from them in several ways: there is no format of a dialogue (this it shares with Grimner) or competition; the meter is in Fornwordslaw; and it gives an overview of the mythological chronology in an otherwise unparalleled way.

Events are related in a very allusive fashion, and not all of them are clear. There are also some likely gaps, possibly the result of misplaced verses. The poem begins with a bid for silence (v. 1), and the wallow reckoning her earliest memories (v. 2). She then recounts the ordering of the cosmos by the gods (vv. 3–6) and the earliest golden age (vv. 7–8), which however is interrupted by the intrusion of three unidentified ettin maidens (v. 8, and see note there). After this follow two verses about the shaping of the dwarfs (9–10), and then several independent dwarf-tallies (vv. 11–15), which are undoubtedly later inserts. We then return to the gods, specifically the creation of man (vv. 16–17). Judging from the end of verse 8 and the beginning of verse 16, it seems likely that these various dwarf-related verses have taken the place of some other verse. After this we get a description of the great tree Ugdrassle (v. 18), and the three norns living under it (v. 19).

This is where our two full recensions diverge. We have here followed the order of \mathbf{R} , but whether it is the original is hard to say. In \mathbf{R} the wallow recounts the earliest war in the world

The poem is attested in full in two independent recensions. The first is R (GKS 2365 4to; 1270s), where it is the first poem, found on folios 1r–3r. Second is Hawksbook, H (AM 544 4to; 1300–75), where it is found at 20r–21r in the middle of a large collection of saws and Catholics works. Many verses are also cited in Yilfer, which here has the general siglum G—to avoid confusion, it is only used when all employed witness mss. agree. See further the General Introduction.

Order of verses by manuscript, compared to this edition. As most verses in G are quoted on their own, and have little relation to the original order, these are simply marked with plus signs. When verses are quoted in a series, they are preceded by an alphabetically incrementing letter denoting which series they belong to. When there is a major difference in a ms. relative to the ed., such as in v. 10 where G omits the first two lines, it is then marked with a star. The verses beginning with $P\dot{a}$ gingu regin ρll ... are represented by the following sentence.

^aCf. Righ, wherein Righ, identified by the prose as Homedall, sires three castes of men (namely earls, churls and thralls). — męiri ok minni "greater and lesser" may be understood in two ways. It either modifies "holy kindreds", in which case it could be equivalent to a phrase like "Ease and Elves^G" (i.e. both earthly and heavenly supernatural beings; see Index for occurences.), or "the sons of Homedall", in which case it refers to all social classes. In any case she is asking all intelligent beings that may be present for silence; the expression is a merism, see West (2007)[99-100].

^bCf. Webthrithner 34, 35 with very similar phrasing. The whole introductory formula is positively Indo-European, see West (2007)[63,92-93,312].

^aAccording to Grimner TODO and Webthrithner TODO crags were made out of Yimer's legs, and according to Yilfer TODO the dwarfs first originated as maggots in Yimer's rotting corpse. Since dwarfs were considered to dwell in rocks this is not strange. If one reads Blown instead of blue-black, then following Gurevich (Skp 2017, p. 693) one may see a kenning "the legs of Blown <dwarfs [STONE]", but if there is a being named Blown here, then that should be Yimer, although such name is never attested for him. More difficult to explain is the creation of dwarfs out of Yimer's blood (which is the sea), since dwarfs are not otherwise known to dwell in water.

There was Moodsowner become the worthiest of all dwarfs, but Dorn [was] second. They made man-likenesses many; dwarfs out of the earth, as Dorn said.

Two lists of dwarfs. That both belonged to the original poem is impossible, since several names (Oakenshield, Great-grandfather) appear in both. The three following verses seem to belong together, since there is no repetition of names. From the last line of the middle one, it seems that it should have been placed at the end of the group.

^{3–4} þeir ... sagði "They ... said."] There are two conflicting forms of the verse. Either the dwarfs were created on their own; this is supported by the prose of Yilfer (see note to last v.) and by the form of its verse. On the other hand, both R and H have the "worthiest" dwarfs Moodsowner and Dorn shaping "man-likenesses" out of soil. I have gone with the latter reading, but both should be considered.

"Uncountable winters before the earth would be created, then Bearyelmer was born. That I first remember, when the learned ettin on the tree-trunk was laid.a" a'The reference here is obscure. According to the prose of Yilfer after the sons of Byre^P (that is, Weden^P, Will^P and Wigh^P) slew Yimer, so much blood flew from his wounds that all the race of Ettins were drowned, save for Bearyelmer and his family, who survived by getting up on his $li\delta r$. In regular prose, $li\delta r$ usually means 'trumpet', but it can also refer to a hollow tree-trunk. Considering the transitive nature of Bearyelmer being laid (of lagi\u00f3r) on it, it could rather be interpreted as describing a boat burial, in which case the first thing Webthrithner remembers would be Bearyelmer's funeral.

1-4 Ørófi ... lagiðr] The whole verse is quoted in Yilfer.

1 manngi] manni RA is impossible; a nominative is needed

^aWebthrithner realizes that he was bound to die (feigr 'fey', a word with strong fatalistic connotations) from the moment he proposed the wager (v. 19), as no being can outwit Weden.

^bThe same word-wisdom Weden in v. 5 set out to try.

cverr literally means 'husband, man,' but here surely in the broader sense of '(male) being'. For other instances of gods being called men, see TODO.

^aWat mean...

^aA sarcastic statement, the sense being: "Your renown, Weden, will not save you."

^bCf. wording of Webthrithner TODO: bá's rjúfask regin 'when the Reins^G are broken'.

The Speeches of the High One is the second poem of R, which is also the only ancient manuscript in which it is attested. Several verses are however cited in other places, such as Eyv Hák (TODO: formatting) 21 and FbrS TODO.

The 'poem' as it currently comes down to us does not at all seem like a single work. It combines the traditional proverbial collection with Weden's love adventures, ritual verses, and gnomic poetry most closely resembling the runic verses of Sighdrive, only unified by their speaker; Weden.

^aThe power of this succinct merism may be less clear to the modern reader. In Germanic Iron Age society a man's wealth was reckoned by how many heads of cattle (for which compare particularly English chattel 'tangible, movable property' and the etymology of capital) he owned, and his social power by the number of able male relatives ready to side with him in conflict. The meaning is thus: all your power will pass away, and so too must you. — For poetic analogues, see West (2007, pp. 99 ff.).

Considering the location, it seems almost certain that the giver of this advice was Weden^P. The receiver of the advice, Loddfathomer^P (see Index for etymologies), is otherwise unknown.

Of Woden's taking of the runes. It is clear that these verses have very little to do with the rest of the poem, but instead are separate. It is for this reason that they are labelled as Rúnatals þáttr (The strand of the Runecount) in younger Eddic paper manuscripts. Many give an archaic, pagan impression. It is as if they were drawn from the lips of an Odinic priest.

^aIt has been noted (FJ) that this verse fits better in the next section of the poem. It is awkwardly placed here, since it mentions $lj\delta\delta$ '(magical) songs, incantations', rather than runes.

^aEach good word and deed was followed by another.

^aA symmetric structure would be attained if the first four verbs refer to runes^C—carving, interpreting, painting (with blood?), and divining—while the latter four refer to sacrifice—praying, sacrificing, sending (the sacrifice or the prayer; making sure the gods receive it), and slaying the victim. See further relevant Index entries. The meter of the v. is unusual, but beras notable resemblance to Vg 216 (the Högstena galder). TODO: Elaborate.

^{4 [...]} Last line wo. doubt missing here; the meter and sense require it.

