Introduction to Eddic poetry

Don't go too indepth on individual poems! Each one will have its own introduction.

Notes to English translation

Point about literal translation for use by scholars of comparative mythology The "guiding star" of this translation effort has been literality and consistency. All previous translations (to my knowledge) have such issues as: rendering identically repeated phrases differently at various places; covering up or obscuring technical and cultural terminology; simplifying kennings and other expressions—and this often without notes, to a point where the original meaning is, at times, unrecognizable. While I wholly encourage all readers of sufficient interest to study Old Norse (and other ancient Germanic languages!), perhaps even using this edition as a tool, I also realize that this is a demanding ask which not all interested students and scholars of comparative mythology, anthropology, literature, religion and other fields will be able to fulfill. I therefore want these groups to be able to have a text that is as close to the original as possible, at the very least when it regards sense and expression.

Anglish proper nouns

One of the most idiosyncratic parts of this edition will be its handling of proper nouns. I have opted to render all cultural and religious terms, names of places, heroes, gods, and other entities by their English cognates (thus Thunder for Old Norse Pórr) and where such do not exist, their philologically expected English (Anglish) forms (e.g. wallow for Old Norse volva). One reason for this is ideological. I believe that these myths and poems are a common Germanic or Northern European heritage, and should be treated as such. The English once knew gods such as Weden and Thunder, and called them by names naturally evolved in their language. So too did the Germans and Scandinavians, of course, and I would hope that any translators into those languages would follow this spirit and render the names in their natural forms there as well.<sup>1</sup> Another is philological. Forms like Odin and Thor are, while now commonly accepted, abberant. They do not even represent the Old Norse pronunciation as accurate as would be possible (for instance, Odin would be better anglicized as Othin), and many are difficult for English speakers to pronounce.

Notes to critical edition

My goal with the critical editing of the texts has been to produce something as close to the original manuscripts as possible, without excessive emendation to the preserved recension(s). There are texts in three (TODO) languages in this edition, these being Old Norse, Old English and Old High German. Old Norse texts have been normalized according to roughly the same orthography as Finnur Jónsson (1932). On the other hand the Old High German and Old English texts have only been lightly normalized, correcting obvious errors and marking vowel length with acute accents. For further information see below.

Normalization

Normalization of Old Norse

The orthography is inspired by Finnur Jónsson (1932) in that it strives for a more archaic form than the manuscripts, one that accords with the date at which the poetry may been composed. The standard is more similar to that of the First Grammatical Treatise (see (First Grammarian, 1950)) than the standard Old Icelandic orthography seen in most editions. Thus we for consistency make use of  $\delta$  and  $\delta$  archer than the traditional  $\delta$  and  $\delta$ , to represent the result of i-umlaut on Proto-Norse  $\delta$  and  $\delta$ . Superfluous and hypermetrical pronouns (usually  $\delta$  hann,  $\delta$  hann,  $\delta$  have in many places been removed. When metrically beneficient  $\delta$  T, and  $\delta$  (particle) 'which, that, where, when',  $\delta$  (3rd sg. pres. ind. of  $\delta$  have been contracted to  $\delta$  and  $\delta$ .

Manuscripts

Eddic poetry

There are two surviving ancient manuscripts which contain full Eddic poems.

The first and most important is GKS 2365 4to, here R. It dates to the 1270s and has 45 surviving leaves, containing TODO poems. Of these 10 are mythological, and the rest heroic, dealing with legends mostly of the Migration Period. Notably, following fol. 32, there is a large gap of missing pages. This occurs in the heroic section, specifically cutting off Sighdrive. It is unclear how many leaves and poems went missing. R is not just a compilation of poems, it shows editorial input as well. Several of the mythological poems are separated by short prose sections, which tie them together into a loose frame narrative, though it is clear from their style and composition that they are originally separate works. When it comes to the heroic poems long prose sections occur both within and between them, creating a saw<sup>C</sup>-like narrative where the prose in many cases holds up the poetry, rather than the reverse. For further literature see TODO.

The second manuscript is AM 748 I a 4to, here A. It dates to the 1300s and has just 6 leaves. A, as we have it, contains only mythological poems, and in a different order from R; it has no frame narrative. On the first two leaves are contained Hoarbeard (which lacks its beginning), Dreams and Shirner (lacking its ending). After this some number of leaves have gone missing, but the other four leaves follow eachother. On them we find Webthrithner (lacking its beginning), Grimner Hymer and the prose introduction of Wayland. A is the only medieval manuscript attesting Dreams, and further its other poems are not copied from R, but rather derive from a shared ancestor. This fact makes it very valuable for textual criticism. For further literature see TODO.

Some Eddic poems survive only in younger paper manuscripts. These being: TODO. While I have not consulted the paper mss. for poems attested in medieval mss., I have had to rely on them for these poems. Their exclusive survival there does not necessarily prove them works of late antiquarians; had we not been fortunate enough to have Dreams in A, it would have been counted among them, yet we now know that it is truly ancient. It is not an impossibility that other poems now only found in paper mss. would have survived in now lost medieval mss., perhaps even in the lost pages of R or A.

Finally several Eddic poems are quoted in Yilfer, these being (TODO): WSpae, Webthrithner, Grimner. It also contains a few fragments, which have also been edited. For Yilfer I have relied on the following four main mss.:

- 1. The Codex Regius of the Prose Edda S (GKS 2367 4to; 1300-1350)
- 2. The Codex Trajectinus T (Traj 1374; a c. 1595 paper copy of a ms. closely related to S.)

- 3. The Codex Wormianus W (AM 242 fol.; 1340-70)
- 4. The Codex Upsaliensis U (DG 11; 1300-25)

For sake of brevity I refer to these four collectively as G, which is thus equivalent to STWU. I refer to Haukur Porgeirsson (2017) for discussion on their internal stemmatics and origins.

West Germanic poetry

As none of the West Germanic poems edited here (TODO: Will we be editing other poems than Hildebrandslied?) survive in more than one copy, the specific details of their transmission is discussed in their individual Introductions.

The Spae<sup>C</sup> of the Wallow<sup>C</sup> is the most comprehensive mythological text surviving from Heathen times. It takes the form of the monologue by a wallow (volva 'seeress, sibyl, prophetess'), summoned by Weden in order to relate mythological knowledge. In this it fits closely with poems such as Webthrithner, Grimner, Dreams Sighdrive and Allwise, but also differs from them in several ways: it is not a dialogue or riddle contest (this it shares with Grimner), the meter is in Fornwordslaw, and it gives an otherwise unparalleled chronological overview of the mythology.

Still, events are related in a highly allusive fashion, and not all references are clear. There may also be gaps and later inserts that obscure the understanding of the whole.

The poem is attested in full in two independent recensions. The first is R (GKS 2365 4to; 1270s), where it is the first poem, found on folios 1r–3r. Second is Hawksbook, H (AM 544 4to; 1300–75), where it is found at 20r–21r in the middle of a large collection of saws and Catholics works. Many verses are also cited in Yilfer, which here has the general siglum G—to avoid confusion, it is only used when all employed witness mss. agree. See further the General Introduction.

The poem begins with a bid for silence (1), and the wallow recalling her earliest memories (2). She then recounts the ordering of the world by the gods (3–6) and the golden age of peace and plenty (7–8), which is, however, interrupted by the intrusion of three unidentified ettin-maidens (8, and see note there). After this follow two verses about the shaping of the dwarfs (9–10), and then several originally separate dwarf-tallies (11–15), which are without doubt later inserts. Returning to the main narrative thread is described the creation and endowment of the first man and woman (16–17), the Ash of Ugdrassle (18), and the three norns<sup>G</sup> living under it (19).

This is where the two full recensions of the poem diverge. Because of its older age and larger count of verses I have here followed the order of R: the wallow recalls how a woman named Goldwey was sacrificed and reborn three times (20), and how she, under the name Heath, practiced sorcery and witchcraft (21). She then recalls the first war in the world, between the Ease and Wanes (22–23), and alludes to the slaying of the smith, who according to Yilfer 42 was promised Frow<sup>P</sup> and the sun and moon in exchange for building the wall of Osyard (24–25). This is followed by a cryptic verse describing Homedall's hidden silence or hearing (26).

In H the structure is quite different. After the description of the norns (19), the Ease go to decide what action to take regarding the promising of Frow to the ettin (my 24-25), and Homedall's hearing is described (26). Then follows the two verses about the old hag in Ironwood who raises the wolves that will swallow the sun and moon (40-41). After this come verses 20–23 in the same order as R (see above).

To illustrate the differences between mss., and which verses are attested in which, I have prepared the following table showing the order of verses by manuscript, compared to this edition. As most verses in G are quoted on their own, and have little relation to the original order, these are simply marked with plus signs. When verses are quoted in a series, they are preceded by an alphabetically incrementing letter denoting which series they belong to.

When there is a major difference in a ms. relative to the ed., such as in v. 10 where G omits the first two lines, it is then marked with a star. The verses beginning with  $\not\!\! Da$  gingu regin old 'Then went the Reins all' are represented by the following sentence.

<sup>2</sup> meiri ok minni 'greater and lesser'] It is unclear what is being modified. It may either be "greater and lesser holy kindreds", in which case it may be equivalent to the phrase Ease and Elves<sup>G</sup> (both earthly and heavenly supernatural beings; see Index for occurences.) or "the greater and lesser sons of Homedall", in which case it refers to all social classes. In any case the wallow is asking all intelligent beings that may be present for silence, and the expression is a merism of the type 'gods and men'; see West (2007)[99-100].

<sup>a</sup>Cf. Righ, wherein Righ, identified by the prose as Homedall, sires three castes of men (namely earls, churls and thralls).

<sup>b</sup>Cf. Webthrithner 34, 35 with very similar phrasing. The whole introductory formula is positively Indo-European, see West (2007)[63,92-93,312].

<sup>4</sup> or brimi ... lęggjum] I think that the poem simply telling of "the bloody surf" and "the blue-black legs" fits better with its general allusive style, but the resulting composite reading may be somewhat controversial.

&lt;sup>a</sup>According to Yilfer 14 the dwarfs first originated as maggots in the corpse of Yimer, whose bones are described in Grimner TODO and Webthrithner TODO as being used to make rocks. Dwarfs dwell in the rocks and earth; cf. for instance IngT 2, where the Swedish king Swayther (Sveigðir disappears into a rock in pursuit of a dwarf.

More difficult to explain is the creation of dwarfs out of Yimer's blood (which according to Grimner TODO and Webthrithner TODO is the sea), since dwarfs are never said to dwell in water. — If one chooses the reading Bláinn 'Blown' (named in the thules<sup>C</sup> as a dwarf) instead of blóum 'blue-black', then following Gurevich (Skp 2017, p. 693) one may see a kenning "the legs of Blown <dwarf> [STONE]". Blown has otherwise been read as a poetic name for Yimer, but that is never attested elsewhere.

3–4 þeir ... sagði "They ... said."] There are two conflicting forms of the verse. Either the dwarfs were created on their own; this is supported by the prose of Yilfer (see note to last v.) and by the form of its verse. On the other hand, both R and H have the "worthiest" dwarfs Moodsowner and Dorn shaping "man-likenesses" out of soil. I have gone with the latter reading, but both should be considered.

Two lists of dwarfs. That both belonged to the original poem is impossible, since several names (Oakenshield, Great-grandfather) appear in both. The three following verses seem to belong together, since there is no repetition of names. From the last line of the middle one, it seems that it should have been placed at the end of the group.

&lt;sup>b</sup>After the sun is swallowed. But since the wallow does not tell us that this is a different wolf (it seems rather it be one and the same), it may reflect an earlier version of the myth, where one son of Fenner swallowed both the sun and moon. Yet, according to Webthrithner 36-37 it is Fenner himself who will swallow the sun (and thus likely the moon as well,) unless it there be taken as a poetic synonym for 'wolf' (which undoubtedly is its original meaning). TODO

&lt;sup>a</sup>gagl 'wild goose', maybe here referring to carrion-eating ravens? Possibly the same as Ironwood.

1 manngi] manni RA is impossible; a nominative is needed

bThe rjúfendr 'renders' are presumably Surt and Lock with his children, as described in WSpae 40 ff. The root rjúf- 'CV: to break, rip up, break a hole in' is also used in this context in Webthrithner TODO: pá's rjúfask regin 'when the Reins<sup>G</sup> are rent', Grimner 4, Lock TODO and Sighdrive TODO: unz (of) rjúfask regin 'until the Reins are rent', all of which attest to this formula. Related is likely also.

Late verses in paper manuscripts? TODO

The Speeches of the High One is the second poem of R, which is also the only ancient manuscript in which it is attested. Several verses are however cited in other places, such as Eyv Hák (TODO: formatting) 21 and FbrS TODO.

The poem as it currently comes down to us hardly seems like a single composition, much rather like a grab bag of traditional verses and poems associated with the god Weden. It combines two separate advice-poems with verses concerning Weden's love adventures, runes and spells. Little unites these various strands other than their speaker.

Following previous authors, I identify several such strands, excepting various lone insertverses. In this edition each of them is given a separate, short introduction:

- 1–79 The Guest-strand, containing practical life advice placed within a frame narrative of a guest arriving at a homestead.
- 81-89 Other verses of advice, mostly composed in Fornwordslaw.
- 90-109 Weden's love adventures, advice for love and seduction.
- 110–135 The Speeches of Loddfathomer (Loddfafnismǫl), advice given to Loddfathomer.
- 136–144 The Rune-tally (Rúnatal), various verses relating to runes.
- 145–163 The Leed-tally (Ljóðatal), Weden's listing of 18 spells.
- 164 Final verse, composed when the poem as we have it was assembled.

Whatever their origins, it is clear from the final verse that they have been thought of as a single work, but it is notable that this verse, which also contains the title  $H\acute{a}vam\acute{\rho}l$  'Speeches of the High One', is highly metrically irregular. It has likely been composed by the person who assembled the disparate elements listed above into one text.

1.1 The Guest-strand

The Guest-Strand (Old Norse: Gestaþáttr) is possibly the finest work in Norse poetry. Sadly, its structure has been obscured by various inserted and possibly displaced verses. My hope is to shed some light on the original vision behind the poem, while as usual not changing the order of verses as they appear in the only surviving witness manuscript.

The poem moves through many elements of life, but in a poetically almost seamless way. To move from one topic to another, the poet often employs transitions where a verse recalls the structure of the previous one, but with a new subject. This is particularly evident in verses 4–5 and 10–11.

The strand begins with a verse encouraging travellers to be wary of entering strange houses without first spying out who is inside (1), after which a voice inside of a farmstead

(possibly Weden?) announces that a guest is waiting to be let in (2). The same speaker then lists several things which the newly arrived guest needs from the host, namely: fire, food and clothes (3), water, a towel, a great welcome, a good reception, an opportunity to speak and silence in return (4).

After this focus shifts to the conduct of the wanderer, with an introductory verse explaining that he needs wit (specifically manwit<sup>C</sup> (manvit); see Index), lest he become a laughing-stock (5). He should be silent but attentive, and choose his words carefully (6–7). He should be confident in himself and his own decisions, and not rely too much on the opinions of others (8–9), since there is nothing better one may bring along on the journey than much manwit (10).

Here the advice moves to the subject alcohol. Where the best thing one may bring along on the journey is manwit, the worst is too much ale (11). It is not as good as men call it (12) since it "robs [them] of their senses". It is even personified as a "heron of forgetfulness" (13). Thusly drinking round is best when the participants do not drink too much, but rather regain their senses afterwards (14).

Without a transition the poet moves to war.

&lt;sup>a</sup>There is a well thought-out linear progression throughout this verse. The guest must first wash himself, then dry himself with a towel, then be welcomed to sit and eat at the table and speak with the host. The host has done his part, and now it is the guest's turn. This nicely leads the transition to the following verses, where the proper conduct of the guest (first in speech, and then in various other areas) is discussed.

Of his thinking should man not be boastful; rather guarding of his senses, when sharp and silent he comes to a homestead; sudden injury seldom strikes the wary, (for thou gettest never an unfickler friend, than much manwit<sup>C</sup>.)

5–6 því ... mikit] The shift in person from third to second, along with the abnormal verse length (six lines instead of four), indicates that this is an insertion.

&lt;sup>a</sup>Here drunkenness is personified as a bird, a "heron of forgetfulness".

1.6 The Rune-Tally

These verses are labelled as Rúnatals þáttr (The strand of the Runecount) in younger Eddic paper manuscripts. Many give an archaic, pagan impression. It is as if they were drawn from the lips of an Odinic priest.

1.7 The Leed-Tally

This final section of the poem has fittingly been called the Leed-Tally (Ljóðatal). The speaker (certainly Weden) recounts eighteen spells, aristocratic and Odinic in character; they deal with such things as healing (2, 12), battle (3, 4, 5, 8, 11, 13), countering sorcery (6, 10), stilling the elements (7, 9), and seduction (16, 17).

In particular the fourth spell bears a strong likeness to the first Merseburg charm.

&lt;sup>a</sup>Identical wording (biŏja 'to bid; to pray': blóta 'to bloot; to sacrifice'; senda 'to send': sóa 'to soo; to slay') reveals this v.'s relation with the previous one. — The sense seems to be that it is better not to sacrifice at all than to sacrifice in excess, since even a small sacrifice will be rewarded. An unusual piece of practical wisdom.

The Speeches of Grimner are preserved whole in both R and A.

The structure of the poem is mostly clear; the first three verses set the stage, repeating some of what we got in the prose. It is certain that Weden is the speaker. After this various lore is touched on, not always clearly. In this the poem aligns closely with ones such as Webthrithner Sighdrive and Allwise.

First are listed the halls of the gods (4–17), though the numbering does not seem to agree with the count of locations mentioned. Then the conditions and surroundings of Weden's animals and hall are elaborated on (18–23). Mentioned are the preparation of food (18), his wolves (19) and ravens (20), the river through which dead men have to wade (21), the gate through which they have to pass (22), the count of doors in the hall (23) and the two animals who gnaw on the branches of the tree (25–26). We then have a long list of rivers (28–30) and horses ridden by the gods (31). Then is told of the conditions and animals of Ugdrassle (32–36).