^aIdentical wording (biðja 'to bid; to pray' : blóta 'to bloot; to sacrifice'; senda 'to send' : sóa 'to soo; to slay') reveals this v.'s relation with the previous one. The sense seems to be that it is better not to sacrifice at all than to sacrifice in excess, since even a small sacrifice will be rewarded. An unusual piece of practical wisdom.

Now are the speeches of the High One sung, in the hall of the High One, of great need for the sons of men, of harm for the sons of ettins! Hail he who sang, hail he who knows! May he benefit who took, hail they who heeded!

³ jotna] ýta corrected in margin R

The Speeches of Grimner are preserved whole in both R and A.

The structure of the poem is mostly clear; the first three verses set the stage, repeating some of what we got in the prose. It is certain that Weden is the speaker. After this various lore is touched on, not always clearly. In this the poem aligns closely with ones such as Webthrithner Sighdrive and Allwise.

First are listed the halls of the gods (4–17), though the numbering does not seem to agree with the count of locations mentioned. Then the conditions and surroundings of Weden's animals and hall are elaborated on (18–23). Mentioned are the preparation of food (18), his wolves (19) and ravens (20), the river through which dead men have to wade (21), the gate through which they have to pass (22), the count of doors in the hall (23) and the two animals who gnaw on the branches of the tree (25–26). We then have a long list of rivers (28–30) and horses ridden by the gods (31). Then is told of the conditions and animals of Ugdrassle (32–36).

Thereafter follow several discordant verses. A list of Walkirries (37), the progression of the sun and moon (38–40), the first sacrifice and creation of the world from Yimer's body (41–42), the significance of the bloot^C (43), the creation of the ship Shidebladner (44) and finally a list of the noblest of several categories of things and groups (45).

After all of this Weden utters an unclear verse invoking the gods (46), before listing many of his names and the circumstances in which they were used (47–50). He then turns to Garfrith, disappointed by the inhospitality and poor conduct of his former protégé, and predicts his imminent death (51–53). He finally reveals himself by his true name, daring Garfrith to face him (53). After this he repeats several of his names (54), and the poem ends.

In the final prose section we are told that Garfrith tripped and fell on his sword, after which his son Eyner ruled for a long time.

Frá sonum Hrauðungs konungs

From the sons of king Reeding

BPG BPA Hrauðungr konungr átti tvá sonu. Hét annarr Agnarr, enn annarr Geirrøðr. BPA Agnarr var tíu vetra enn Geirrøðr átta vetra. Þeir reru tveir á báti með dorgar sínar at smáfiski. BPA Vindr rak þá í haf út. Í náttmyrkri brutu þeir við land ok gingu upp; fundu kotbónda einn. BPA Þar vóru þeir um vetrinn. Kerling fostraði Agnar enn karl Geirrøð. BPA At vári fekk karl þeim skip. Enn er þau kerling leiddu þá til strandar, þá mælti karl einmæli við Geirrøð. BPA Þeir fengu byr ok kvómu til stoðva foður síns. Geirrøðr var fram í skipi. BPA Hann hljóp upp á land enn hratt út skipinu, ok mælti: "Far þú þar er smyl hafi þik." BPA Skipit rak út. Enn Geirrøðr gekk út til bójar; hánum var vel fagnat; þá var faðir hans andaðr. BPA Var þá Geirrøðr til konungs tekinn, ok varð maðr ágætr.

BPB King Reeding owned two sons. One was called Eyner, and the other Garfrith. BPB Eyner was ten winters old, and Garfrith eight winters. The two were rowing in a boat with their trolling-lines for small fishing. BPB Wind then drove them out into the sea. In the darkness of night they crashed into land and walked up; they found a single cottage-farmer. BPB There they were about the winter. The wife fostered Eyner, but the husband Garfrith.

BPB At spring the man gave them ships, but when they and the farmer's wife brought them to the shore, the husband spoke privately with Garfrith. BPB They got a good gust, and came to their father's harbour. Garfrith was in the front of the ship. BPB He leapt up onto land and pushed out the ship, and spoke: "Go thou where the smil^G may have thee." BPB The ship drove out. But Garfrith walked towards the farm; he was welcomed well; his father was by then ended. BPB Then was Garfrith taken as king, and became an excellent man. EPG

BPG BPA Óðinn ok Frigg sátu í Hliðskjǫlfu ok sá um heima alla. BPA Óðinn mælti: Sér þú Agnar fóstra þinn, hvar hann elr bǫrn við gýgi í hellinum? BPA En Geirrøðr, fóstri minn, er konungr ok sitr nú at landi. BPA Frigg segir: Hann er matníðingr sá at hann kvelr gesti sína ef hánum þykkja ofmargir koma. BPA Óðinn segir at þat er in mesta lygi. Þau veðja um þetta mál. BPA Frigg sendi eskismey sína, Fullu, til Geirrøðar. Hon bað konung varask at eigi fyrgerði hánum fjǫlkunnigr maðr sá er þar var kominn í land ok sagði þat mark á at engi hundr var svá olmr at á hann myndi hlaupa. BPA En þat var inn mesti hégómi at Geirrøðr væri eigi matgóðr ok þó lætr hann handtaka þann mann er eigi vildu hundar á ráða. BPA Sá var í feldi blám ok nefndisk Grímnir ok sagði ekki fleira frá sér þótt hann væri atspurðr. BPA Konungr lét hann pína til sagna ok setja milli elda tveggja ok sat hann þar átta nætr. BPA Geirrøðr konungr átti son tíu vetra gamlan ok hét Agnarr eftir bróður hans. BPA Agnarr gekk at Grímni ok gaf hánum horn fullt at drekka, sagði að konungr gerði illa er hann lét pína hann saklausan. BPA Grímnir drakk af. Þá var eldrinn svá kominn at feldrinn brann af Grímni. Hann kvað:

BPB Weden and Frie sat in Litheshelf^G and looked about all the Homes. BPB Weden spoke: Seest thou Eyner thy foster-son, where he begets children with the troll-woman in the cave? BPB But Garfrith, my foster-son, is king and now sits at land. BPB Frie says: He is such a meat-nithing that he tortures his guests if he thinks there are too many of them. BPB Weden says that this is the greatest lie; they make a bet about this matter. BPB Frie sent her handmaid Full to Garfrith's. She asked the king to be wary, that he might not be ended by that feelcunning^C man who was come in the land, and said that his mark was that no hound were so fierce that he would leap onto him. BPB But that was the greatest vainglory that Garfrith would not be meat-good, and yet he has that man seized, whom the dogs would not touch. BPB He was clad in a blue cloak, and called himself Grimen, and did not tell any more about himself, even though he was interrogated. BPB The king had him tortured so that he would speak, and set him between two fires, and he remained there for eight nights. BPB King Garfrith had a son ten winters old, and he was named Eyner after his brother. BPB Eyner walked up to Grimen, and gave him a full horn to drink, saying that the king did ill as he had him tortured without cause. BPB Grimen drank from it; then the fire had come such that the cloak burned on Grimen. He quoth: EPG

The favour of Woulder^C—and of all the gods—has each who first touches the fire; for the Homes^C become open o'er the sons of the Ease, when the cauldrons are heaved off.^a ^aIn poetry sveiti, while cognate with English 'sweat', almost always carries the meaning of 'blood'. See Lexicon Poeticum TODO.

^aI agree with Finnur Jónsson (1932) in that this describes the gods enclosing Middenyard by using his eyebrows as poles.

^aThis verse is one of the most difficult in the poem, and many interpretations have been made (for a summary see Nordberg (2005)). Finnur Jónsson (1932) and Sijmons and Gering (p. 208, TODO) interpret this verse as relating to the frame narrative, with Weden still bound between the two fires, wishing for the gods to rescue him. This, however, scarcely makes sense given its placement in the middle of various gnomic verses. I believe instead (and here I agree with (Nordberg, 2005)) that the verse refers to the cooking and eating of sacred stew in large cauldrons during the bloot^C, and Woulder's role in the setting of the ritual fire (see Index and (af Edholm, 2009)). This interpretation is especially interesting in that this verse immediately follows two verses dealing with the primordial sacrifice of Yimer to create the world. This shows that the bloot was viewed as a ritual reenactment of the creation of the world by the gods (and indeed a continuation of that creation), something that is well attested comparatively (see (Lincoln, 1986), especially the first two chs., for its Indo-European analogues).

Weden then disappeared, but Eyner was there king for a long while thence.

^aselja 'sell' here has its earlier meaning, cf. Gothic saljan 'opfern; θΕΩΕΕ' (Streitberg 1910:116).

^bRegaining the hammer is of such importance to the gods (cf. v. 17; without it the Ease stand powerless against the Ettins^G), that Frow would lend the feather-hame to the greedy and untrusty Lock, even if it were made out of solid gold or silver.

³ illt es með olfum!] Inserted in analogy with the first pair, regardless it is needed for metrical reasons.

Flew then Lock—the feather-hame rustled—until outside he came of the homes of the Ettins, and inside he came of the yards of the Ease. He met Thunder in the middle of the yards, and he [= Thunder] that word first of all did say:

^alit. "Hast thou an errand, as hardship?" Thunder asks Lock if he has bad news.

^bProverbial. If one sits down and thinks too much over bad news, details will be left out, excuses thought up. Thus it is best that Lock immediately tell Thunder what he has learned.

^aThis verse contains an interesting description of Viking age bridal dress: As the everyday manager of the household, keys were the mark of a respectable married woman. The "broad stones" on the breast are probably tortoise brooches, while the tipping of the head refers to some sort of bridal hat (TODO: Literature). Breast-brooches are also mentioned in Wayland 25, 36.

Then quoth that Thrim, the lord of Thurses: "Stand ye up, ettins, and strew the benches! Now bring me Frow as wife; the daughter of Nearth of the Nowetowns."

^aThe form used, tvau, is the neuter plural, ie. one of the pair is female and the other male. This is either an error due to mindless copying of v. 11, or a backhanded insult against Thunder.

^aThunder's cart was driven by he-goats, and he is likewise called "the lord of he-goats" in Hymer 20, 31. See Index.

^bA very similar but more detailed description of Thunder driving is found in Thedwolf's Harvest-long 14–16. In both poems his wagon is drawn by he-goats, causing great cosmic disturbance: crags (bjorg in both) are rent asunder and fires rage before him. On the other hand braun ONP: 'stone/barren area, wasteland; lava-field' is well attested in Scoldish kennings for ettins. The precise meaning of galkn 'monster' (plural golkn) is unclear; apart from this, it is attested in three Scoldish verses, always in kennings of the type "troll-woman of the shield [AXE]". While the mss. 'galkn' (norm. gálkn) could be both singular and plural, the form of the verb precludes the former. This means that the word cannot be referring to the Middenyardsworm, refuting the interpretation of Larrington (2014): "the sea-wolf shrieked".

According to Finnur Jónsson (1932) this chain reached from one end of the kettle to another, in which case this would be an oblique reference to the cauldron's size, its diameter being the same as Thunder's height.

The Flyting of Lock (Lokasenna)

Preserved in R, directly following Hymer, though the poems without doubt were originally separate; the stylistic differences are drastical.

Þá skóku ésir skjoldu sína ok óptu at Loka, ok eltu hann braut til skógar, en þeir fóru at drekka. Loki hvarf aptr ok hitti úti Eldi; Loki kvaddi hann:

Eagre^P, who by another name is called Gymer^P, had prepared an ale-feast for the Ease when he had got the great kettle as now is told.^a

To that gathering came Weden^P and Frie^P, his woman. Thunder^P came not, for he was in the East-way^L. Sib was there, Thunder's woman; Bray^P and Idun^P, his woman. Tue^P was there, he was one-handed. The Fennerswolf^P tore his hand off when it was bound.^b There was Nearth^P, and his woman Scathe^P; Free^P and Frow^L; Wider^P, the son of Weden^P. Lock^P was there, and the servants of Free: Bew^P and Beal^P. There was a great many of the Ease^G and Elves^{Gc}.

Eagre had two servants: Femfinger^P and Elder^P. There was glowing gold used instead of fire; the ale there poured itself. There was a great grith-stead^C.^d Men greatly praised how good the servants of Eagre were. Lock could not stand that, and he slew Femfinger.

Then the Ease shook their shields and screamed at Lock,^c and chased him away to the forest, but then they went to drink. Lock came back and found Elder outside; Lock greeted him:

- 1 "Seg þú þat, Eldir, · svá't þú einugi

4 sigtíva synir."

"Say it, Elder, so that thou take not one step further:" what here within they bring up over the ale, b the sons of the victory-Tues [GODS]."

4 manngi 's þér í orði vinr."

"Of their weapons they converse, and of their fight-valiance, the sons of the victory-Tues [GODS]; of the Ease and Elves which are here within, none is thee a friend in words."

4 manngi ... vinr "none ... words."] i.e. "none of them say anything good about you." — The (lack of) alliteration here is very notable, and also occurs in v. 10. Both of these verses are otherwise perfect, and so it may be that v/w/ is rarely alliterating with the vowel. While this is never seen in Scoldish poetry, it could have been delegated to the simpler Eddic styles. Alternatively the poem is of such age that it was composed before the North Germanic loss of /w-/ before rounded vowels. This is supported by the fact that in both this verse and v. 10 the words that alliterate with /w-/ have cognates in other Germanic languages that begin with /w-/, in the case of ulfr in v. 10 this consonant is well attested in old runic inscriptions. To be clear, this retention does not require dating the whole poem to the Proto-Norse period; perhaps the poet was aware of the change which had taken place a few generations before him, and employed it as an archaism. For metrical reasons it must certainly post-date the syncope period (in the 6th century), but we know from the transitional 7th century Blekinge runestones from Stentoften (DR 357), Gummarp (DR 358) and Istaby (DR 359) that syncope occurred before the loss of /w-/ anyway. A 7th century Proto-Norse form of the c-line might be: mannagi 3 per in worde wing.

[&]quot;Of nine mothers am I a lad, of nine sisters am I a son."

The Lay of Wayland (Wayland) is a story of immense psychological complexity, one of the greatest masterpieces of Norse poetry.

The poem begins with a prose introduction, which survives in both R and A.

Wayland gets his revenge on the whole royal household. He murders Nithad's two young sons (affectionately, his "bear-cubs") and thus ends his male lineage. Likewise he defangs Nithad's "cunning wife" (she is never called anything else) by reducing her once powerful counsels to cold words; and finally he rapes Beadhild, depriving her of her maidenhood and value in marriage. They are thus reduced to the same state of complete powerlessness as he himself experienced, something clearly seen in the repetition of the adjective viljalauss 'powerless'; in v. 12 it describes Wayland after he wakes in shackles, but in v. 31 Nithad uses it to refer to his own mental state after the deaths of his sons. This sense of hopelessness is also seen in Beadhild's haunting concluding speech. "I knew by naught struggle against him; I could by naught struggle against him."

From the other versions of the story it is known that Beadhild gave birth to a son, Woody (Old English Wudga, ThedS Viðga, in Danish ballads Vidrik Verlandsøn). He went on to become a great hero, and in the later heroic ballads by far eclipses his father. His birth seems heavily foreshadowed by Wayland forcing Nithad to swear an oath in v. 33, but he is nowhere directly mentioned in the poem, probably for artistic reasons.