Thereafter follow several discordant verses. A list of Walkirries (37), the progression of the sun and moon (38–40), the first bloot<sup>C</sup> and creation of the world from Yimer's body (41–42), the significance of the bloot for men in the present (43), the creation of the ship Shidebladner (44) and finally a list of the noblest of several categories of things and groups (45).

After all of this Weden utters an unclear verse invoking the gods (46), before listing many of his names and the circumstances in which they were used (47–50). He then turns to Garfrith, disappointed by the inhospitality and poor conduct of his former protégé, and predicts his imminent death (51–53). He finally reveals himself by his true name, daring Garfrith to face him (53). After this he repeats several of his names (54), and the poem ends

In the final prose section we are told that Garfrith tripped and fell on his sword, after which his son Eyner ruled for a long time.

Frá sonum Hrauðungs konungs

From the sons of king Reeding

BPG BPA Hrauðungr konungr átti tvá sonu. Hét annarr Agnarr, enn annarr Geirrøðr. BPA Agnarr var tíu vetra enn Geirrøðr átta vetra. Þeir reru tveir á báti með dorgar sínar at smáfiski. BPA Vindr rak þá í haf út. Í náttmyrkri brutu þeir við land ok gingu upp; fundu kotbónda einn. BPA Þar vóru þeir um vetrinn. Kerling fostraði Agnar enn karl Geirrøð. BPA At vári fekk karl þeim skip. Enn er þau kerling leiddu þá til strandar, þá mélti karl einméli við Geirrøð. BPA Þeir fengu byr ok kvómu til stoðva foður síns. Geirrøðr var fram í skipi. BPA Hann hljóp upp á land enn hratt út skipinu, ok mélti: "Far þú þar er smyl hafi þik." BPA Skipit rak út. Enn Geirrøðr gekk út til bójar; hánum var vel fagnat; þá var faðir hans andaðr. BPA Var þá Geirrøðr til konungs tekinn, ok varð maðr ágétr.

BPB King Reeding owned two sons. One was called Eyner, and the other Garfrith. BPB Eyner was ten winters old, and Garfrith eight winters. The two were rowing in a boat with their trolling-lines for small fishing. BPB Wind then drove them out into the sea. In the darkness of night they crashed into land and walked up; they found a single cottage-farmer.

BPB There they were about the winter. The wife fostered Eyner, but the husband Garfrith. BPB At spring the man gave them ships, but when they and the farmer's wife brought them to the shore, the husband spoke privately with Garfrith. BPB They got a good gust, and came to their father's harbour. Garfrith was in the front of the ship. BPB He leapt up onto land and pushed out the ship, and spoke: "Go thou where the smil<sup>G</sup> may have thee." BPB The ship drove out. But Garfrith walked towards the farm; he was welcomed well; his father was by then ended. BPB Then was Garfrith taken as king, and became an excellent man. EPG

BPG BPA Óðinn ok Frigg sátu í Hliðskjǫlfu ok sá um heima alla. BPA Óðinn mélti: Sér þú Agnar fóstra þinn, hvar hann elr bǫrn við gýgi í hellinum? BPA En Geirrøðr, fóstri minn, er konungr ok sitr nú at landi. BPA Frigg segir: Hann er matníðingr sá at hann kvelr gesti sína ef hánum þykkja ofmargir koma. BPA Óðinn segir at þat er in mesta lygi. Þau veðja um þetta mál. BPA Frigg sendi eskismey sína, Fullu, til Geirrøðar. Hon bað konung varask at eigi fyrgerði hánum fjǫlkunnigr maðr sá er þar var kominn í land ok sagði þat mark á at engi hundr var svá ólmr at á hann myndi hlaupa. Hann kvað:

BPB Weden and Frie sat in Litheshelf<sup>G</sup> and looked about all the Homes. BPB Weden spoke: Seest thou Eyner thy foster-son, where he begets children with the troll-woman in the cave? BPB But Garfrith, my foster-son, is king and now sits at land. BPB Frie says: "He is such a meat-nithing that he tortures his guests if he judges too many are coming." BPB Weden says that this is the greatest lie; they make a wager about this matter. BPB Frie sent her handmaid Full to Garfrith's. She asked the king to be wary, that he might not be ended by that feel-cunning<sup>C</sup> man who was come in the land, and said that his sign was that no hound was so fierce that he would leap at him. BPB But that was the greatest vainglory that Garfrith would not be meat-good, and yet he has that man seized, whom the hounds would not touch. BPB He was clad in a blue cloak, and called himself Grimner, and did not tell any more about himself, even though he was interrogated. BPB The king had him tortured so that he would speak, and set him between two fires, and he remained there for eight nights. BPB King Garfrith had a son ten winters old, and he was named Eyner after his brother. BPB Eyner walked up to Grimner, and gave him a full horn to drink, saying that the king did ill as he had him tortured without cause. BPB Grimner drank from it; then the fire had come such that the cloak burned on Grimner. He quoth: EPG

The favour of Woulder<sup>C</sup>—and of all the gods—has each who first touches the fire; for the Homes<sup>C</sup> become open o'er the sons of the Ease, when the cauldrons are heaved off.<sup>a</sup>

<sup>a</sup>This verse is one of the most difficult in the poem, and many interpretations have been made (for a summary see Nordberg (2005)). Finnur Jónsson (1932) and Sijmons and Gering (p. 208, TODO) interpret this verse as relating to the frame narrative, with Weden still bound between the two fires, wishing for the gods to rescue him. This, however, scarcely makes sense given its placement in the middle of various gnomic verses. I believe instead (and here I agree with (Nordberg, 2005)) that the verse refers to the cooking and eating of sacred stew in large cauldrons during the bloot<sup>C</sup>, and Woulder's role in the setting of the ritual fire (see Index and (af Edholm, 2009)). This interpretation is especially interesting in that this verse immediately follows two verses dealing with the primordial sacrifice of Yimer to create the world. This shows that the bloot was viewed as a ritual reenactment of the creation of the world by the gods (and indeed a continuation of that creation), something that is well attested comparatively (see (Lincoln, 1986), especially the first two chs., for its Indo-European analogues).

<sup>b</sup>Regaining the hammer is of such importance to the gods (cf. v. 17; without it the Ease stand powerless against the Ettins<sup>G</sup>), that Frow would lend the feather-hame to the greedy and untrusty Lock, even if it were made out of solid gold or silver.

Flew then Lock—the feather-hame rustled—until outside he came of the homes of the Ettins, and inside he came of the yards of the Ease. He met Thunder in the middle of the yards, and he [= Thunder] that word first of all did say:

[Thunder quoth:]

- 10 "Hefir þú ørendi · sem erfiði?
- Segőu á lopti · long tíðendi!
   Opt sitjanda · sogur of fallask

"I have an errand, hardship also: Thrim has thy hammer, the lord of Thurses; it no man will fetch again, unless he bring him Frow as wife."

12 Ganga þeir fagra · Freyju at hitta

Then quoth that Thrim, the lord of Thurses: "Stand ye up, ettins, and strew the benches! Now bring me Frow as wife; the daughter of Nearth of the Nowetowns."

&lt;sup>a</sup>Assuming this is the correct reading, it would seem like the group has spent the whole night at sea, with Hymer being the only one rowing.

<sup>4</sup> eitt hormeitiö "one ... flax-cutting"] A very obscure kenning. La Farge and Tucker (1992) give several interpretations, viz. <code>eitr-hor-meitir</code> 'poison-rope-cutter [SNAKE > WINTER]', <code>eitr-orm-meitir</code> 'poison-worm-injurer' [WINTER]. The solution with the minimal amount of emendation is to read <code>eitt</code> 'one' as modifying <code>olio</code> 'ale-feast', and <code>hverjan</code> 'every' as modifying <code>hor-meitio</code> 'flax-cutting', a compound made up of <code>horr</code> 'flax, cord' and <code>meita</code> 'to cut' and referring to an obscure harvest festival. The interpretation is by no means certain.

Eagre<sup>P</sup>, who by another name is called Gymer<sup>P</sup>, had prepared an ale-feast for the Ease when he had got the great kettle as now is told.<sup>a</sup>

Then the Ease shook their shields and screamed at Lock,<sup>e</sup> and chased him away to the forest, but then they went to drink. Lock came back and found Elder outside; Lock greeted him:

"Of their weapons they converse, and of their fight-valiance, the sons of the victory-Tues [GODS]; of the Ease and Elves which are here within, none is thee a friend in words."