Apart from this lay there is one other telling of the full story, namely the Strand of Wayland the Smith in ThedS. While written in Old Norse, it is clear from the proper names and content that it is based on German sources (probably heroic ballads). Thus the native form Volundr is replaced with Velent [sic], Niðuðr with Niðungr. Interestingly there is a note within it showing that the native form was still known, namely about "Velent, the excellent smith, whom Warrings (Væringjar) call Wayland (Volundr)". Apparently Wayland was so famous that "all men seem to praise his workmanship so, that the maker of any smith's work which is made better than other works, is called a Wayland (Volundr) with regards to workmanship."

Far more stark than minor differences of language is that of tone. The psychological complexity and tension of the older redaction is almost entirely gone: Wayland is no longer a mysterious wild man, but a chivalrous knight who can escape from any peril through his ingenuity and craftmanship. He is not captured due to Nithad's greed or hamstrung due to the suspicion of his cruel wife, but rather a loyal servant of Nithad's, banished from the kingdom after defending himself against the king's steward and hamstrung after being caught attempting to poison his food in revenge.

Frustratingly the personality of Beadhild is entirely expulged. She is the anonymous "king's daughter", an unnamed virgin (jungfrú, a borrowing from Low German) who is peacefully seduced by Wayland and quickly falls in love with him. Likewise the person of Nithad's cunning wife is completely gone, and the murder of his sons no longer ends his lineage, since he has another, older son who survives him and takes over the kingdom. Wayland still flies away laughing after telling Nithad what he has done, but only four years (his son with Beadhild is three years old) later reconciliates with Nithad's son, retrieves Beadhild and their son and lives a long life as a famous craftsman.

With this it is clearly seen that the story by the time of the ThedS had been heavily distorted, a tragic victim of medieval romantic sensibilities. It does not have any high literary value, but is of interest since it shows the wide reception and variation of the narrative.

Finally there are also traces of the story in the Anglo-Saxon tradition, where it is alluded to in both Walder and Dear, the latter of which particularly emphasising the powerlessness felt by Wayland and Beadhild (thus being much closer in spirit to Wayland than ThedS). Some of it is also depicted on the early 8th century Frank's casket, where it is as prominent as the depiction of the Adoration of the Magi—a true testament to the weight with which it was regarded within that culture.

To illustrate the narrative correspondences and differences of the various redactions, I present the following table:

BPB Nithad was named a king in Sweden. BPB He owned two sons and one daughter;

she was called Beadhild. BPB There were three brothers, the sons of a king of the Finns. BPB One was called Slayfinn, another Agle, the third Wayland. BPB They travelled on skis and hunted wild animals. They came into the Wolfdales and made for themselves houses there. BPB There is a water there, called Wolfsea. BPB Early in the morning they found on the lake-shore three women, and they were spinning linen. BPB By them were their swan-hames^C; they were Walkirries. BPB Two of them were the daughters of king Ladwigh: Ladguth Swanwhite and Harware Allwit, the third was Alerune, daughter of Kear^P of Walland^{Ga}. BPB The brothers brought the maidens with them to their halls. Agle got Alerune, but Slayfinn Swanwhite, but Wayland Allwit. BPB They lived there for seven winters, then they left to attend battles, and did not return. BPB Then Agle left on skis to look for Alerune, but Slayfinn sought out Swanwhite; but Wayland stayed in the Wolfdales. BPB He was the most skilled craftsman, as men know, in the ancient saws. BPB King Nithad had him captured, about which this has been sung: EPG

- 1 Męyjar flugu sunnan · Myrkvið í gognum
- alvitr ungar, · ørlǫg drýgja; þér á sévarstrond · settusk at hvílask
- 4 drósir suðrønar, · dýrt lín spunnu.

Maidens flew from the south through Mirkwood^a—young allwits^b—to fulfill orlay^C. They on the lake-shore set down to rest; the southern ladies span expensive linen.

2 Ein nam þeira · Egil at verja

One of them began—the fair maiden of men—to ward Agle by her light bosom. Another was Swanwhite—her swan-feathers she pulled; but the third sister warded the white throat of Wayland.

^aMirkwood is surely referenced for its association with the war-ravaged lands of the Gots and Huns; a natural environment for Walkirries.

Then they stayed for seven winters at that, but all the eighth they yearned, but the ninth did need divorce them: the maidens longed for the mirky wood: the young allwits, to fulfill orlay.^a

He struck the red gold by fastened gemstone, enclosed he all the serpent-bighs^{Ca} well; thus awaited he his bright wife, if to him she might come.

^aAs Walkirries the orlay of the sisters is to preside over battles for Weden. Remembering this duty they become increasingly anxious, until they one day decide to finally leave, as seen from the next verse without telling their husbands. For the significance of Mirkwood, see note to v. 1.

^aThat this is the bigh mentioned by itself in vv. 17 and 26 seems likely. Finnur Jónsson (1932) writes: "The ring which Nithad kept must have had special properties, and distinguished itself before others. There is no doubt that the ring is a flight ring; whether this was clear to the poet is however questionable. This much is certain, that Wayland seems to be able to fly away only after he has got back the ring; that is, the one which Beadhild brings him." (My translation from the Danish.)—The reader may for himself judge the plausibility of this, but it seems that Wayland, being an exceptionally handy craftsman, may just as well have crafted wings for himself without need for magical rings. This agrees with the Low German verison and the Daedalus myth, for both of which see the introduction to the poem.

^aGrane was the horse of the legendary hero Siward^P, slayer of the dragon Fathomer^P. These events were thought to have taken place in Germany. The sense of the is thus sarcastic: "Where did you get that gold? A dragon's hoard?".

His teeth are bared when he is shown the sword, and he recognizes Beadhild's bigh. Reminiscent are the eyes to the gleaming snake's. Cut ye from him the might of his sinews, and set him thereafter on Seastead!"

^aWayland responds by asserting the noble lineage of the three swan-wives as a legitimate reason for his wealth; the tone is nostalgic.

P Svá var gǫrt, at skornar váru sinar í knésfótum ok settr í holm einn, er þar var fyrir landi, er hét Sévarstaðr. Þar smíðaði hann konungi allskyns gǫrsimar; engi maðr þorði at fara til hans, nema konungr einn. Vǫlundr kvað:

Thus was done, that the sinews in his houghs were cut, and he was placed on a lonely islet, which there lay before the land, called Seastead. There he smithed for the king all manner of jewels. No man dared travel to him, but the king alone. Wayland quoth:

"Well I", quoth Wayland, "fall on my paddles; those which Nithad's men bereaved me of!a" Laughing Wayland threw himself in the air; weeping Beadhild went from the island: she grieved the lover's flight, and the father's fury.

- 30 Úti stóð kunnig · kvón Níðaðar,
 - ok hón inn of gekk · endlangan sal, en hann á salgarð · settisk at hvílask,
 - 4 "Vakir þú Níðuðr, · Níara dróttinn?"

Outside stood the cunning wife of Nithad; she walked inside across the length of the hall—but he, on the courtyard, set down to rest. "Art thou awake, Nithad, lord of the Nears?"

[Nithad quoth:]

- 31 "Vaki'k ávalt · viljalauss,
 - sofna'k minst, · síz sonu dauŏa, kell mik í hofuŏ, · kold erumk róŏ þín,
 - 4 vilnumk þess nú, · at við Volund døma'k."

"I am always awake, powerless; I fall asleep the least, since the death of my sons. My head freezes; cold are thy counsels—I wish now but that: to speak with Wayland."

[Nithad quoth:]

- 32 "Sęg mér þat Volundr, · vísi alfa,
 - af hẹilum hvat varð · húnum mínum?"