4 manngi ... vinr "none ... words."] i.e. "none of them say anything good about you." — The (lack of) alliteration here is very notable, and also occurs in v. 10. Both of these verses are otherwise perfect, and so it may be that v/w/ is rarely alliterating with the vowel. While this is never seen in Scoldish poetry, it could have been delegated to the simpler Eddic styles. Alternatively the poem is of such age that it was composed before the North Germanic loss of /w-/ before rounded vowels. This is supported by the fact that in both this verse and v. 10 the words that alliterate with /w-/ have cognates in other Germanic languages that begin with /w-/, in the case of ulfr in v. 10 this consonant is well attested in old runic inscriptions. To be clear, this retention does not require dating the whole poem to the Proto-Norse period; perhaps the poet was aware of the change which had taken place a few generations before him, and employed it as an archaism. For metrical reasons it must certainly post-date the syncope period (in the 6th century), but we know from the transitional 7th century Blekinge runestones from Stentoften (DR 357), Gummarp (DR 358) and Istaby (DR 359) that syncope occurred before the loss of /w-/ anyway. ### Shirner quoth:

- 5 "Muni þína · hykk-a svá mikla vesa,
- 2 at þú mér seggr né segir; ungir saman · vórum í árdaga,

"Thy delights I do not think so large, that thou to me, man, oughtst not to say them. Young together were we in days of yore; we two might well trust each other."

Free quoth:

- 6 "Í Gymis gọrðum · ek ganga sá
- 2 mér tíða męy; armar lýstu, · ęn af þaðan
- 4 allt lopt ok lǫgr."

"In Gymer's yards I saw walking a maiden, dear to me. The arms shone, but thereof all the air and sea."

- 7 "Mér es mér tíðari · an manna hveim
- ungum í árdaga; ása ok alfa · þat vill engi maðr,

<sup>2</sup> seggr 'man', originally 'messenger'] Here used in reference to Free's addressing Shirner as seggr hinn ungi 'the young man'. Shirner points out that the two are of equal age, so Free is as much of a young man as he.

4 at vit sátt séim."

"The maiden is dearer to me than to any young man in days of yore. Of the Ease and Elves<sup>G</sup> no man<sup>a</sup> wants that we two be reconciled."

It is likely that a verse is missing here, where Free asks Shirner to go to fetch the maiden for him.

Shirner quoth:

- 8 "Mar gef mér þá, · es mik of myrkvan beri
- visan vafrloga,
  - ok þat sverð, · es sjalft vegisk
- 4 við jotna étt."

"Then give me the steed, which might bear me over the dark, wise wavering-flame; and that sword, which by itself might strike against the aught<sup>C</sup> of the Ettins<sup>G</sup>."

Free quoth:

- 9 "Mar þér þann gef'k, · es þik of myrkvan berr
- vísan vafrloga, ok þat sverð, · es sjalft mun vegask, ef sá 's horskr es hefr."

"That steed I give thee, which bears thee over the dark, wise wavering-flame; and that sword, which by itself will strike, if he is wise who owns it."

1–3 berr 'bears'; mun vegask, ef sá 's horskr es hefr 'will strike, if he is wise who owns it'] Responding, Free switches out the subjunctive verb forms ("might bear [...] might strike"), giving a sense of certainity and authority. The steed and sword are faultless, and if Shirner fails on the mission, it would be only due to his own fault.

Shirner spoke with the horse:

- 10 "Myrkt es úti, · mál kveð'k okr fara
  - úrig fjǫll yfir þursa þjóð yfir;
  - 4 báðir vit komumk · eða okr báða tekr sá hinn ámátki jotunn."

"Tis dark outside; I call it time for us two to journey: over the drizzling mountains, over the people of the Thurses<sup>G</sup>. Both two we come, or us both that terrifying ettin takes.<sup>a</sup>"

4 ámátki jotunn 'terrifying ettin'] Formulaic. ámáttigr 'terrifying' seems to have a supernatural connotation, and only occurs in four other places in the Poetic Edda: in WSpae 8, Grimner 11 and HHarw 17 it is paired with jotunn 'ettin', while in HHarw 14 it describes a man with clearly supernatural attributes.

BPG BPASkírnir reið i Jotunheima til Gymis garða; þar váru hundar ólmir ok bundnir fyrir skíðgarðs hliði þess, er um sal Gerðar var. Hann reið at þar, er féhirðir sat á haugi, ok kvaddi hann: EPA

&quot;Of nine mothers am I a lad, of nine sisters am I a son."

The Lay of Wayland (Wayland) is a story of immense psychological complexity, one of the greatest masterpieces of Norse poetry.

The poem begins with a prose introduction, which survives in both R and A.

Wayland gets his revenge on the whole royal household. He murders Nithad's two young sons (affectionately, his "bear-cubs") and thus ends his male lineage. Likewise he defangs Nithad's "cunning wife" (she is never called anything else) by reducing her once powerful counsels to cold words; and finally he rapes Beadhild, depriving her of her maidenhood and value in marriage. They are thus reduced to the same state of complete powerlessness as he himself experienced, something clearly seen in the repetition of the adjective viljalauss 'powerless'; in v. 12 it describes Wayland after he wakes in shackles, but in v. 31 Nithad uses it to refer to his own mental state after the deaths of his sons. This sense of hopelessness is also seen in Beadhild's haunting concluding speech. "I knew by naught struggle against him; I could by naught struggle against him."

From the other versions of the story it is known that Beadhild gave birth to a son, Woody (Old English Wudga, ThedS Viðga, in Danish ballads Vidrik Verlandsøn). He went on to become a great hero, and in the later heroic ballads by far eclipses his father. His birth seems heavily foreshadowed by Wayland forcing Nithad to swear an oath in v. 33, but he is nowhere directly mentioned in the poem, probably for artistic reasons.

Apart from this lay there is one other telling of the full story, namely the Strand of Wayland the Smith in ThedS. While written in Old Norse, it is clear from the proper names and content that it is based on German sources (probably heroic ballads). Thus the native form Volundr is replaced with Velent [sic], Niðuðr with Niðungr. Interestingly there is a note within it showing that the native form was still known, namely about "Velent, the excellent smith, whom Warrings (Væringjar) call Wayland (Volundr)". Apparently Wayland was so famous that "all men seem to praise his workmanship so, that the maker of any smith's work which is made better than other works, is called a Wayland (Volundr) with regards to workmanship."

Far more stark than minor differences of language is that of tone. The psychological complexity and tension of the older redaction is almost entirely gone: Wayland is no longer a mysterious wild man, but a chivalrous knight who can escape from any peril through his ingenuity and craftmanship. He is not captured due to Nithad's greed or hamstrung due to the suspicion of his cruel wife, but rather a loyal servant of Nithad's, banished from the kingdom after defending himself against the king's steward and hamstrung after being caught attempting to poison his food in revenge.

Frustratingly the personality of Beadhild is entirely expulged. She is the anonymous "king's daughter", an unnamed virgin (jungfrú, a borrowing from Low German) who is peacefully seduced by Wayland and quickly falls in love with him. Likewise the person of Nithad's cunning wife is completely gone, and the murder of his sons no longer ends his lineage, since he has another, older son who survives him and takes over the kingdom. Wayland still flies away laughing after telling Nithad what he has done, but only four years (his son with Beadhild is three years old) later reconciliates with Nithad's son, retrieves Beadhild and their son and lives a long life as a famous craftsman.

With this it is clearly seen that the story by the time of the ThedS had been heavily distorted, a tragic victim of medieval romantic sensibilities. It does not have any high literary value, but is of interest since it shows the wide reception and variation of the narrative.

Finally there are also traces of the story in the Anglo-Saxon tradition, where it is alluded to in both Walder and Dear, the latter of which particularly emphasising the powerlessness felt by Wayland and Beadhild (thus being much closer in spirit to Wayland than ThedS). Some of it is also depicted on the early 8th century Frank's casket, where it is as prominent as the depiction of the Adoration of the Magi—a true testament to the weight with which it was regarded within that culture.

To illustrate the narrative correspondences and differences of the various redactions, I present the following table:

BPB Nithad was named a king in Sweden. BPB He owned two sons and one daughter;

she was called Beadhild. BPB There were three brothers, the sons of a king of the Finns. BPB One was called Slayfinn, another Agle, the third Wayland. BPB They travelled on skis and hunted wild animals. They came into the Wolfdales and made for themselves houses there. BPB There is a water there, called Wolfsea. BPB Early in the morning they found on the lake-shore three women, and they were spinning linen. BPB By them were their swan-hames<sup>C</sup>; they were Walkirries. BPB Two of them were the daughters of king Ladwigh: Ladguth Swanwhite and Harware Allwit, the third was Alerune, daughter of Kear<sup>P</sup> of Walland<sup>Ga</sup>. BPB The brothers brought the maidens with them to their halls. Agle got Alerune, but Slayfinn Swanwhite, but Wayland Allwit. BPB They lived there for seven winters, then they left to attend battles, and did not return. BPB Then Agle left on skis to look for Alerune, but Slayfinn sought out Swanwhite; but Wayland stayed in the Wolfdales. BPB He was the most skilled craftsman, as men know, in the ancient saws. BPB King Nithad had him captured, about which this has been sung: EPG

- 1 Męyjar flugu sunnan · Myrkvið í gognum
- alvitr ungar, · ørlǫg drýgja; þér á sévarstrǫnd · settusk at hvílask
- drósir suðrønar, · dýrt lín spunnu.

Maidens flew from the south through Mirkwood<sup>a</sup>—young allwits<sup>b</sup>—to fulfill orlay<sup>C</sup>. They on the lake-shore set down to rest; the southern ladies span expensive linen.

- 2 Ein nam þeira · Egil at verja
- 2 fogr mér fira · faðmi ljósum. Onnur vas Svanhvít, · svanfjaðrar dró,
- [...]
  ęn hin þriðja · þeira systir varði hvítan · hals Volundar.

One of them began—the fair maiden of men—to ward Agle by her light bosom. Another was Swanwhite—her swan-feathers she pulled; but the third sister warded the white throat of Wayland.

   ęn hinn níunda · nauðr of skilði,
- 4 męyjar fýstusk · á myrkvan við, alvitr ungar · ørlǫg drýgja.

Then they stayed for seven winters at that, but all the eighth they yearned, but the ninth did need divorce them: the maidens longed for the mirky wood: the young allwits, to fulfill orlay.<sup>a</sup>

- 4 Kom þar af veiði · veðreygr skyti
- Volundr líðandi · of langan veg, Slagfiðr ok Egill, · sali fundu auða,
- gingu út ok inn · ok umb sóusk.

Came there from the hunt the weather-eyed shooter: Wayland passing over a long way. Slayfinn and Agle found the halls deserted; they walked out and in, and looked about.

- 5 Austr skreið Egill · at Olrúnu,
- en suðr Slagfiðr · at Svanhvítu, en einn Volundr · sat í Ulfdolum.

- kvánar, ef hónum · of koma gęrði.

He struck the red gold by fastened gemstone, enclosed he all the serpent-bighs<sup>Ca</sup> well; thus awaited he his bright wife, if to him she might come.

&lt;sup>a</sup>As Walkirries the orlay of the sisters is to preside over battles for Weden. Remembering this duty they become increasingly anxious, until they one day decide to finally leave, as seen from the next verse without telling their husbands. For the significance of Mirkwood, see note to v. 1.

It learns Nithad, lord of the Nears<sup>G</sup>, that alone Wayland stayed in the Wolfdales. By night travelled warriors—nailed were their byrnies;<sup>a</sup> their shields gleamed by the waning moon.

8 Stigu ór sǫðlum · at salar gafli,

They stepped out of the saddles, towards the hall's gables; went inside thence, through the endlong hall. Saw they on a bast-rope bighs drawn up: seven hundred in all, which that man owned.

- 9 Ok þeir af tóku · ok þeir á létu
- fyr einn útan, · es af létu; kom þar af veiði · veðreygr skyti
  - Volundr líðandi · of langan veg.

And they took off and they put back on; but for one, which away they put. <sup>a</sup>—Came there from the hunt the weather-eyed shooter: Wayland passing over a long way.

2 ár brann hrísi · allþurru fura, viðr hinn vindþurri, · fyr Volundi.

&lt;sup>a</sup>That this is the bigh mentioned by itself in vv. 17 and 26 seems likely. Finnur Jónsson (1932) writes: "The ring which Nithad kept must have had special properties, and distinguished itself before others. There is no doubt that the ring is a flight ring; whether this was clear to the poet is however questionable. This much is certain, that Wayland seems to be able to fly away only after he has got back the ring; that is, the one which Beadhild brings him." (My translation from the Danish.)—The reader may for himself judge the plausibility of this, but it seems that Wayland, being an exceptionally handy craftsman, may just as well have crafted wings for himself without need for magical rings. This agrees with the Low German verison and the Daedalus myth, for both of which see the introduction to the poem.

Out called Nithad, lord of the Nears: "Where gottest thou, Wayland, leader of elves, our ounces in the Wolfdales? Gold was there not on Grane<sup>P</sup>'s path; far I thought our land from the fells of the Rhine.<sup>a</sup>"

[Wayland quoth:]

"I remember that we owned greater wealth, when we a whole household were at home: Ladguth, and Harware was born to Ladwigh; known was Alerune, Kear's daughter." a

"Before that shalt thou swear to me all oaths:—by the deck of the ship and the rim of the shield, by the bough of the steed and the edge of the sword—that thou wilt not torment the wife of Wayland, nor of my bride become the bane, though a wife we might own, which ye know; or a babe might own, inside of the hall.<sup>a</sup>

But out of the teeth of the two, I struck breast-brooches, sent to Beadhild. Now walks Beadhild, swollen with child; the only daughter of you both."

&lt;sup>a</sup>Wayland has Nithad swear an oath that he will not harm Beadhild, nor their (yet unborn) child.

[Nithad quoth:]

- 37 "Méltir-a þú þat mál, · es mik meir tregi,
  - né þik vilja'k Vǫlundr · verr of níta; es-at svá maðr hór, · at þik af hesti taki,
  - 4 né svá ǫflugr, · at þik neðan skjóti. þar's þú skollir · við ský uppi."

"Thou spokest not that speech which might grieve me more; nor could I worse wish, Wayland, to deny thee. There is no man so high that he from horse might take thee, nor so mighty that he might shoot thee down, there where thou jeerest, by the clouds above!"

- 38 Hléjandi Volundr · hófsk at lopti,
- 2 en ókátr Níðuðr · þá eptir sat.

Laughing Wayland threw himself in the air, but gloomy Nithad thereafter stayed.

[Nithad quoth:]

- 39 "Upp rís Þakkráðr, · þréll minn bazti,
  - bið Bǫðvildi, · mey hina bráhvítu, gangi fagrvarið · við foður róða."

"Rise up Thankred, my best thrall; ask Beadhild—the brow-white maiden—to go fairclothed, with her father to counsel."

[Nithad quoth:]

- 40 "Es þat satt Boðvildr, · es sogðu mér,
  - sótuð it Volundr · saman í holmi?"

"Is it true, Beadhild, as they said to me: stayed thou and Wayland together on the island?"

[Beadhild quoth:]

- 41 "Satt 's þat Níðuðr · es sagði þér:
- sótum vit Volundr · saman í holmi eina ogurstund, · éva skyldi;
- ek vétr hónum · vinna kunna'k, ek vétr hónum · vinna mátta'k."

"It is true, Nithad, as he said<sup>a</sup> to thee: I and Wayland stayed together on the island, for one grave moment—it should never have been! I knew by naught struggle against him; I could by naught struggle against him.<sup>b</sup>"

&lt;sup>a</sup>Beadhild, knowing that the only one who is aware of what happened is Wayland, makes the subtle change in the conjugation, from her father's general plural ("what they said"), to the specific singular ("what the said").

The Lay of Hallow Harwardson (Hęlgakviða Hjorvarðssonar)

Frá Hjorvarði ok Sigrlinn

Hjorvarðr hét konungr. Hann átti fjórar konur. Ein hét Alfhildr; sonr þeira hét Heðinn. Qnnur hét Séreiþr; þeira sonr hét Humlungr. In þriðja hét Sinrjóð; þeira sonr hét Hymlingr. Hjorvarðr konungr hafði þess heit strengt at eiga þá konu er hann vissi vénsta. Hann spurði at Sváfnir konungr átti dóttur allra¹ fegrsta; sú hét Sigrlinn. Iðmundr hét jarl hans; Atli var hans sonr er fór at biðja Sigrlinnar til handa konungi. Hann dvalðisk vetrlangt með Sváfni konungi. Fránmarr hét þar jarl, fóstri Sigrlinnar; dóttir hans hét Álǫf. Jarlinn réð, at meyjar var synjat, ok fór jarlinn heim. Atli jarls sonr stóð einn dag við lund nǫkkurn, en fugl sat í limunum uppi yfir hánum ok hafði heyrt til, at hans menn kǫlluðu vénstar konur þér, er Hjǫrvarðr konungr átti. Fuglinn kvakaði, en Atli hlýddi, hvat hann sagði. Hann kvað:

Second Lay of Hallow Hundingsbane (Helgakviða Hundingsbana aðra)

BPG BPA Helgi fekk Sigrúnar ok áttu þau sonu; var Helgi eigi gamall. Dagr Hǫgna sonr blótaði Óðin til fǫðurhefnda. Óðinn léði Dag geirs síns. Dagr fann Helga, mág sinn, þar sem heitir at Fjǫturlundi. Hann lagði í gǫgnum Helga með geirnum. Þar fell Helgi en Dagr reið til fjalla ok sagði Sigrúnu tíðindi:

BPB Hallow got Sighrun, and they owned sons; Hallow was not old. Day, son of Hain, blooted<sup>C</sup> to Weden to take revenge for his father. Weden lent Day his spear. Day found Hallow, his brother-in-law, at a place called Fetterlund; he laid the spear through Hallow. There fell Hallow, but Day rode to the fells and told Sighrun the news: EPB

"Regretful am I, sister, to grieve thee by saying—for, forced must I cause my kinswoman to cry: This morning fell, 'neath Fetterlund, that prince who was in the world the best, and on the throats of rulers stood."

- hvé skal'k þér, buðlungr, · þess bót of vinna?"