"Say it to me, Wayland, leader of elves: what became of my healthy bear-cubs?"

[Wayland quoth:]

- 33 "Eiða skalt mér áðr · alla vinna,
 - at skips borði · ok at skjaldar rond,

^aC-V: fit 'the webbed foot of water-birds', the reader may picture for himself. Wayland has crafted a mechanism to take flight, regaining his mobility which he lost when he was hamstrung.

- 4 at þú kvelj-at · kvón Volundar, né brúði minni · at bana verðir,
- þótt kvón eigim, · þá's ér kunnið, eða jóð eigim · innan hallar.

"Before that shalt thou swear to me all oaths:—by the deck of the ship and the rim of the shield, by the bough of the steed and the edge of the sword—that thou wilt not torment the wife of Wayland, nor of my bride become the bane, though a wife we might own, which ye know; or a babe might own, inside of the hall.^a

- 34 Gakk til smiðju, · es gerðir þú,
- þar fiðr þú belgi · blóði stokna, sneið'k af hofuð · húna þinna
- ok und fen fjoturs · føtr of lagða'k.

Go to the smithy, which thou madest; there wilt thou find bellows, sprinkled with blood. I sliced off the heads of thy bear-cubs, and under the fetter's fen their feet did I lay.

- 35 En þér skálar, · es und skorum vóru,
 - sveip'k útan silfri, · selda'k Níðaði, en ór augum · jarknasteina,
 - 4 senda'k kunnigri · kvón Níðaðar.

But the bowls, which were under their curls, I coated with silver and gave to Nithad. But out of the eyes, earkenstones I sent to the cunning wife of Nithad.

- 36 En ór tonnum · tveggja þeira
 - sló'k brjóstkringlur, · sęnda'k Bǫðvildi; nú gengr Bǫðvildr · barni aukin,
- 4 eingadóttir · ykkur beggja."

But out of the teeth of the two, I struck breast-brooches, sent to Beadhild. Now walks Beadhild, swollen with child; the only daughter of you both."

^aWayland has Nithad swear an oath that he will not harm Beadhild, nor their (yet unborn) child.

[Nithad quoth:]

- 37 "Méltir-a þú þat mál, · es mik meir tregi,
 - né þik vilja'k Vǫlundr · verr of níta; es-at svá maðr hór, · at þik af hesti taki,
 - 4 né svá oflugr, · at þik neðan skjóti. þar's þú skollir · við ský uppi."

"Thou spokest not that speech which might grieve me more; nor could I worse wish, Wayland, to deny thee. There is no man so high that he from horse might take thee, nor so mighty that he might shoot thee down, there where thou jeerest, by the clouds above!"

- 38 Hléjandi Volundr · hófsk at lopti,
 - 2 en ókátr Níðuðr · þá eptir sat.

Laughing Wayland threw himself in the air, but gloomy Nithad thereafter stayed.

[Nithad quoth:]

- 39 "Upp rís Pakkráðr, · þréll minn bazti,
 - bið Bǫðvildi, · mey hina bráhvítu, gangi fagrvarið · við foður róða."

"Rise up Thankred, my best thrall; ask Beadhild—the brow-white maiden—to go fairclothed, with her father to counsel."

[Nithad quoth:]

- 40 "Es þat satt Boðvildr, · es sogðu mér,
 - sótuð it Volundr · saman í holmi?"

"Is it true, Beadhild, as they said to me: stayed thou and Wayland together on the island?"

[Beadhild quoth:]

- 41 "Satt 's þat Níðuðr · es sagði þér:
- sótum vit Volundr · saman í holmi eina ogurstund, · éva skyldi;
- ek vétr hónum · vinna kunna'k, ek vétr hónum · vinna mátta'k."

"It is true, Nithad, as he said^a to thee: I and Wayland stayed together on the island, for one grave moment—it should never have been! I knew by naught struggle against him; I could by naught struggle against him.^b"

^aBeadhild, knowing that the only one who is aware of what happened is Wayland, makes the subtle change in the conjugation, from her father's general plural ("what they said"), to the specific singular ("what he said").

^bShe was both mentally (C-V: kunna 'know, understand') and physically (C-V: mega 'to have strength to do, avail') incapable of struggling against him. As Finnur comments, a potent final verse.

The Lay of Hallow Harwardson (Hęlgakviða Hjorvarðssonar)

Frá Hjorvarði ok Sigrlinn

Hjorvarðr hét konungr. Hann átti fjórar konur. Ein hét Alfhildr; sonr þeira hét Heðinn. Qnnur hét Séreiþr; þeira sonr hét Humlungr. In þriðja hét Sinrjóð; þeira sonr hét Hymlingr. Hjorvarðr konungr hafði þess heit strengt at eiga þá konu er hann vissi vénsta. Hann spurði at Sváfnir konungr átti dóttur allra¹ fegrsta; sú hét Sigrlinn. Iðmundr hét jarl hans; Atli var hans sonr er fór at biðja Sigrlinnar til handa konungi. Hann dvalðisk vetrlangt með Sváfni konungi. Fránmarr hét þar jarl, fóstri Sigrlinnar; dóttir hans hét Álǫf. Jarlinn réð, at meyjar var synjat, ok fór jarlinn heim. Atli jarls sonr stóð einn dag við lund nǫkkurn, en fugl sat í limunum uppi yfir hánum ok hafði heyrt til, at hans menn kǫlluðu vénstar konur þér, er Hjǫrvarðr konungr átti. Fuglinn kvakaði, en Atli hlýddi, hvat hann sagði. Hann kvað:

Second Lay of Hallow Hundingsbane (Helgakviða Hundingsbana aðra)

BPG BPA Helgi fekk Sigrúnar ok áttu þau sonu; var Helgi eigi gamall. Dagr Hǫgna sonr blótaði Óðin til fǫðurhefnda. Óðinn léði Dag geirs síns. Dagr fann Helga, mág sinn, þar sem heitir at Fjǫturlundi. Hann lagði í gǫgnum Helga með geirnum. Þar fell Helgi en Dagr reið til fjalla ok sagði Sigrúnu tíðindi:

BPB Hallow got Sighrun, and they owned sons; Hallow was not old. Day, son of Hain, blooted^C to Weden to take revenge for his father. Weden lent Day his spear. Day found Hallow, his brother-in-law, at a place called Fetterlund; he laid the spear through Hallow. There fell Hallow, but Day rode to the fells and told Sighrun the news: EPB

"Sooner would I kiss the unliving king, than thou the bloody byrnie mightst cast away. Thy hair is, Hallow, with hoarfrost thick: the prince is all with corpse-dew whipped: the hands wet-cold on the kinsman of Hain. How shall I for thee, lord, remedy that?"

"Thou alone causest, Sighrun from the Sevefells, that Hallow be by harm-dew whipped; thou criest, gold-covered, bitter tears, sun-bright southern lady, before thou to sleep mightst go. Each one falls bloody on the breast of the ruler, wet-cold and stifled, pressed forth by grief."

Frá dauða Fáfnis

From the death of Fathomer

[Fathomer quoth:]

- 2 Hverra estu manna mogr?
 - es þú á Fáfni rautt · þínn hinn frána méki;

"Swain and swain! To which swain art thou born; of which men art thou the son? As thou on Fathomer hast reddened thy gleaming blade, the sword stands to my the heart!"

BPG BPA Sigurðr dulði nafns síns fyr því at þat var trúa þeira í forneskju at orð feigs manns métti mikit ef hann bolvaði óvin sínum með nafni. Hann kvað:EPA

BPB Siward concealed his name, because it was their belief in ancient times that the word of a fey^C man could do much if he cursed his enemy by his name. He [= Siward] quoth:EPB EPG

- 2 mínu fjorvi at fara?
 - Hinn fráneygi sveinn, · þú áttir foður bitran,
- ábornu skjór á skęið."