"Sooner would I kiss the unliving king, than thou the bloody byrnie mightst cast away. Thy hair is, Hallow, with hoarfrost thick: the prince is all with corpse-dew whipped: the hands wet-cold on the kinsman of Hain. How shall I for thee, lord, remedy that?"

3 "Ein veldr þú, Sigrún · frá Sefafjollum,

"Thou alone causest, Sighrun from the Sevefells, that Hallow be by harm-dew whipped; thou criest, gold-covered, bitter tears, sun-bright southern lady, before thou to sleep mightst go. Each one falls bloody on the breast of the ruler, wet-cold and stifled, pressed forth by grief."

Frá dauða Fáfnis

From the death of Fathomer

[Fathomer quoth:]

- 1 "Sveinn ok sveinn! · Hverjum estu sveini of borinn?
- 2 Hverra estu manna mogr?
  - es þú á Fáfni rautt · þínn hinn frána méki;

"Swain and swain! To which swain art thou born; of which men art thou the son? As thou on Fathomer hast reddened thy gleaming blade, the sword stands to my the heart!"

BPG BPA Sigurðr dulði nafns síns fyr því at þat var trúa þeira í forneskju at orð feigs manns métti mikit ef hann bolvaði óvin sínum með nafni. Hann kvað:EPA

BPB Siward concealed his name, because it was their belief in ancient times that the word of a fey<sup>C</sup> man could do much if he cursed his enemy by his name. He [= Siward] quoth:EPB EPG

"Who goaded thee—why didst thou let thyself be goaded—my life for to destroy? Gleaming-eyed swain, thou haddest a sharp father; inborn traits show quickly.<sup>a</sup>"

TODO: More verses...

&lt;sup>a</sup>The meaning is that Fathomer would not recognize Siward's lineage (i.e. his father) or name, since he is an orphan who up until this point has not won any glory. He is not saying that he is lineage is unknown even to himself, since sjalfan mik 'my self' is accusative, not dative.

&lt;sup>a</sup>The original is unclear. á skęið means roughly 'rapidly, quickly'; thus ríða á skęið CV: 'to ride at full speed', but the other words are uncertain. La Farge and Tucker (1992) read 'your innate qualities show quickly', suggesting two unattested words: an adjective *áborinn 'innate, inborn' and a verb *skjóa 'to show'. Yet the lack of i-umlaut in the supposed 3rd sg. pres. ind. skjór is difficult. We would expect **skýr, as in skjóta 'to shoot,' with 2nd/3rd sg. pres. ind skýtr. A solution here would be reading a 2nd sg. pres. subj. skjóir, with a vowel TODO

Many of the verses are quoted in WalsS, but notably the two prayer-verses are missing; possibly an instance of Christian censorship. TODO

The Death of Attle

Guthrun Yivicksdaughter avenged her brothers, as has become famous. She first killed the sons of Attle, and after that she killed Attle, and burned the hall and the whole hird. Regarding that this lay is wrought.

- 1 Atli sendi · ár til Gunnars
- kunnan sęgg at ríða, · Knéfrøðr vas sá heitinn; at gorðum kom hann Gjúka · ok at Gunnars hollu,
- bękkjum aringręypum · ok at bjóri svósum.

Attle sent early to Guther a well-known messenger to ride; Kneefred that one was called. To the estates of Yivick he came, and to the hall of Guther; to the hearth-surrounding benches, and to the lovely beer.

- 2 Drukku þar dróttmegir · —en dyljendr þogðu—
- vín í valhollu, · vreiði sóusk þeir Húna; kallaði þá Knéfrøðr · kaldri roddu,
- sęggr inn suðrøni · sat hann á bekk hóm:

There the dright-lads drank—but the concealed ones were silent—wine in the walhall; wary were they of the wrath of the Huns. Then Kneefred, the southern man, called with cold voice; he sat on a high bench:

<sup>2</sup> valhǫllu 'the walhall'] The interpretation of this compound is difficult in context. The first element val-could be (1) valr 'falcon', referring to the aristocratic hunting practice; (2) valr 'Wale<sup>G</sup>', cognate with 'Welsh' but in ON referring to the French or Romans, stressing the southern location or appearance of the hall; or (3) valr '(collective) the battle-slain', foreshadowing the inevitable death (feyness<sup>C</sup>) of the Yivickings<sup>G</sup>. In this case it is linguistically identical to Walhall<sup>L</sup>, Weden's hall, whither the battle-slain go.

1 Svá ... verjask] Line moved from the last verse to this one since it seems to connect semantically with the immediately following line, and also creates a regular line distribution of 4-4 instead of 5-3.

<sup>a</sup>The Huns ask Guther (it is clear that "ruler of the Gots" refers to him, cf. 1, 3, 10) if he wishes to ransom Hain. He instead responds with the following:

23 "Hjarta skal mér Hogna · í hendi liggja

blóðugt, ór brjósti · skorit baldriða, saxi slíðrbeitu, · syni þjóðans."

For the text of original poem I generally present the manuscript text. I found it very difficult to produce a normalization without too heavily distorting the received text, being as it is, a blend of several dialects. I have, however, added acute accents to signify long vowels, capitalized proper names, consistently replaced p (wynn) and uu with w, and made minor corrections where the manuscript is clearly in error—these are noted in the critical apparatus. The punctuation of the original, entirely consisting of interpuncts, at times representing line breaks and caesurae and at others sporadically placed, has not been retained. The hypermetrical words  $quad\ Hiltibrant\ "Hildbrand\ quoth"$  (found in the ms. at the caesurae of ll., 30, 49, and 58) have been removed from the German text, but are presented in small font in the English translation.

Hathbrand spoke, Hildbrand's son: "It told me our people, the old and learned, those who earlier lived, that Hildbrand was called my father — I am called Hathbrand. Long ago he hurried east — he fled Edwaker's hate — thither with Thedrich, and his great many thanes. He left in the land a little one to stay, a bride in the bower, a bairn ungrown, without inheritance; he rode east thither, as Thedrich was in great need of my father; — that was so friendless a man. ### 1.1 Cultural and religious expressions (C) ape (ON. api, OE. apa, OS. apo, OHG. affo, PNWGmc. **apó*) In the Old Norse the word seems to mean 'fool, buffoon', in the other old languages apparently 'monkey', though this sense should be a later development of the former; why would the early Germanic tribes have a word for an animal that they had never encountered?

aught (ON. étt, OE. éht 'possession, property') The Nordic (paternal) clan or family line.

begale (OHG. bigalan) To affect something using galders<sup>C</sup>. See also gale<sup>C</sup>.

bigh (ON. baugr, OE. béag, OHG. boug) A torc or armlet, in the migration period used as currency or tokens of loyalty (see particularly Hildbrand). often referenced in ruler-kennings.

bloot (ON. blót, OE. blót, OHG. bluoz) Sacrifice or a sacrificial feast.

bloot-kettle The large pots used for cooking the bloot-stew.

Doom (ON. dómr, OE. dóm) Commonly 'judgement' (whence Doomsday, 'Judgement Day'), but in the Norse and English poetry also specifically referring to one's fame or good reputation (that is, how others will judge one's character and deeds). Thus High 77: "I know one that never dies: the Doom over each man dead." is illuminated by passages in Beewolf like 884b–887a:

... · Sigemunde gesprong æfter déaðdæge · dóm unlýtel syþðan wíges heard · wyrm ácwealde hordes byrde · ...

"For Sighmund sprang up after his day of death unlittle  $\bf Doom$ , since hard in conflict he defeated the Worm<sup>C</sup>, the herder of the hoard.";

953b-955a:

... · þú þé self hafast

dédum gefremed · þæt þín dóm lyfað áwa tó aldre · ...

"Thou hast for thyself by deeds accomplished that thy Doom lives for ever and ever."

fee (ON. fé, OE. féoh) Originally 'cattle', however also used in a broader sense to refer to one's mobile wealth. For this cf. particularly *High*TODO.

feel-cunning (ON. fjolkunnigr) Literally 'much-cunning, cunning in many ways'. Skilled with sorcery.

- fey (ON. feigr, OE. fége, OHG. feigi 'cowardly') One doomed or fated to die, with a sense of predestination and inevitability. Its earliest use is on the Rök stone: aft uamuþ stanta runar þar + n uarin faþi faþir aft faikian sunu "After Woemood (Vámóðr) stand these runes<sup>C</sup>, but Warren (Varinn) painted, the father after the fey son." It was believed that one's See PCRN HS II:35, p. 928 ff. (TODO)
- fimble- (ON. fimbul-) The ultimate, final, greatest. See Fimblethyle<sup>P</sup>, Fimblewinter<sup>L</sup>.
- five days (ON. fimm dagar) That the old Scandinavian week was five days long is well attested. According to the GolL there were six weeks in a month, and the expression five days is used as the equivalent of week in High 51 and 74, in the second of which it is contrasted with month. Related to this is the legal term fifth (ON. fimmt, OSw. fæmt), a meeting or gathering set to be held at a five-day notice. See fimt in CV, Love et al. (2020) for further discussion.
  - galder (ON. galdr, OE. gealdor, OHG. galdar) A magical spell or song. See the Merseburg charms (TODO?) for examples. See also gale<sup>C</sup>.
  - gand (ON. gandr, Latin gandus) A witch's familiar, a spirit sent out to do her bidding. See PCRN HS I:17, p. 361 and II:26, p. 656. TODO
  - gin- (ON. ginn-) A rare augmentative prefix. TODO.
- good of meat (ON. matar góðr) An old expression, appearing not just in High 39 ("I found not a generous man, or so good of meat, that a gift were not accepted;") but also several Viking Age Runic inscriptions, such as Sm 39: mildan orða · ok matar góðan 'mild of words and good of meat', U 805: bónda góðan matar 'a farmer good of meat', U 703: mandr matar góðr · auk máls risinn 'a man good of meat and proud in speech<sup>TM</sup>; compare also U 739: hann var mildr matar · auk máls risinn 'he was mild of meat and proud in speech'. See meat-nithing<sup>C</sup> for its opposite.
  - hame (ON. hamr) A skin, shape. Individuals can through magic "shift hames" (ON. skipta homum), and leave their human hames behind, instead entering into the shapes of wolves, bears, birds. During this process the original hame would be sleeping in a vulnerable state, as described in the Saw of the Walsings, chap. TODO: . See also feather-hame<sup>P</sup>, town-riders<sup>C</sup>, evening-riders<sup>C</sup>.
  - harrow (ON. horgr, OE. hearg, PNWGmc. **harugar*) A cairn constructed for ritual purposes. Hindle 10 describes one: "A harrow<sup>C</sup> he made for me, loaded with stones; now that stone-pile is become into glass. He reddened [it] in fresh blood of oxen; Oughthere<sup>P</sup> ever trusted on the Ossens<sup>G</sup>." See also wigh<sup>C</sup>.
  - Home (ON. hęimr, OE. hám, PNWGmc. **haimar*) In the Norse often referring to a 'realm' in the cosmology (WSpae 2: "I remember nine Homes", Webthrithner TODO: "From the runes of the Ettins<sup>G</sup> and of all the gods I can speak truly, for I have come into each - Home"). Thus Ettinham<sup>L</sup> is the 'Home/realm of the ettins.' When used alone the term simply means 'the world (that we inhabit).' See also nine Homes<sup>L</sup>, Thrithham<sup>L</sup>.

- leat (ON. blaut) Sacrificial blood (that is, taken from the animal), especially when used for auguries.
- leat-twig (ON. blauttęinn) A twig used to sprinkle the leat<sup>C</sup> in auguries (presumably the pattern of the blood would then be inspected).
  - leed (ON. ljóð, OE. léod) A magical chant or incantation. See also galder<sup>C</sup>, gale<sup>C</sup>, begale<sup>C</sup>.
  - manwit (ON. manvit) Practical sense and wisdom, situational awareness, 'common sense'.
    - orlay (ON.  $\sigma rlog$ , OE.  $\sigma rlog$ ) One's predetermined fate, destiny, purpose as decreed by the Norns<sup>G</sup>.
    - rest (ON. rost) The distance between two rest-stops, a geographical mile (about 1850 metres). See especially CV.
    - rune (ON. rún, OE. rún, OS. rúna, OHG. rúna, Got. rúna, PNWGmc. rūnu) An (esoteric) secret message or formula. That this—rather than 'letter (of a Runic alphabet)'—is the original and proper sense is apparent from among others the Finnish borrowing runo 'poem; poetry; a division of a poem (specifically of the Kalevala)', and its use in the singular in the earliest Runic inscriptions such as Noleby Vg 63 (which contains the linguistically indecipherable string of letters NfFANNNRFNKNIN[-]FIJH, a rune in the proper sense) or the recently discovered Svingerud fragment. Thus, Weden's taking of the runes should not be interpreted as merely a myth for the invention of profane writing, but rather the origin of esoteric incantations, not at all unlike Indian mantras. The word for letter was instead stave<sup>C</sup>, see also there.
    - soo (ON. sóa) To ritually waste, the slaying in the animal sacrifice.
    - thill (ON. pylja) To chant poetry or lists (so called thules  $^{C}$ ) acquired by rote memorization. See also thyle  $^{C}$ .
    - Thing (ON., OE. þing, OS. thing, OHG. ding) The legal assembly and gathering place where matters would be settled and the law recited.
    - thule (ON. pula) A poetic list, typically of various items of a category (e.g. gods, legendary horses) or poetic synonyms (e.g. for swords, men, Weden). Degoratively also a ditty, poorly composed poem.
    - thyle (ON. pulr, OE. pyle, PNWGmc. **puli*R) A sage who through rote learning has acquired a large amount of mythological lore (cf. pula 'a list in poetic form; a meaning-less poem' and pylja 'to recite, to chant'). Thus Weden<sup>P</sup> is the Fimblethyle<sup>P</sup>, being the unbeaten master of lore, as can be seen in his wisdom contests (like Webthrithner).

Runic inscription DR 248 (Snoldelev) suggests the thyle may have tied to a specific place, and in Beewolf it seems to have been a court position, with the poet Unferth being described as the "thyle of Rothgar".

wale (ON. volr) The staff or sceptre, especially of a wallow. TODO: archeological finds, mention Sutton Hoo.

wallow (ON. volva, OE. **wealwe* (cf. ON. svolva, OE. swealwe 'swallow')) A sibyl, seeress, oracle. The word derives from the wale<sup>C</sup>, a staff or sceptre probably used for ritual purposes.

wigh (ON.  $v\acute{e}$ , OE.  $w\acute{e}oh$ ,  $w\acute{t}h$ , PNWGmc. \* $w\bar{t}h\dot{q}$ ) A holy shrine or sanctuary. It seems that where the harrow<sup>C</sup> was a pile of stones or cairn used for carrying out rituals, the wigh was an enclosed space. The earliest Norse attestation is the runic inscription Ög N288 (Oklunda), which reads: "Guthhere <= Gunnarr> painted these runes, and he fled, guilty. Sought this wigh, and he fled into this clearing. And he bound. [...]" The implication seems to be that the wigh was considered so sacred that Guthhere could not be apprehended or punished for his crime while in it. — In Old English the word means 'pagan idol'. It is not immediately clear which meaning is the original one, but in this edition the Norse sense has been adopted, since the Anglo-Saxon sources are all of a Christian nature. The Beewolf name Wighstone (Wīh- or Wēohstān) in any case suggests it is the Norse meaning, since 'idol-stone' makes little sense.

wode (ON. óðr, OE. wód, PNWGmc. *wōþur) Heener<sup>P</sup>'s gift to men, though the name would suggest it be from Weden<sup>P</sup>. The word has several related meanings: 'poetic inspiration', 'madness', 'rage'.

1.2 People and objects (P)

Attle (Attila, ON. Atli, OE. Ætla, MHG. Etzel, PNWGmc. **Attilō*) The ruler of the Huns<sup>G</sup> (historically from 434–453). Husband of Guthrun<sup>P</sup>, and with her father of Earp and Oatle<sup>P</sup>. and murderer of I HHb 54, SiL 11, I Gr 23, ShS 28, 29, 33, 37, 54, 56, 57, II Gr 26, 38, 45, III Gr 1, 9, BnOr 0, OdW A, 2, 22, 23, 25, 26, 30, 31, AtD 0, AtL 1, 3, 15, 17, 18, 27, 31, 32, 34, 36, 37, 38, 41, 43, B, AtS 2, 4, 21, 22, 44, 52, 60, 64, 71, 73, 77, 80, 86, 87, 97, 98, 108, 113, 117, FGr 0, GrB 12, Ham 6.