"Who goaded thee, why didst thou let thyself be goaded, my life for to destroy? Gleaming-eyed swain, thou haddest a sharp father; inborn traits show quickly.^a"

TODO: More verses...

^aThe meaning is that Fathomer would not recognize Siward's lineage (i.e. his father) or name, since he is an orphan who up until this point has not won any glory. He is not saying that he is lineage is unknown even to himself, since sjalfan mik 'my self' is accusative, not dative.

^aThe original is unclear. á skęið means roughly 'rapidly, quickly'; thus ríða á skęið C-V: 'to ride at full speed', but the other words are uncertain. La Farge and Tucker (1992) read 'your innate qualities show quickly', suggesting two unattested words: an adjective *áborinn 'innate, inborn' and a verb *skjóa 'to show'. Yet the lack of i-umlaut in the supposed 3rd sg. pres. ind. skjór is difficult. We would expect skýr, as in skjóta 'to shoot,' with 2nd/3rd sg. pres. ind skýtr. A solution here would be reading a 2nd sg. pres. subj. skjóir, with a vowel TODO

Many of the verses are quoted in WalsS, but notably the two prayer-verses are missing; possibly an instance of Christian censorship. TODO

Attle sent early to Guther a well-known messenger to ride; Kneefred that one was called. To the estates of Yivick he came, and to the hall of Guther; to the hearth-surrounding benches, and to the lovely beer.

1 Svá ... verjask] Line moved from the last verse to this one since it seems to connect semantically with the immediately following line, and also creates a regular line distribution of 4-4 instead of 5-3.

Hain laughed then, when to the heart they cut on the living wound-smith; he thought least of sobbing. Bloody on a platter they laid it, and carried it before Guther.

^aThe Huns ask Guther (it is clear that "ruler of the Gots" refers to him, cf. 1, 3, 10) if he wishes to ransom Hain. He instead responds with the following:

33 Enn segir gleggra í Atlamálum inum grønlenskum.

Yet this is told more clearly in the Greenlendish Speeches of Attle.

^ai.e. 'She has slain three great kings.' This expression and its Germanic and Indo-European relatives is discussed in detail in Watkins (1995)[417–422].

For the text of original poem I generally present the manuscript text. I found it very difficult to produce a normalization without too heavily distorting the received text, being as it is, a blend of several dialects. I have, however, added acute accents to signify long vowels, capitalized proper names, consistently replaced p (wynn) and uu with w, and made minor corrections where the manuscript is clearly in error—these are noted in the critical apparatus. The punctuation of the original, entirely consisting of interpuncts, at times representing line breaks and caesurae and at others sporadically placed, has not been retained. The hypermetrical words $quad\ Hiltibrant\ "Hildbrand\ quoth"$ (found in the ms. at the caesurae of ll., 30, 49, and 58) have been removed from the German text, but are presented in small font in the English translation.

Hathbrand spoke, Hildbrand's son: "It told me our people, the old and learned, those who earlier lived, that Hildbrand was called my father — I am called Hathbrand. Long ago he hurried east — he fled Edwaker's hate — thither with Thedrich, and his great many thanes. He left in the land a little one to stay, a bride in the bower, a bairn ungrown, without inheritance; he rode east thither, as Thedrich was in great need of my father; — that was so friendless a man. NOTE: This index or rather dictionary is both incomplete and inconsistently formatted. New entries will be added, and old ones be corrected in the future.

1.1 Cultural and religious expressions (C) ape (ON. api, OE. apa, OS. apo, OHG. affo, PNWGmc. *apô) In the Old Norse the word seems to mean 'fool, buffoon', in the other old languages apparently 'monkey', though this sense should be a later development of the former; why would the early Germanic tribes have a word for an animal that they had never encountered?

aught (ON. étt, OE. éht 'possession, property') The Nordic (paternal) clan or family line.

begale (OHG. bigalan) To affect something using galders^C. See also gale^C.

bigh (ON. baugr, OE. béag, OHG. boug) A torc or armlet, in the migration period used as currency or tokens of loyalty (see particularly Hildbrand). often referenced in ruler-kennings.

bloot (ON. blót, OE. blót, OHG. bluoz) Sacrifice or a sacrificial feast.

bloot-kettle The large pots used for cooking the bloot-stew.

Doom (ON. dómr, OE. dóm) Commonly 'judgement' (whence Doomsday, 'Judgement Day'), but in the Norse and English poetry also specifically referring to one's fame or good reputation (that is, how others will judge one's character and deeds). Thus High 77: "I know one that never dies: the Doom over each man dead." is illuminated by passages in Beewolf like 884b–887a:

... · Sigemunde gesprong æfter déaðdæge · dóm unlýtel syþðan wíges heard · wyrm ácwealde hordes hyrde · ...

"For Sighmund sprang up after his day of death unlittle \mathbf{Doom} , since hard in conflict he defeated the Worm^C, the herder of the hoard.";

953b-955a:

... · þú þé self hafast dédum gefremed · þæt þín dóm lyfað áwa tó aldre · ...

"Thou hast for thyself by deeds accomplished that thy Doom lives for ever and ever."

fee (ON. fé, OE. féoh) Originally 'cattle', however also used in a broader sense to refer to one's mobile wealth. For this cf. particularly *High*TODO.

feelcunning (ON. fiplkunnigr) Literally 'much-cunning, cunning in many ways'. Skilled with sorcery.

- fey (ON. feigr, OE. fáge, OHG. feigi 'cowardly') One doomed or fated to die, with a sense of predestination and inevitability. Its earliest use is on the Rök stone: aft uamuþ stanta runar þar + n uarin faþi faþir aft faikian sunu "After Woemood (Vámóðr) stand these runes^C, but Warren (Varinn) painted, the father after the fey son." It was believed that one's See PCRN HS II:35, p. 928 ff. (TODO)
- fimble- (ON. fimbul-) The ultimate, final, greatest. See Fimblethyle^P, Fimblewinter^L.
- five days (ON. fimm dagar) That the old Scandinavian week was five days long is well attested. According to the GolL there were six weeks in a month, and the expression five days is used as the equivalent of week in High 51 and 74, in the second of which it is contrasted with month. Related to this is the legal term fifth (ON. fimmt, OSw. femt), a meeting or gathering set to be held at a five-day notice. See fimt in C-V, LMNL (2020) for further discussion.
 - galder (ON. galdr, OE. gealdor, OHG. galdar) A magical spell or song. See the Merseburg charms (TODO?) for examples. See also gale^C.
 - gand (ON. gandr, Latin gandus) A witch's familiar, a spirit sent out to do her bidding. See PCRN HS I:17, p. 361 and II:26, p. 656. TODO
 - gin- (ON. ginn-) A rare augmentative prefix. TODO.
- good of meat (ON. matar gó) An old expression, appearing not just in High 39 (I found not a generous man, or so good of meat, that a gift were not accepted;") but also several Viking Age Runic inscriptions, such as Sm 39: mildan orða · ok matar góðan "mild of words and good of meat", U 805: bónda góðan matar "a farmer good of meat", U 703: mandr matar góðr · auk máls risinn "a man good of meat and proud in speech"; compare also U 739: bann var mildr matar · auk máls risinn "he was mild of meat and proud in speech". See meat-nithing^C for its opposite.
 - hame (ON. hamr) A skin, shape. Individuals can through magic "shift hames" (ON. skipta homum), and leave their human hames behind, instead entering into the shapes of wolves, bears, birds. During this process the original hame would be sleeping in a vulnerable state, as described in the Saw of the Walsings, chap. TODO: . See also feather-hame^P, town-riders^C, evening-riders^C.
 - harrow (ON. horgr, OE. hearg, PNWGmc. harugar*) A cairn constructed for ritual purposes. Hindle 10 describes one: "A harrow^C he made for me, loaded with stones; now that stone-pile is become into glass. He reddened [it] in fresh blood of oxen; Oughthere^P ever trusted on the Ossens^G." See also wigh^C.
 - Home (ON. hęimr, OE. hám, PNWGmc. haimar*) In the Norse often referring to a 'realm' in the cosmology (WSpae 2: "I remember nine Homes", Webthrithner TODO: "From the runes of the Ettins^G and of all the gods I can speak truly, for I have come into each - Home"). Thus Ettinham^L is the 'Home/realm of the ettins.' When used alone the term simply means 'the world (that we inhabit).' See also nine Homes^L, Thrithham^L.