- Guthrun (ON. Guðrún) Daughter of king Yivick<sup>P</sup>, sister of Guthhere<sup>P</sup> and Hain<sup>P</sup>. The wife of Attle<sup>P</sup>.
  - Hain [Hain 1] (ON. Hogni, OE. Haguna, Hagena, OHG. Hagano, Ger. Hagen, PNWGmc. *Hagunō) A Nifling<sup>G</sup> and Yivicking<sup>G</sup>, son of king Yivick<sup>P</sup>, brother of Guthhere<sup>P</sup> and Guthrun<sup>P</sup>. In AtL he defeats seven warriors before being captured by Attle<sup>P</sup>, who has his heart cut out at the request of Guthhere.
    - 2 A petty king of East Geatland<sup>L</sup>, contemporary with Granmer<sup>P</sup>, the king of Southmanland<sup>L</sup> and Ingeld Illred, the Ingling<sup>G</sup> king of Upland<sup>L</sup>.
  - Hath (ON.  $Ho\delta r$ ) The blind son of Weden<sup>P</sup>, the slayer of his brother Balder<sup>P</sup>.
  - Hindle (ON. Hyndla) A witch awoken by Frow in Hindle.
  - Millner (ON. Mjollnir, OE. *Meldne, PNWGmc. *Meldunjar) Powerful hammer owned by Thunder.
- Oughter (ON. Óttarr, OE. Óhthere, PNWGmc. *Ōhtaharjar) TODO
- Rotholf (ON. Hrólfi kraki, OE. Hrólpulf, PNWGmc. **Hrōlpiwulfar*) A king of the Shieldings<sup>G</sup> (see family tree). As foreshadowed in Beewolf 1017–9, 1180–90, he betrays the sons of Rothgar<sup>P</sup>, his cousins Rethrich and Rothmund<sup>P</sup>, in order to take the throne for himself. In the later Icelandic tradition this has been forgotten, and he is consistently portrayed as a heroic king.
- Rothgar (ON. Hróarr, OE. Hróþgár, PNWGmc. **Hrōþigai*Rar) A king of the Shieldings<sup>G</sup> (see family tree), one of the main characters in Beewolf.
- Wider (ON. Viðarr) A son of Weden<sup>P</sup>, who avenges him at the Rakes of the Reins<sup>L</sup>.
- Wonnel (ON. Váli, PWgmc. Wanila 'the little Wane<sup>P</sup> (uncertain)') The son of Weden<sup>P</sup>, who one-night old avenged his brother Balder<sup>P</sup> through slaying another brother, Hath<sup>P</sup>.
- Woulder (ON. Ullr) A rather obscure god. He is mentioned in connection with oath-rings (TODO) and the setting of ritual fires (Grimner TODO). These obscure references are likely related to the interesting finds at Lilla Ullevi ('the small wigh<sup>C</sup> of Woulder') in Upland, Sweden, consisting of several dozen fire striker-shaped iron amulet rings dating to 660–780 (for a detailed description see (af Edholm, 2009)).
  - Yimer (ON. Ymir, OE. *Yime) The first ettin, probably equivalent to Earyelmer<sup>P</sup>.

1.3 Groups and tribes (G)

- TODO: Map of rough tribal areas. Geneaologies.
- Danes (ON. danir, OE. dene, PNWGmc. *danir) A tribe in eastern modern-day Denmark and southern Sweden. They probably originated in Scania in southern Sweden, before moving westwards into the Danish isles and eventually Jutland, driving out the Earls<sup>G</sup> and Jutes<sup>G</sup>. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Dwarfs (ON. dvergar, OE. dweorgas, OHG. twerca, PNWGmc. *dwergór) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings, often referred to as living in rocks and mountains. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
  - Ease (rhyming with geese; ON. ésir, OE. ése, PNWGmc. *ansiwin; sg. os, ON. áss, OE. ós, PNWGmc. *ansun) A group of Gods, though the word can also refer to all the Gods. See Gods<sup>G</sup>, Tues<sup>G</sup>, Wanes<sup>G</sup>, Reins<sup>G</sup>. Noted members: Weden<sup>P</sup>, Thunder<sup>P</sup>, Frie<sup>P</sup>, Hath<sup>P</sup> and Balder<sup>P</sup> Attestations: TODO
- Ease and Elves (ON. ésir ok alfar, OE. ése ende ielfe, PNWGmc. *alþín jah ansiwin) A merism; both heavenly and earthly spiritual beings. Notably the two words always occur in this order (never 'Elves and Ease'), even in the Old English.
  - Elves (ON. alfar, OE. ielfe, PNWGmc. *alβíκ) Earthly (chthonic) supernatural beings. Possibly ancestral spirits? Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
  - Ettins (ON. jotnar, OE. eotenas, PNWGmc. **etunón*) The fundamental enemies of the Gods, the agents of chaos and disorder. See Rises<sup>G</sup>, Thurses<sup>G</sup>. Noted members: Hymer<sup>P</sup>, Thrim<sup>P</sup>, Webthrithner<sup>P</sup>, Yimer<sup>P</sup> Attestations: TODO
  - Geats (ON. gautar, OE. géatas, PNWGmc. *gautón from *geut- 'to pour', perhaps 'the libators') A tribe in what is today southern-central Sweden. See also Geatland<sup>L</sup>, Swedes<sup>G</sup>. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
  - gin-Reins (ON. ginnregin) gin-C + ReinsG. The sacrosanct, highest divine powers.
    - Gods (ON. goð, OE. godu, OHG. gota, PNWGmc. *godu) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
    - Huns (ON. húnir, OE. Húne, OHG. Húni, Hunni, PNWGmc. *húniπ) An invading Asiatic tribe in the Migration Period. In the legendary material their cultural and ethnic foreignness is not seen. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO

- Nears (ON. níarar njárar) A Swedish tribe, only mentioned in Wayland, where it is ruled by king Nithad<sup>P</sup>. The name and location may allow us to connect them with the Swedish province of Närke, cf. Old Swedish: Nærikiar 'inhabitants of Närke', Nærisker 'belonging to Närke; Nearish'. The Old Swedish stem nær- would then be a reduced form of níar-, njár-.
- Ossens (ON. ósynjur) The women of the Ease<sup>G</sup>, see there.
- Reins (ON. rogn, regin) The divine powers. Based on Webthrithner (TODO) the term may be more closely associated with the Wanes<sup>G</sup> than the Ease<sup>G</sup>.
- Saxons (ON. saxar, OE. Seaxan, Seaxe) TODO. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Shieldings (ON. skjoldungar, OE. Scyldingas, PNWGmc. *skeldungón) The descendants of Shield<sup>P</sup>; the legendary Danish<sup>G</sup> royal dynasty. With Harward<sup>P</sup>'s death after his slaying of Rotholf<sup>P</sup> their rule ended. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
- Shelvings (ON. skilfingar, OE. scilfingas, PNWGmc. *skilßingón) The descendants of Shelf<sup>P</sup>; the legendary Swedish<sup>G</sup> royal dynasty. The exact difference between the terms Shelvings and Inglings<sup>G</sup> is unclear, but the first may have referred to the old royal family in Sweden, while the latter to the Norwegian branch which claimed descent from the former. TODO Noted members: TODO Attestations: Hindle 15, 20
  - Swedes (ON. svíar, OE. swéon, PNWGmc. *swihanía) The tribe around the Mälar valley in eastern Sweden. Noted members: TODO Attestations: TODO
  - Thurses (sg. Thurse; ON. þurs, OE. þyrs, OS. thuris, OHG. duris, PNWGmc. **þurisar*)

    Possibly a poetic synonym for Ettins<sup>G</sup>. See also Rime-Thurses<sup>G</sup>. Noted members:

    TODO Attestations: Wal 8, Shr 31, 35, 36, Hyme 17, Thr 5, 10, 21, 24, 29, 30, Alw
    2, I HHb 40, HHw 27.
    - Tues (ON. tívar, PNWGmc. *tíwór) A poetic synonym for Gods<sup>G</sup>. Attestations: TODO
  - Wanes (ON. vanir, OE. wan-?) A subgroup or tribe of the gods, associated with fertility, harvests and fishing. Noted members: Nearth<sup>P</sup>, Ing<sup>P</sup>, Frow<sup>P</sup> Attestations: TODO
- Yivickings (ON. gjúkungar) The descendants of Yivick<sup>P</sup>, including Guthhere<sup>P</sup>, Guthrun<sup>P</sup> and Hain<sup>P</sup>. Attestations: TODO

1.4 Place names, locations and events (L)

- Hell (ON. hel, PNWGmc. *halju, Got. halja) The underworld, personfied as and formally identical with Hell<sup>P</sup>. After Christianity the word came to refer to the Christian hell (= Gehenna), as is the case in all attested languages apart from the Old Norse. See also Nivelhell<sup>L</sup>.
- Middenyard (ON. Miògaròr, OE. Middangeard, OS. Middilgard, OHG. Mittilgart, Got. midjungards) The 'middle enclosure'; the realm of men. See also Osyard<sup>L</sup>, Outyard<sup>L</sup>.
  - Nivelhell (ON. niflhęl) 'Mist-Hell', from the poetic evidence it seems like it may originally have been a synonym for Hell<sup>L</sup>. In poetry it is attested in Webthrithner TODO: níu kom'k hęima |hld fyr Niflhel neðan, hinig deyja ór helju halir. 'into nine homes I came, beneath Nivelhell; thither die men out of Hell', the second by Dreams 2: reið niðr þaðan |hld niflheljar til; mótti hvelpi, |hld þeim's ór helju kom. '[Weden] rode down thence to Nivel-hell; met the whelp that out of Hell came.' Possibly the distinction was held by the first poet but not the second.
    - Osyard (ON. Ásgarðr) The 'enclosure of the Ease<sup>G</sup>'; the heavenly realm. See also Middenyard<sup>L</sup>, Outyard<sup>L</sup>.
  - Outyards (ON. Útgarðar) Not eddic. The 'outer enclosures', described in Yilfer. See also Ettinham<sup>L</sup>, Middenyard<sup>L</sup>, Osyard<sup>L</sup>.
- Rakes of the Reins (ON. ragna rok) The 'fates of the Reins<sup>G</sup>', euphemism for the destruction of the world.
- Rakes of the Tues (ON. tíva rǫk) The Rakes of the Reins<sup>L</sup>.
  - Up-heaven (ON. Upphiminn, OE. Upheofon, OS. Upphimil, OHG. úfhimil) Highest heaven. See also Earth and Up-heaven<sup>L</sup>.