Index 233

- leat (ON. blaut) Sacrificial blood (that is, taken from the animal), especially when used for auguries.
- leat-twig (ON. blauttęinn) A twig used to sprinkle the leat^C in auguries (presumably the pattern of the blood would then be inspected).
 - leed (ON. ljóð, OE. léod) A magical chant or incantation. See also galder^C, gale^C, begale^C.
 - manwit (ON. manvit) Practical sense and wisdom, situational awareness, 'common sense'.
 - orlay (ON. orlog, OE. orlog) One's predetermined fate, destiny, purpose as decreed by the Norns^G.
 - rest (ON. rost) The distance between two rest-stops, a geographical mile (about 1850 metres). See especially C-V.

 - soo (ON. sóa) To ritually waste, the slaying in the animal sacrifice.
 - thill (ON. pylja) To chant poetry or lists (so called thules^C) acquired by rote memorization. See also thyle^C.
 - Thing (ON., OE. þing, OS. thing, OHG. ding) The legal assembly and gathering place where matters would be settled and the law recited.
 - thule (ON. pula) A poetic list, typically of various items of a category (e.g. gods, legendary horses) or poetic synonyms (e.g. for swords, men, Weden). Degoratively also a ditty, poorly composed poem.
 - thyle (ON. pulr, OE. pyle, PNWGmc. puli*R) A sage who through rote learning has acquired a large amount of mythological lore (cf. pula 'a list in poetic form; a meaning-less poem' and pylja 'to recite, to chant'). Thus Weden^P is the Fimblethyle^P, being the unbeaten master of lore, as can be seen in his wisdom contests (like Webthrithner).

Runic inscription DR 248 (Snoldelev) suggests the thyle may have tied to a specific place, and in Beewolf it seems to have been a court position, with the poet Unferth being described as the "thyle of Rothgar".

wale (ON. volr) The staff or sceptre, especially of a wallow. TODO: archeological finds, mention Sutton Hoo.

wallow (ON. volva, OE. wealwe* (cf. ON. svolva, OE. swealwe 'swallow')) A sibyl, seeress, oracle. The word derives from the wale^C, a staff or sceptre probably used for ritual purposes.

wigh (ON. vé, OE. wéoh, wíh, PNWGmc. *wīhą) A holy shrine or sanctuary. It seems that where the harrow^C was a pile of stones or cairn used for carrying out rituals, the wigh was an enclosed space. The earliest Norse attestation is the runic inscription Ög N288 (Oklunda), which reads: "Guthhere <= Gunnarr> painted these runes, and he fled, guilty. Sought this wigh, and he fled into this clearing. And he bound. [...]" The implication seems to be that the wigh was considered so sacred that Guthhere could not be apprehended or punished for his crime while in it. — In Old English the word means 'pagan idol'. It is not immediately clear which meaning is the original one, but in this edition the Norse sense has been adopted, since the Anglo-Saxon sources are all of a Christian nature. The Beewolf name Wighstone (Wīh- or Wēohstān) in any case suggests it is the Norse meaning, since 'idol-stone' makes little sense.

wode (ON. óðr, OE. wód, PNWGmc. *wōþuʀ) Heener^P's gift to men, though the name would suggest it be from Weden^P. The word has several related meanings: 'poetic inspiration', 'madness', 'rage'.

1.2 People and objects (P)

Attle (Attila, ON. Atli, OE. Ætla, MHG. Etzel, PNWGmc. Attilō*) The ruler of the Huns^G (historically from 434–453). Husband of Guthrun^P, and with her father of Earp and Oatle^P. and murderer of I HHb 54, SiL 11, I Gr 23, ShS 28, 29, 33, 37, 54, 56, 57, II Gr 26, 38, 45, III Gr 1, 9, BnOr 0, OdW A, 2, 22, 23, 25, 26, 30, 31, AtD 0, AtL 1, 3, 15, 17, 18, 27, 31, 32, 34, 36, 37, 38, 41, 43, B, AtS 2, 4, 21, 22, 44, 52, 60, 64, 71, 73, 77, 80, 86, 87, 97, 98, 108, 113, 117, FGr 0, GrB 12, Ham 6.

Balder (ON. Baldr, OE. Bældæg (not directly cognate), OHG. Balter, PWGmc. Baldran The beautiful son of Weden^P, slayed by his brother Hath^P, avenged by his other brother Wonnel^P.

Earp and Oatle (ON. Erpr ok Eitill) The sons of Attle^P and Guthrun^P.

Feather-hame (ON. fjaðrhamr) A hame^C owned by the Ease that lets the wearer fly like a bird, more specifically a falcon.

Index 235

- Guthrun (ON. Guðrún) Daughter of king Yivick^P, sister of Guthhere^P and Hain^P. The wife of Attle^P.
 - Hain [Hain 1] (ON. Hogni, OE. Haguna, Hagena, OHG. Hagano, Ger. Hagen, PNWGmc. *Hagunō) A Nifling^G and Yivicking^G, son of king Yivick^P, brother of Guthhere^P and Guthrun^P. In AtL he defeats seven warriors before being captured by Attle^P, who has his heart cut out at the request of Guthhere.
 - 2 A petty king of East Geatland^L, contemporary with Granmer^P, the king of Southmanland^L and Ingeld Illred, the Ingling^G king of Upland^L.
 - Hath (ON. Hoδr) The blind son of Weden^P, the slayer of his brother Balder^P.
 - Hindle (ON. Hyndla) A witch awoken by Frow in Hindle.
- Millner (ON. Mjǫllnir, OE. *Meldne, PNWGmc. *Meldunjar) Powerful hammer owned by Thunder.
- Oughter (ON. Óttarr, OE. Óhthere, PNWGmc. *Ōhtaharjar) TODO
- Rotholf (ON. Hrólfi kraki, OE. Hrólpulf, PNWGmc. Hrōlpiwulfar*) A king of the Shieldings^G (see family tree). As foreshadowed in Beewolf 1017–9, 1180–90, he betrays the sons of Rothgar^P, his cousins Rethrich and Rothmund^P, in order to take the throne for himself. In the later Icelandic tradition this has been forgotten, and he is consistently portrayed as a heroic king.
- Rothgar (ON. Hróarr, OE. Hróþgár, PNWGmc. Hrōþigainan*) A king of the Shieldings^G (see family tree), one of the main characters in Beewolf.
- Weden (rhymes with leaden; ON. Óðinn, OE. Wóden, Wéden, OHG. Wuotan, PNWGmc. *Wōdanar) Chief of the Ease^G, his name is clearly related to wode^C, referring to his role as the patron of scolds^C and bearserks^C. Husband of Frie^P, and by her father of Balder^P. Also father of Thunder^P by Earth^P. Brother of Heener^P and Lother^P.
- Wider (ON. Viðarr) A son of Weden^P, who avenges him at the Rakes of the Reins^L.
- Wonnel (ON. Váli, PWgmc. Wanila 'the little Wane^P (uncertain)') The son of Weden^P, who one-night old avenged his brother Balder^P through slaying another brother, Hath^P.
- Woulder (ON. Ullr) A rather obscure god. He is mentioned in connection with oath-rings (TODO) and the setting of ritual fires (Grimner TODO). These obscure references are likely related to the interesting finds at Lilla Ullevi ('the small wigh^C of Woulder') in Upland, Sweden, consisting of several dozen fire striker-shaped iron amulet rings dating to 660–780 (for a detailed description see (af Edholm, 2009)).
 - Yimer (ON. Ymir, OE. *Yime) The first ettin, probably equivalent to Earyelmer^P.

Yivick (ON. Gjúki, OE. Gifica, OHG. Gibicho, MHG. Gibeche) King of the Burgends^G (historically from late 300s–407) of the Nifling dynasty, ancestor of the Yivickings^G. Father of Guthrun^P, Guthhere^P and Hain^P.

1.3 Groups and tribes (G)

TODO: Map of rough tribal areas. Geneaologies.

- Danes (ON. danir, OE. dene, PNWGmc. *danir) A tribe in eastern modern-day Denmark and southern Sweden. They probably originated in Scania in southern Sweden, before moving westwards into the Danish isles and eventually Jutland, driving out the Earls^G and Jutes^G. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Dwarfs (ON. dvergar, OE. dweorgas, OHG. twerca, PNWGmc. *dwergór) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings, often referred to as living in rocks and mountains. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
 - Ease (rhyming with geese; ON. ésir, OE. ése, PNWGmc. *ansiwir; sg. os, ON. áss, OE. ós, PNWGmc. *ansur) A group of Gods, though the word can also refer to all the Gods. See Gods^G, Tues^G, Wanes^G, Reins^G. Noted members: Weden^P, Thunder^P, Frie^P, Hath^P and Balder^P Attestations: TODO
- Ease and Elves (ON. ésir ok alfar, OE. ése ende ielfe, PNWGmc. *alβír jah ansiwir) A merism; both heavenly and earthly spiritual beings. Notably the two words always occur in this order (never 'Elves and Ease'), even in the Old English.
 - Elves (ON. alfar, OE. ielfe, PNWGmc. *alβíκ) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings. Possibly ancestral spirits? Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
 - Ettins (ON. jotnar, OE. eotenas, PNWGmc. etunón*) The fundamental enemies of the Gods, the agents of chaos and disorder. See Rises^G, Thurses^G. Noted members: Hymer^P, Thrim^P, Webthrithner^P, Yimer^P Attestations: TODO
 - Geats (ON. gautar, OE. géatas, PNWGmc. *gautón from *geut- 'to pour', perhaps 'the libators') A tribe in what is today southern-central Sweden. See also Geatland^L, Swedes^G. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
 - gin-Reins (ON. ginnregin) gin-C + ReinsG. The sacrosanct, highest divine powers.
 - Gods (ON. goð, OE. godu, OHG. gota, PNWGmc. *godu) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
 - Huns (ON. húnir, OE. Húne, OHG. Húni, Hunni, PNWGmc. *húniπ) An invading Asiatic tribe in the Migration Period. In the legendary material their cultural and ethnic foreignness is not seen. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO

Index 237

- Nears (ON. níarar njárar) A Swedish tribe, only mentioned in Wayland, where it is ruled by king Nithad^P. The name and location may allow us to connect them with the Swedish province of Närke, cf. Old Swedish: Nærikiar 'inhabitants of Närke', Nærisker 'belonging to Närke; Nearish'. The Old Swedish stem nær- would then be a reduced form of níar-, njár-.
- Ossens (ON. ósynjur) The women of the Ease^G, see there.
- Reins (ON. rogn, regin) The divine powers. Based on Webthrithner (TODO) the term may be more closely associated with the Wanes^G than the Ease^G.
- Saxons (ON. saxar, OE. Seaxan, Seaxe) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Shieldings (ON. skjǫldungar, OE. Scyldingas, PNWGmc. *skeldungón) The descendants of Shield^P; the legendary Danish^G royal dynasty. With Harward^P's death after his slaying of Rotholf^P their rule ended. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Shelvings (ON. skilfingar, OE. scilfingas, PNWGmc. *skilßingón) The descendants of Shelf^P; the legendary Swedish^G royal dynasty. The exact difference between the terms Shelvings and Inglings^G is unclear, but the first may have referred to the old royal family in Sweden, while the latter to the Norwegian branch which claimed descent from the former. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: Hindle 15, 20
 - Swedes (ON. svíar, OE. swéon, PNWGmc. swihanín*) The tribe around the Mälar valley in eastern Sweden. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
 - Thurses (sg. Thurse; ON. þurs, OE. þyrs, OS. thuris, OHG. duris, PNWGmc. þurisa*R)
 Possibly a poetic synonym for Ettins^G. See also Rime-Thurses^G. Noted members:
 TODO Attestations: Wal 8, Shr 31, 35, 36, Hyme 17, Thr 5, 10, 21, 24, 29, 30, Alw 2, I HHb 40, HHw 27.
 - Tues (ON. tívar, PNWGmc. *tíwór) A poetic synonym for Gods^G. Attestations: TODO
 - Wanes (ON. vanir, OE. wan-?) A subgroup or tribe of the gods, associated with fertility, harvests and fishing. Noted members: Nearth^P, Ing^P, Frow^P Attestations: TODO
- Yivickings (ON. gjúkungar) The descendants of Yivick^P, including Guthhere^P, Guthrun^P and Hain^P. Attestations: TODO

1.4 Place names, locations and events (L)

Ettinham (ON. Jotunheimr, Jotnaheimr) The 'Ettin^G-Home^C' or 'home of the Ettins'; the eastern realm of chaotic and inhospitable beings. See also Eastway^L, Outyard^L.

- Hell (ON. hel, PNWGmc. *halju, Got. halja) The underworld, personfied as and formally identical with Hell^P. After Christianity the word came to refer to the Christian hell (= Gehenna), as is the case in all attested languages apart from the Old Norse. See also Nivelhell^L.
- Middenyard (ON. Miògaròr, OE. Middangeard, OS. Middilgard, OHG. Mittilgart, Got. midjungards) The 'middle enclosure'; the realm of men. See also Osyard^L, Outyard^L.
 - Nivelhell (ON. niflhęl) 'Mist-Hell', from the poetic evidence it seems like it may originally have been a synonym for Hell^L. In poetry it is attested in Webthrithner TODO: níu kom'k hęima |hld fyr Niflhel neðan, hinig deyja ór helju halir. 'into nine homes I came, beneath Nivelhell; thither die men out of Hell', the second by Dreams 2: reið niðr þaðan |hld niflheljar til; mótti hvelpi, |hld þeim's ór helju kom. '[Weden] rode down thence to Nivel-hell; met the whelp that out of Hell came.' Possibly the distinction was held by the first poet but not the second.
 - Osyard (ON. $\acute{A}sgar\eth r$) The 'enclosure of the Ease^G'; the heavenly realm. See also Middenyard^L, Outyard^L.
 - Outyards (ON. Útgarŏar) Not eddic. The 'outer enclosures', described in Yilfer. See also Ettinham^L, Middenyard^L, Osyard^L.
- Rakes of the Reins (ON. ragna rok) The 'fates of the Reins^G', euphemism for the destruction of the world.
- Rakes of the Tues (ON. tíva rǫk) The Rakes of the Reins^L.
 - Up-heaven (ON. Upphiminn, OE. Upheofon, OS. Upphimil, OHG. úfhimil) Highest heaven. See also Earth and Up-heaven^L.
